

IS SENTENCED TO FIVE YEARS

John Manning Gets Term in Penitentiary—Court Will Adjourn Today.

John Manning, the man who was found guilty of stealing jewelry and other valuables at Beaver Hill and was tried several days ago, has been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The jury found him guilty and the sentence was passed by Judge Coke. Manning, it is said, has served a term in the Washington state penitentiary.

Court will be adjourned today until November 14, at which time the murder case of Frank Garrison will be taken up. Judge Coke dismissed permanently the jurors who served in the White murder case. The rest of the jurors were excused on November 14.

Marsden Case.
The case of John Marsden against his father, Robert Marsden, has been finished. The suit was regarding the settlement of a partnership affair. The plaintiff sued for $1400 and the jury returned a verdict finding that there was due to the defendant, Robert Marsden, $750 from the plaintiff. Instead of $1400 being anything due the plaintiff.

MR. HOY'S STATEMENT.

Will you be kind enough to give space in your valuable paper for the following statement?

It has been suggested to me that my recent political defeat was due, solely, to a statement made by me to the effect that I would not support any assembly candidate, either at the primary or general election. That statement was made by me over my signature before I had any thought of becoming a candidate for nomination and was probably repeated by me many times afterward. There is very little chameleon blood in my veins and it is still my purpose to live up to the spirit of the policy outlined by the statement above referred to. Where, of course, I am convinced that the candidate's name was advanced by the assembly without any active endorsement of the assembly-plan by him, and I believe him to be a republican and qualified to fill the office which he seeks, he will receive my vote. But the candidate who has actively espoused the assembly-plan is not, in my opinion, entitled to the suffrage of progressive republicans who believe in hearkening to the voice of the people in the matters of who shall be the nominees for office and who shall represent them in the United States senate.

The assembly-plan is not a dead issue. True, where the issue was clearly drawn, it was repudiated by the people in the recent election; but there is no good foundation for the belief expressed by Hon. Henry E. McGinn that the assembly-plan has received its death-blow. At best, the "beast" in Oregon has merely retreated to its lair from whence it will again sally forth in due time, under a new name, perhaps, but with its spots unchanged.

I am a republican and can tell why I am a republican, and I challenge any person to give clearer reasons for his party affiliation than I can and do give for mine when occasion seems to warrant or demand it; but I am not an endorser of the assembly-plan and I do not propose to vote for a candidate that is clouded by the suspicions that justly enshadow the persons whose names have been placed before the people by the old convention methods so well known to all of us, except I know, or am reasonably sure, that such candidate is an innocent victim of untoward political circumstances.

To make my position clear by illustration: If Jay Bowerman is elected governor of Oregon at the coming general election, the assembly-plan in Oregon has won a signal victory. Every vote for Jay Bowerman is a vote for the candidate selected by R. W. Wilbur and W. D. Fenton and perhaps a few other "five wires," or "controlling spirits" in the assembly, all, however, representatives and employees of organized capital or organized business in some form. Such circumstances, I believe, not only justify one in foregoing so-called "party obligations," but demand that the progressive element refuse to submit thereto and step outside the party lines as they are artificially drawn. I, for one, refuse to be "jollied," or "Grand-Old-Parties" into lending my vote to aid a return to machine politics in this state.

POLICE CHIEF REINSTATED

Seattle Executive Who Was Removed Is Put Back Into Office.

(By Associated Press.)
SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 29.—Mayor Gill re-appointed Chief of Police Wappenstein today. Wappenstein was removed yesterday by Acting Mayor Wardell.

Wappenstein is supposed to have been in Seattle for several days awaiting Gill's return from his Alaska trip. Wappenstein left for Los Angeles soon after Gill went north and dropped out of sight when the storm broke. Wappenstein was removed from the position of chief of detectives of Cincinnati June 7, 1885. He was removed from a position on Seattle detective force in 1901 after the investigating committee had reported him "unfit to occupy a position of detective or any other position in police department."
