Official Paper of Coos County.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY OF MARSHFIELD.

BE PROUD OF THE GOOD THINGS.

EVERY man, woman and child in Coos county and on Coos Bay especially should congratulate themselves on the providential influence that cast their lot among surroundings which few sections can boast and fewer still can excel.

For diversity of the things that make life worth living and create a desire to stretch the thread of life to its utmost limit Coos Bay cannot be rivaled.

No place in this broad land offers more toward bringing vividly forward each day those things that point toward the perfect life.

Coos Bays' cosmopolitan inhabitants, combining the refined with the rough timber that lays the foundation of empire, gives a diversity of local color, blending with the present and promising greater things for the future.

Where can mankind step from paved streets, electric lighted, with electroliners like they have in New York, as one objecting citizen remarked, and within less than an hour's walk find himself plunged into the depth of virgin woodland and threading pathways leading by babbling brooks and bubbling springs. What place offers such access to beautiful lakes as yet unspoiled in their primitive beauty and natural scenery? Where but in this budding metropolis can a man desert his business in mid-afternoon and forget his cares whipping whirling waters and drawing forth the shining denizens of their crystal depths almost within the city's limits.

One must travel and miss a few of the good things in life to fully appreciate Coos Bay.

California is proud of its grand State. A native son is prouder still of his birthplace. So should the native of Coos Bay as well as those who make it the home of their adoption.

Coos Bay has virtues and possibilities that should instill into every bosom a home pride that engenders a jealous fealty to its present and its future.

In its upbuilding many imperfections may be found, but these are fast being removed and modernity is supplanting the crude.

It is a place to which any man may point and boast as his home or birthplace.

There is no feared heated season. Its genial, balmy summers and surroundings are such that even the poorest within its confines can enjoy pleasures that men of wealth long for in the older Eastern cities and would give their gold to share, but who are denied.

There are no terrors of winter for nature has endowed this chosen land with a lavish hand and the winters are as mildly warm as the summers are mildly cool.

Coos Bay could be best described as the Ardenia of the Northwest—of the whole United States, for that matter. Its very environment beckons and holds the stranger as no other community can. Once on Coos Bay the feeling grows and the man of six months' residence vies with the native born in stinging its praise. When Horace Greeley uttered that:

time-honored advice to the young man, in his mind's vision he must have seen Coos Bay. Away down the vista of his dreams he must have beheld a verdure-clad empire, dotted here and there with beautiful homes, threaded by rippling streams and emerald-hued lakes, bordered by flowers blending their beauty with the call of the birds and the soft cadence of the Indian maiden's song. He must have seen the white sails of ships like great winged birds, bearing their golden argosies to and from the ports of the world, and developing the great civilization that will be manifest, when our future achievements have been completed.

Grant to every other section everything that is theirs by a natural heritage, concede those things of which they are proud to boast, and yet in comparison no one need ever apologize for Coos Bay, even without a railway.

JUDGE WATKIN'S CHALLENGE.

IN ANOTHER COLUMN of The Times is published an interesting open communication from Judge Watkins to the members of the Republican Central Committee of Coos county in which he challenges them to a joint discussion of the principles involved in the Assembly and the opposition to Statement No. One. This communication is important, timely and vital with meaning. It questions the sincerity of the Assembly wing in their open profession of friendship for the Primary which they seek to nullify and vitiate by their performance.

Three great and vital purposes are actuating the Republicans of Oregon at the present moment: The sound and complete rehabilitation of the party within the State; the resumption of the rights of the party in the government of the State; and its full and proper representation and standing at Washington. It is needless to attempt the review of the causes which have dispossessed the party of these things; it is enough to know they are within the reach of the people who have the absolute right to them and who are bent upon their honest achievement.

The first of these can be secured only by a hearty unanimity of partisan merger; a clean and clear purpose to get together again upon a single plane of genuine Republicanism; unimpeded by factional ambition, and free from every ism, clique and contract that vitiated the old organization, peddled out the strength and prestige of the party and enched its constitutional prerogatives in the hands of the opposing minority. Let us get together as Republicans and solve the problem properly.

The Assembly Republicans of Coos county number several good Marathon talkers and there should be no hesitancy in accepting Judge Watkins' challenge. There is no taint on the Judge's Republicanism. Like the editor of The Times, he is and has been a Republican all his life. His Republicanism is the Republicanism of principles and not of the pie counter. He believes in the party of Lincoln and of Roosevelt and the progress it typifies. He refuses to be bull dozed or bluffed into betrayal of those principles. He refuses to be read out of the party at the behest of a gang of Portland politicians who are seeking to dictate the policies and candidates of the party from the corporation offices of the State metropolises. The Assembly has already proven itself to be a medium for personal ends, private and corporate interest and factional disorder and its continuation, means a widening of the breach and placing the brand of failure and final disruption upon us fast and finally.

Come, gentlemen, bring on your debaters.
