Woman's World

No More Flossie's Fair—Miss Libbey's Stopped Writing Novels.

MISS LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

Terrible calamity!
Girls, it's something awful!
Laura Jean Libbey has written her last book.
Positively her last!
Her press agent says so.
Georgiana, the beautiful silk spinner, will never again clasp Alexander Algonon Du Bois Vere de Vere in her strong young arms while the liquid starlight flames in the burning depths of her lapis lazuli orbs. Alas, how perfectly horrible if true! No more marriages of gartered dukes to the sweet singing little canary in the chambre de cuisine. Never no more will the proud earl discard his son and heir and cut him off with a shoe button for marrying the lodgekeeper's magnificently plebeian adopted daughter who eventually turns out to be a lost duchess and heiress to all the coffee lands in Brazil.
L. J. Libbey's threat must carry connotation to every kitchen in the land, and 10,000,000 factory girls will tear their hair with pitiful wails when they get the stupendous news.
And what will the distinguished authoress-vaudevillian turn her pen to now?
Hist! She e'en will become a playwright. The playwright hanker grips her soul and mayhap she will strip the brows of Theodore Kremer and Owen Davis, vaudeville playwrights, of their toilsomly won laurels.

What Women Are Doing.
There is to be a lady chapel in the new Liverpool cathedral, for which is planned a scheme of stained glass windows commemorating the deeds of good women. On one the inscription reads, "Queen Victoria and All Noble Queens," and others are inscribed: "Grace Darling and All Courageous Women," "Catherine Gladstone and All Loyal Hearted Wives," "Elizabeth Barrett Browning and All Women Who Have Seen the Infinite in Things."

Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, it is reported, will be appointed policewoman of Los Angeles, Cal. It was Mrs. Wells' efforts, backed by the ministers and clubwomen, that caused the ordinance to be passed creating the office of policewoman in Los Angeles.

"My work is to be chiefly where young people gather for entertainment in parks, penny arcades, moving picture shows and dance halls," Mrs. Wells explained when asked to talk about her new work. "I will deal chiefly with the proprietors of such places and will see that all laws are obeyed and the places are kept clean and moral."

Although Miss Clara Barton, the founder of the Red Cross society in the United States, is ninety-one, she still takes personal charge of one of the branches of the society. Miss Barton's relief work dates back to the civil war, when she became a nurse on the battlefields and organized searching parties for missing soldiers.

Still a Housekeeper at 104.
Living far up in the Allegheny mountains is a remarkable woman who is more than 104 years old. She has the proofs of her age, and the inhabitants for miles around gather on Aug. 2 each year to make merry on her birthday and to express hope that she may live many more years. She is Mother Shoemaker, and her home is near Dubois, Pa. She was born in 1806. Bent with her years, but happy and contented, she sits in a tiny house built in the mountains. She does not have a housekeeper or a servant. She says she is strong enough to do her own work and to attend to her wants. It would not bother her she did not have an income for her support. She says she could earn her own living without any trouble. She has lived the simple life. She has worked in the fields, and she has been a mother.

What a Pleasure It Is

To know that every time you bake you are absolutely sure your bread, biscuit and pastry are going to be just as good as you know how to make them. There is only one way to be sure. That is to be sure that the flour you use is always the same. Every sack of Snow Drift Flour is just the same as every other sack. A baking of bread is made at the mill's bake shop or every batch of flour made for Snow Drift. That baking has to show that the flour is up to standard. If it isn't it is thrown out. It never goes into a Snow Drift sack. Snow Drift is not a bleached flour. It is naturally white. Made from the finest, selected, Northwestern grown, Blue Stem wheat. A trial of one sack will convince you of its advantages over other brands.
