

PRESIDENT TAFT URGES THAT TRUST LEGISLATION CEASE

Wants Confidence of Capital in American Investments Strengthened.

TARIFF BILLS TO GO OVER ONE YEAR

Says Great Value of Farm Crop Foretells Very Prosperous Future For Nation.

(Special to The Times.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6.—The outstanding features of President Taft's message sent to congress today are these.

He declares it is time to stop legislation with reference to regulation of corporations and to witness the effect of a vigorous execution of the laws already on the statute books, saying the exact limitations upon business methods imposed by law will doubtless be made clearer by pending decisions of the supreme court.

Just at this time, the president says, he believes the activities of the government, in addition to the enforcement of the laws, should be directed toward economy of administration, the enlargement of opportunities for foreign trade, the building up of home industry and the strengthening of the confidence of capital in domestic investments.

Mr. Taft recommends strongly some form of a ship subsidy to increase American shipping, especially to South America.

No Tariff Legislation. The tariff board is not ready to submit a report on any of the schedules of the Payne law and Mr. Taft says he will not recommend any tariff legislation until the new congress convenes in December 1911. He urges that the tariff board be made permanent and that all future revisions be made schedule by schedule. He vigorously opposes any general revision.

The Panama Canal should be funded and an appropriation of $19,000,000 is recommended for this purpose.

Cut Out Pork Barrel. There must be no more "pork barrel" methods in river and harbor and public building bills. The latter should be based upon the report of a commission of experts. In the past, congress has appropriated too much for buildings not needed and not enough for buildings badly needed. His recommendation for anti-inflation and federal incorporation laws are renewed.

It is proposed that second-class mail rates shall be readjusted so as to charge magazines a much higher rate on their advertising sections. Strong representations are made for the establishment of a new banking and currency system.

Two new battleships and several auxiliary vessels are urged for the navy.

The President recommends that coal, phosphate and oil lands and water power sites be disposed of in the future by leasing.

The estimates for government expenditures during the next fiscal year, have been cut to $830,494,012.12, which is $52,984,887.36 less than the actual appropriations for the current year. The estimated receipts for the next fiscal year are $850,000,000.

The President urges the extension of the civil service principle to the diplomatic and consular corps and the acquisition by the government of residences and offices for its diplomatic officers.

Some criticisms of the Payne tariff act are just, says the President, but none are unfounded.

There should be more officers for the Army, the engineer corps should be increased by 60. The fortifications at Corregidor Island, Manila, and Hawaii Islands should be completed.

Panama Canal. Regarding the Panama Canal, the President says, the progress of the Bristow of Kansas Declares People Throughout Country Are Demanding It.

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 5.—White House was the mecca of many "insurgents" republicans today. Some said they were invited by the President. Bristow of Kansas, was among the first callers. He was followed by Representatives Norris, Murdock, Madison and Hayes. They said they talked with President Taft about features of the message and also about vacancies on the supreme court bench. Although they admit efforts at conciliation are in the air, the "insurgents" continue to sing militant songs. Murdock said he had traveled all over the country the last three months, and that he knew the temper of the people. "They want the woolen schedule revised at this session of congress regardless of whether the tariff board is ready to report," he said. "Everybody is talking about wool and revision of the tariff, one schedule at a time. They are willing to wait for the tariff board on all schedules except wool. And when the schedule is revised, the people want the woolen cloth tagged to show the amount of wool and the amount of cotton in it. 'The people want the congress to do something and quit talking so much. The political unrest of the people is not partisan. The people also have their eyes on the higher courts and they do not want a decision rendered merely on technicalities.' Bristow urged President Taft to appoint Judge Hoek, of the Eighth United States Circuit Court, to the supreme bench. Bristow will oppose ship subsidy, will advocate fortification of the Panama Canal, and will fight for a permanent tariff commission.

Judge not, that ye be not judged. "For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged; and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured unto you again."

Matthew vii: 1, 2.

IT MAY take long years of experience to discover the fact that a man's relation to the world is a matter of attitude. The natural inclination is to regard one's position as wholly subject to fortuitous circumstances; and to believe that whatever of success a man may ultimately attain is but the balancing of accounts between the favorable opportunities and the unfavorable conditions with which he has had to deal.

So far as we know, the human mind is the only creative force which the world knows today. The law of the conservation of energy demonstrates that all matter and all force now in existence has always been in existence, and that all that has happened since creation has been merely interchanging in forms of the original materials and forces of which this universe was created.

This axiom, which is the fundamental doctrine of the laws of nature, has no application to the possibilities of that great human trinity, the mind, heart and courage of a man. The first words of the Bible are "In the beginning, God created." The one exclusive function of divinity is that of creation, and the human soul, as the offspring of divinity, comes into this power by right of inheritance.

It is given us to create good or evil by our thoughts, our action and our attitude toward our fellow man.

In one of the new books there is a strong character who admonishes his favorite nephew with the political and philosophical advice: "There is a time to be silent and a time to speak out." It was the guiding rule of his common-sense plan of existence, and he impressed it on his relative. The Times has been silent for some time on a very evident evil of Marshfield but believes the time has come to speak out.

I refer to a disgraceful, disreputable and despicable publication issued in this city, a publication which shall remain nameless because it is unspeakable, and its sponsors are equally characterless. I have refrained from referring to this vile and vicious sheet because I did not desire to dignify its disreputableness. Its sponsors are so lost to a sense of decency and honor that they would sell their spark of manhood for the flock of ash from a cheap cigar and the purchaser would even then be cheated. This venomous sheet like a slimy serpent crawls and creeps from the sewer to poison and make putrid all who come in contact with it. Themselves reeking with the rottenness of their own demoralization, the men behind it fill it with a filth that exudes from every line. I have hesitated to mention it even to condemn until the appalling awfulness of it is such that someone must speak out. I shall speak this once. There will be no controversy and no discussion. Regardless I shall pass this matter up to the people of this city. It is a reflection on every man and woman in Marshfield that such a thing should exist in this community.

Every one of us must bear a portion of the burden of the shame of its presence. That it should be tolerated is due to a criminal indifference. The men responsible have mistaken this toleration for approval and have become bolder and bolder in their work of contamination and corruption. If there were the saving grace of wit in its suggestiveness or cleverness or capability evident in its coarseness there might be excuse for its existence. There is neither. It contains nothing but the venal viciousness of vulgarity. It reeks with putridity and poison.

I am certain that the people of this community have not a realization of its true viciousness or they would not tolerate it. Respectable and reputable business men have loaned it the approval of their name and money under a misapprehension; others through fear and falseness. To their credit be it said many others have refused to be bluffed, blackmailed or bulldozed by the depraved dupe who gives it a habitation and a name.

If there were a case of leprosy in Marshfield there would be great excitement. Health officers and physicians would be busy. This is worse a thousand times. Leprosy destroys only men's bodies—such a contaminating influence destroys men's souls and the souls of boys and girls growing into young manhood and womanhood.

A nest of vipers from the slimy depths of which would issue serpents to sink their poison fangs into the bodies of boys and girls and men and women of this community would be much safer than this monster that poisons young and innocent minds with lewd, low and loathsome tales of disgraceful debaucheries. The business men and the fathers and mothers of Marshfield owe it to the boys and girls to suppress this monstrous thing. Its viciousness is so unspeakable that a copy in any man's hands should be regarded as a badge of shame and a business man's announcement a proclamation of infamy and dishonor.

I am convinced there is sufficient honest and honorable manhood and virtuous womanhood in this community to discredit and destroy this vile viper that attempts to corrupt and contaminate the youth and homes of the city with its coarse and suggestive scandals and slanders. Any man who has a daughter whose virtue he seeks to protect or a son whose honor is his hope will refuse to further tolerate a menace to that which is dearer to him than life. Let every one who, after a knowledge of its viciousness, continues to support it be made to feel the ignominy of its shame.

I yield to no one in my belief in the liberty of the press. But liberty is not license. It is not a newspaper but an open sewer. The truth is not found in telling tales of viciousness and vulgarity. It cannot be tolerated without the whole community suffering. I am certain of the supremacy of man's better nature and the existence of this venal and vile publication can be only temporary. There must be an end to the corruption and coarseness that has already been operated to the limit of human endurance.

It is the privilege of every man who will, to look out upon the world as a great field of opportunity in which he may do something that no other man has ever done. Let it not be supposed that the field for original endeavor has any limitations. The prodigality of resource that makes no two leaves exactly alike, of all the millions that clothe the trees, has also made it possible for every individual to occupy a place in the great living universe which he need share with no one else, but let it be a place of honor and not disrepute. It is his privilege, if he will, to do something of lasting benefit to the world; something that is exactly suited to his peculiar powers of mind and heart. But that which he accomplishes is governed, or let us say regulated, by his attitude toward the world in which he lives.

To look a little more closely into one's mental processes, this fact becomes obvious, that the greatest of all the laws of mind and heart is that of reciprocity. We live to give, that we may also greatly get in return. A man's mind is a delicately organized living mechanism, through which the inspirations, the suggestions, the affections and the camaraderie of all the world may enter in the measure that it is welcomed, and pass out again a living product, molded, shaped and colored according to the individual.

With all the centuries of the past as an inheritance, and all the living present as an inspiration, it is the privilege of the individual to take his place in the center of the universe, and, passing all that the world has for him through his own heart, give it back again, clothed in his own individuality, the product of his own life. And every in-

Sam Marsden.

Robert Marsden, Jr., has purchased The Royal Theatre from his brother, Sam Marsden, and has taken possession of the popular moving picture show.

Besides operating The Royal, Mr. Marsden expects to go ahead with his new showhouse, The Grand, in the quarters formerly occupied by the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce and will conduct both of them.

Sam Marsden has not announced what his future plans are.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT.

The Redondo is scheduled to sail Wednesday for San Francisco and Bay Point.

The M. F. Plant which has been overhauled in San Francisco will sail from here for Coos Bay, Wednesday afternoon, December 7, at 3 o'clock, all repairs having been completed.

The Nann Smith sailed yesterday afternoon for San Francisco with a large cargo of lumber for Bay Point. C. A. Smith was the only passenger. He will return to Minneapolis and expects to be back on the Bay in six weeks or so.

The Alliance is due in early tomorrow from Eureka. Her schedule called for her to reach here today in time to sail from here for Portland but the delays on the Columbia river caused a delay in her return trip.

The Alliance arrived here early Sunday from Portland and sailed a few hours later for Eureka. She had a large number of passengers from Portland for Eureka and a good cargo of freight. She had considerable freight for Coos Bay and a few passengers. Several traveling men boarded her here for Eureka.

Probably Will Not Exceed 600 In Today's Contest For Office.

WILL PROBABLY BE CLOSE ON COUNCILMEN

None of Candidates Overly Sure of Outcome of Balloting Here.

The Marshfield city election is in progress today and the vote cast promises to be close to 600 but probably will not exceed that number. Up to 1 o'clock, 225 votes had been cast.

Voting was pretty rapid, the ballot being easily marked. The polls opened at 9 o'clock and will close at 6 o'clock.

The only contest is for councilman and none of the candidates appeared to be overly sure of the outcome. The contest will, unless the guesses of most of the people hazarding them, be pretty close. There is also considerable guessing as to whether Going and Frizeen will be voted as one ticket and Copple and Ferguson the other.

Messrs. Pennock, Wolcott and Pennock are the judges and Roy Law-horne, C. H. Marsh and John Merchant are the clerks.

The count will probably be very rapid and the result should be known along about 10 o'clock.

City Recorder Butler is without opposition for reelection. The vote last year totalled about 750.

NO ACTION ON TAFT'S ADVICE

Urged Can Be Secured This Session.

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6.—Congress gave respectful attention to President Taft's message and, but comparatively few members were willing to concede the probability of favorable action at the present session on many of the recommendations contained therein. This was in view of the fact that the session will close March 4th. The message was delivered in both houses by Secretary Latta soon after noon. The reading of the document, which was of unusual length began at 12:19 in the Senate. At first, it was listened to most attentively but gradually the attention ceased on the part of most of them and those who remained in the Chamber devoted themselves to the printed copies before them. This was also the case in the House.

NEW SENATORS IN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6.—Immediately after the convening of the Senate, the oath was administered to Claude A. Swanson, successor to John W. Daniel of Virginia, Joseph M. Terrell, successor to Senator Clay of Georgia, and Lafayette Young, successor to Dolliver of Iowa. The oath was administered by the vice-president.

Out of respect to the memory of four members of the House who died during the recess of congress, the Senate took adjournment today at the conclusion of the reading of the President's message. For the first time in a long while the House today began business without asking divine guidance. The chaplain was delayed by a snow storm. The clerk was reading the journal when the chaplain arrived and later he delivered the prayer.
