LYON IS A MASTER

The Once Pastor, Traveler, Teacher, Author, Is Now Here Each Night.

(By Rev. G. LeRoy Hall.)

TABERNACLE CALENDAR. TO-NIGHT. "Rolling Away the Stone." WEDNESDAY. "The Great Essential." 3 P. M. "Why More Prayers Are Not Answered." Men's meeting next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Boys' and girls' meeting Friday.

That Marshfield now has a master of His message who is nightly delivering strong, manly sermons which appeal to the consciences of thoughtful people, is evidenced by the real interest manifested thus far and the increased attendance at the meetings in the Tabernacle which are being conducted by Milford Hall Lyon of Wheaton, Ill.

Mr. Lyon was born on a farm. He graduated from the high school at the early age of thirteen. He was converted while in college during the preaching of S. M. Sayford, who as a Y. M. C. A. worker, conducted meetings for college students, and who himself was a convert under Dwight L. Moody.

VISITS THE TWIN CITIES

Col. Roosevelt Is Entertained By People of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 6.—This is Roosevelt day in the twin cities. The Colonel arrived in Minneapolis at 7 o'clock this morning. After breakfast he was escorted to St. Paul, where he was scheduled to make an address this morning and another this afternoon. The Colonel was greeted by crowds of cheering men, women and children, and the buildings along the route were decorated for the occasion. After a reception here and a short rest, he proceeded to the St. Paul auditorium and delivered an address at the conservation congress. The immense hall was packed to suffocation when President Baker called the meeting to order.

Roosevelt's speech at the conservation congress was received with the wildest applause. It was several minutes after he arose to speak before he could make himself heard, so persistently did the throng cheer him. The Colonel outlined his ideas as to conservation, saying the reckless and uncontrolled waste of the past must be stopped. He declared himself in favor of rigorous steps to preserve the country's natural resources for the benefit of the people and to check the power of monopoly of corporations. "Much that I have to say on the subject of conservation will be but a repetition of what was so admirably said from this platform yesterday," said Roosevelt. His compliment to President Taft was received with cheers. Speaking of the control of water ways by railroads, Col. Roosevelt warned the people not to sit and let railroads get control, only to say later that those at the head of the railroads were very bad men.

TAFT COMMUTES SENTENCE OF GEORGE D. BARNARD OF OREGON

TAFT MAKES CAREFUL TALK

Gives His Views on Conservation in a Well Prepared Speech.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 6.—With every prospect of a warm fight for control between the "State rights" delegates and those favoring the national control, the second national conservation congress opened here yesterday. The crowd began arriving early at the auditorium to get a glimpse of President Taft, who was on the programme for an address.

Taft gave repeated credit in his speech to Roosevelt for the work of conservation, but apparently took a fling at the "New Nationalism," when he said, "In these days there is a disposition to look too much to the federal government for everything. I am liberal in the construction of a new constitution with reference to the federal power, but I am firmly convinced that the only safe course for us to pursue is to hold fast to the limitations of the constitution and to regard as sacred the powers of state."

Taft in his address made plain his disposition of the whole subject of congress. The speech was exhaustive and was prepared with greater care than any public utterance Taft has made since his inauguration. The President showed an exact knowledge of the subject and the depth of his knowledge surprised his hearers. The central note of his address was an appeal for practical commonsense in conservation. "The time has come," he declared, "for a halt of the general rhapsodies over conservation, making the word mean every known good in the world. The public attention has been aroused and the movement does not direct the public to the specific course that the people should take, or have their legislators take, to promote the cause of conservation. "Real conservation involves the wise, non-wasteful use in the present generation, with every possible means of preservation for the future generations. The problem is how to save and how to utilize and how to keep up conservation and still develop."

President Taft announced that he would submit to Congress the solution of the problem of adjusting the control of water sites as between the States and the federal government. The President got a most demonstrative welcome. Gifford Pinchot, who has been in St. Paul, was not present. He went into Representative Tawney's district to-day to deliver a speech in favor of Tawney's opponent.

KILL MANY VARMINTS.

Forest Fires Drive Panthers Back in Near Settlements.

COQUILLE, Ore., Sept. 3.—C. N. Wigan of the Upper North Fork was a Coquille visitor this week and while in town reported the killing at his place of a seven-foot panther the other day. The varmint was in his barnyard chasing fowls during the day time and Mr. Wigan promptly secured his 30-30 and massacred the marauder. This is the third panther killed in his section in three weeks, one being killed the Sunday before by Herbert Johnson and one two weeks before by Fred Johnson. It is thought the forest fires have driven the animals down from the mountains.
