

SOCIETY AND WOMAN'S WORLD

CONTRIBUTIONS concerning social happenings, intended for publication in the society department of The Times, must be submitted to the editor not later than 6 o'clock p. m. Friday of each week. Exceptions will be allowed only in cases where events occur later than the time mentioned.

HOME.
There's a little old house on a little old street
In a little old bit of a town
Where the honeysuckle is breathing sweet,
And nights as the sun goes down
A childish treble is raised in song
That fits in the perfumed gloam;
And, oh, the days they are hot and long
When I am away from home.

There's a little woman whose cheeks are red
With the roses of days gone by
And you would know by the bending head
And the red lips curving why
That whosoever his path may lead,
How far in the world he fares,
The man's heart turns when the days recede
To the woman and babes upstairs.

There's a big soft place in the daddy's heart
That aches when the night comes down
When the woman and he are whole miles apart,
And far from the dear old town,
He knows the babies are by their bed
With their mother near by, and then
The whisper comes from each curly head:
"Bring daddy home safe, Amen."

THE other day I was talking with a little wife. She was a happy little woman, but she was deploring the fact that "her husband did not know a thing outside his business!"
"Why, do you know," she said, "he is the most helpless creature imaginable. He just depends on me to pave every step of the way of his existence after he leaves his work."
"What did he do before he met you?" I asked, knowing full well that she really loved this need of her.

"Heaven only knows," she answered. "But this I do know. He couldn't get on without me now." (And I know she would be miserable without him.) She went on to say, "I have gotten so used to selecting his socks and shirts, ties and things that it would be queer if I had to stop. Everything about the house is left entirely to me. He is business all over."
"But how well he attends to that," I ventured.

"No better in his line, that is sure," she answered proudly. And when I suggested what a happy attribute that was and that the chances were if he had to think about all the other things, he would not be so proficient in his work.
"Oh, I am not complaining, my dear," she answered, "only that it goes to show how a great big man can be so manish mentally and physically, and yet must needs depend so entirely on a wee woman."

Ah, that is where we get the balance in the scheme of things, says Sophie Loeb. How much more to be admired is the manly man who does not know anything about housekeeping or cannot even select his own shirts than one of these chicken-hearted-trailing-along womanish variety.

Take, for instance, Mr. Mosey. His poor spouse hasn't a minute's peace. He is forever at her heels. If she is making jellies, he is right in the kitchen with his usual stock of comments. When she buys a new hat, he must be right there to see that that chantecler bird is put on just a certain way.

Her dresses, from material to trimmings, must bear his mark of approval before they are purchased. He takes a leading part in all the little follies and fancies of particular interest to women. (How much happier must the manly man's wife be.)

He is a common variety, this womanish man. We see him every day. He cares not for the sports of men, but prefers the things that appeal to the other sex. He is always seeking sympathy.

His pearl handled penknife is in a morocco case and his watch in a chamois skin pouch. When he smokes (which is the only so-called manish trait he possesses) he doesn't even smoke men cigars, but chooses the cork-tipp cigarette variety so as not to soil the lady-like lips.

I would imagine he liked several varieties of perfumes and is the fellow who forgets his ring ("don't you know") and has to go home for it. No doubt he is fond of tea. He likes to join the gossiping clans and jennitates the busybody rather than the busy bee.

Brother dear, it is a fine thing to be a man, especially a manly man. Live up to it! We would much rather you didn't know the first thing about ribbons and laces and things, and actually show your ignorance along these lines, than be forever womanly in everything you do.

At any rate you would command more respect from both your own and our sex.

The average woman enjoys the admiration, the approval, the interest manifested by man in things womanish, but, after all, she admires most the manly man. Knowledge of things within the woman's realm does not necessitate man's being himself effeminate.

Have a little thought of the fitness of things. Exploit a few fancies, if necessary, but deserve the words: "A man's a man for a' that, and a' that, and a' that."

Mr. and Mrs. Norris Jensen have returned from a pleasant outing at their houseboat on Coos River. Mrs. Jensen succeeded in landing some big fish during her stay.

Mrs. Chas. B. Selby returned this week from Oklahoma and Philadelphia where she has spent the summer with relatives. Mr. Selby met her in Portland.

A social event of the week at Coquille in which many Coos Bay people will be interested, will take place next Wednesday, October 26, when Miss Emma Sherwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sherwood, becomes the bride of Lawrence A. Liljeqvist. Miss Sherwood is a grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Rogers Sr., of Coos River and Mr. Liljeqvist is a former Marshfield attorney.

Miss Cora May Montgomery, who left last Saturday after spending the summer with relatives here, will visit in Los Angeles and in Texas before returning to her home in Decatur. R. R. Montgomery and wife, who left with her will visit in Los Angeles. It is not improbable that R. R. Montgomery will move here from Decatur next year and make his home on Coos Bay.

Last Saturday afternoon, Mrs. C. S. Winsor was hostess to a delightfully informal sewing party at her home there. It had been planned to make the affair much larger complimentary to Mrs. Geo. Langford and Mrs. Robt. Tyrell of Oakland, who are guests of Mrs. L. J. Simpson, but Mrs. Tyrell had to leave early Saturday and so the plans were changed. The afternoon was spent at needlework following which refreshments were served. Among Mrs. Winsor's invited guests were Mrs. Wahn, Mrs. J. R. Smith, Mrs. L. F. Falkenstein, Mrs. M. E. Everett, Mrs. R. A. Wernich, Mrs. Geo. Langford, Mrs. C. M. Byler, Mrs. Frank Frame, Mrs. L. J. Simpson and Mrs. E. H. Jones.

George Langford of Oakland, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Simpson of North Bend, for the past few weeks, will leave shortly for his home, but Mrs. Langford will remain until Thanksgiving or thereabouts.

Miss Mamie Mahoney returned this week from a few weeks' visit at Portland and other northern cities.

Mrs. M. A. McLeod and Mrs. W. P. Murphy are expected home in a few days from San Francisco where they have been spending a few weeks.

The A. N. W. club held a most pleasant session with Mrs. L. M. Noble Thursday. Mrs. M. C. Maloney was elected to membership. The selection of a treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. R. F. Gebhardt was postponed until the next meeting. Mrs. A. T. Haines and Mrs. P. M. Wilbur were guests of the club. Delicious refreshments were served. The next meeting place will be announced later.

Miss Genevieve Sengstacken, who had planned to leave today for a visit in Portland and other northern points has postponed her trip a week. Mrs. Henry Sengstacken has been unwell for several days, but is improving.

Miss Mamie Gulovsen has returned from an extended visit in Portland. Mrs. G. R. Gulovsen and children returned with her to visit on the Bay for awhile.

Mrs. Sarah Baines and her daughter, Mrs. Flanagan, left this week for their home in San Francisco after a few weeks' visit on the Bay.

J. R. Smith has sold his home in North Bend to G. W. Sheely of Marshfield, who will shortly occupy it. Mrs. Smith and the children will spend the winter in San Francisco and Mr. Smith may go there to make his permanent home. The departure of the estimable couple will be greatly regretted on the Bay where they have made many friends.

The Progress Club will be entertained next Monday by Mrs. E. G. Flanagan at her home.

This afternoon, Mrs. W. T. Merchant is hostess at one of the biggest social events of the season at her home in Marshfield.

Mrs. G. A. Bennett and Mrs. Robert Kendall Booth have issued invitations for bridge next Thursday afternoon at the Bennett home.

Mrs. M. R. Smith has been quite ill at her home in Marshfield the past few weeks. Her daughter, Mrs. Dungan, is here from Coos River attending her.

Mrs. C. E. Nicholson expects to leave shortly for San Francisco and California points for a short visit.

Helen May, the five-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Adelsperger, was baptized last Sunday.
