HE WOULDN'T LISTEN.

It Pays Generally to Hear What the Other Fellow Has to Say.
The benevolent looking old gentleman entered the shoe store and, meeting the proprietor near the door, began: "Good morning, sir. I wish to speak to you about a pair of shoes and rubbers I bought here a couple of days ago. They are"—
"You'll have to see the clerk who sold them to you," the merchant answered very snappishly. "I don't know anything about them."
"But I desire to say to you personally that"—
"Now, look here, I can't be bothered over every pair of laces or box of polish my clerks sell. Just see the young man who waited upon you. He's around somewhere."
"Yes, I see him there at the back end of the store, but I really felt that it was my duty to tell you about it. You see"—
"If I stood around listening to everybody who comes into this store to complain that they've bought something they didn't want or that they've been slighted, as they think, by my clerks I wouldn't have time for anything else. You'll please excuse me. The clerk will hear your complaints, and if there is anything we can do you may be sure it will be done. But we can't take back even a pair of rubbers after they have been out of the store two or three days. You can surely see that if we did business in such a way"—
"My dear sir, I don't want you to take back the rubbers, and I haven't any complaint to make. I merely wished to tell you that I found the shoes and rubbers about the best in their line I ever purchased. I believe in the principle of giving praise whenever it may be fairly given, and I stepped in to order some more goods, but I see you're too busy to bother with such a trifle this morning, so I will be going."—Shoe Trade Journal.

CATALOGUE BUYING.

Many Disappointments Resulting From Sending Money Away.
There are limits to the possibilities of making purchases from no better guide than a catalogue picture, and many must be the disappointments resulting from it. Suppose that the trusting woman's eye is taken with the print of a gown described by the optimistic recorder of such things as Alice blue. It sounds safe. Blue has always been her color, and she fills out the blank. Then comes the business of choosing the hat that is to go with it and supplement its work of electrifying the citizens of the hamlet in which she lives. And of course there is a hat that just suits, and the text promises that it will be furnished in any one of six colors, one of them being provisionally Alice blue. Gloves, veil and parasol, all of them are supplied by the merchant in the same lovely shade, and it looks as if a costume of surpassing beauty and completeness were about to be acquired.
Later it arrives, all its several parts intact and "just as advertised." But, oh, shades of Alice, can it be that the daughter of a president lent the sanction of her name to this variety of blues—blues that represent almost the whole gamut of tints and in combination are nothing short of distressing?—New York Herald.

Plan to Enthuse Civic Pride.

The Houston (Tex.) Business league has adopted some novel ideas as regards its letterheads. The envelopes and letterheads used for correspondence within the city are replete with a number of quotations estimated to enthuse the people of Houston with a pride in their city. Among these quotations are the following: "Build and Boost," "Use the Ship Channel," "Not For Self, but For All," "What Helps Our City Helps You," "Greater Prosperity Through a Greater Houston," "Build More Factories and Increase the Tin Bucket Brigade." The letterhead used for out of town work is altogether different. It talks of, and not to, Houston. "Where seventeen railroads meet the sea," is the burden of the tale it carries. It tells in statistics of Houston—now and future. Down at the bottom it all ends, "A City of Unlimited Manufacturing Opportunities. Come and Blow Your Whistle With Us."

The Town Knocker.

Bury the knocker out in the woods in the beautiful hole in the ground, where bumblebee bums and the woodpecker, slugs and the straddle bugs tumble around. He's no good to the town—he's bummy and practically dead—yet he wants the whole earth, inclosed with a fence, and the stars that shine over his head. They hustle him off to the boneyard and bury him there good and deep. Let him lie on his back with his toes sticking up and everlastingly sleep. He's no good on earth; he's a Jonah, a pest to all decent folks. If he's troubled with living we'll not miss him a bit when he croaks.—Boone (Ia.) Independent.

Value of Trees in Streets.

A local instance is known of a man who purchased three lots in a new tract in Los Angeles, the middle one of which was directly behind a huge live oak tree which had been left in the street and neatly curbed. He was asked why he chose those lots, the highest priced on the street (for the first owner also had an appreciation of tree value), and he replied: "On account of that beautiful tree." It will also shut off from view at least two houses on the other side of the street from each one of my lots. We will then always feel more like being out in the country, with less of city artificiality."

GIRL GUIDES FOR YANKEELAND

British Movement Expected to Spread to This Country.

NOW that the boy scout movement has gained such a firm start in this country we may hope to have soon a "girl guide" brigade also, as they have in England.
The girls of the nation need moral training as much as the boys.
The members of the English girl guide brigade are taught to cultivate the qualities of self reliance, energy and thrift. They learn the womanly duties of cooking, nursing, etc. The days of camp life give them experience in farming, gardening, etc. Finally, the girl guide's business is to make herself generally handy by learning useful occupations and handwork. She may obtain badges of efficiency for ambulance work and as a naturalist, a cook, a matron, a musician, a nurse, a farmer, a needlewoman, a swimmer and a host of other capacities. Moral training is not neglected. It is in the hands of the captain of the company and is designed to fall into two phases, the first teaching "a knowledge of God through nature study," while the second is concerned with "chivalry, charity and helpfulness."
Girls are enrolled as guides between the ages of eleven and eighteen. Eight form a patrol, which is in the care of a patrol leader, who must be over fifteen. Three patrols or more form a company, with captain and lieutenant, who are to be over twenty-one. The training is to be organized by local committees of ladies, to whom a girl must produce a letter of consent from her parents before she can be enrolled.
To Smoke or Not to Smoke.
And still the cigarette and the anti-cigarette factions wage a fierce war, which almost leaves suffrage in the background. Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, probably much against her will, has been made the leader of the cigarette movement. By that is meant that the leaders of the opposition say her example causes the women of America to smoke.
Miss Mary F. Bulcomb, president of the Young People's Civic league, is the head of the anti-cigarette crusade.
She says emphatically: "Cigarette smoking for women is disgusting. There can be nothing pleasing about it. A woman smokes because before she realizes it she is in the toils of the habit."
In the meantime jewelers report that never before has there been such a demand for gold and silver smoking articles for ladies as this season.
Next—the Woman Jockey.
The woman jockey is the next proposition we shall have to face. The society woman jockey is here to stay. At several races held at Aiken and at well known country clubs she has made her mark, and now it remains for the professional to make good. Recently a dispatch appeared in the news columns of a New York paper announcing that next season would probably see the "trying out" of a number of ambitious girls who aspired to become jockeys.

MAUD ROBINSON.

School Children's Health.

Many a chill is caught by children sitting in wet shoes and damp clothes all day at school. The floor draft and the damp footgear sometimes combine to lay the seeds of rheumatism and even consumption.
