GOOD NEWS.

THAT was very gratifying news printed in The Times the other evening making authoritative denial of the rumor that the C. A. Smith Lumbering and Manufacturing Company was considering the closing of its Marshfield mills. It was gratifying not only to the people of Marshfield and Coos Bay but every part of Coos county for all share in the prosperity of this large and splendid industry. Coming directly from Mr. C. A. Smith made it doubly gratifying for it was authentic and authoritative.

The rumor doubtless originated in the knowledge given out that the mill is to close between Christmas and New Year's to make some necessary repairs preparatory to a long winter's run. The rumor doubtless gained more ready credence because of the fact that the lumber market is demoralized and the majority of the mills in Washington and other parts of Oregon are closed or preparing to close. That the C. A. Smith Company will continue its operation despite adverse conditions is a tribute at once to the splendid optimism as well as the resource and ability of its head and founder, Mr. C. A. Smith.

While the east in general and many Pacific coast communities have been feeling the squeeze of times not so prosperous and the uneasiness of a restless condition in the financial centers, Coos Bay has been happily free from any disturbing influences, due to the stability of its industries and the ability of their management.

Coos Bay owes a debt of gratitude to the C. A. Smith and L. J. Simpson and other concerns in the lumber business on Coos Bay for their courage and ability in meeting the present condition of the depressed lumber market of the country.

COOS COUNTY SHOWING.

Oregon's census figures for 1910 show that the state has 15 counties with populations of over 16,000 each. These same counties also led in the census of ten years ago, but there are several changes of relative standing now. Douglas still ranks ninth, the same as in 1900 and 1890. Washington has advanced from tenth to seventh, and Jackson from eleventh to fifth. Umatilla drops from sixth to eighth, Union from seventh to 14th, and Baker from eighth to eleventh. Coos advances from 15th to 12th, passing Clatsop, Union and Wasco, in which are located, respectively, the cities of Astoria, La Grande and The Dalles. It presents one of the surprises of the census and has only 117 less population than Baker county and but 326 below Yamhill.—Roseburg Review.

PLAN FOR CONCERT.

Chaminade Club Hopes For Big Attendance.

The entertainment which will be given by the Chaminade Club, Wednesday evening, December 14, will be an event which deserves the patronage of everyone in the city who appreciates good music. The club has gone to no little expense in securing Mrs. May Dearborn-Schwab, the lyric soprano of Portland, who will be the chief attraction of the concert. She will give a number of selections and in addition there will be songs by the club chorus.

The members of the chorus have been rehearsing for some time past preparatory to the entertainment. Mrs. William Horsfall, Jr., is the director of the chorus and Miss Edna Larson is the accompanist. The other members are Mrs. Perl Riley Ballinger, Mrs. John S. Coke, Miss Clara Myren, Miss May Stauff, Mrs. Charles Stauff, Mrs. R. J. Montgomery, Mrs. J. V. Smeaton, Mrs. E. L. Robinson, Miss Esther Johnson, Mrs. M. H. Bliven, Mrs. Beatrice Walters, Mrs. R. T. Street, Mrs. J. T. Hall and Mrs. Benjamin Ostlund.

The Chaminade Club has always had the reputation of giving high class entertainments but on this occasion the concert, it is believed will surpass anything that has ever before been attempted. The members of the club do not give their concerts for the purpose of making money but their idea is wholly to give the people an opportunity of attending a high class musical entertainment. They hope merely to make enough money from the sale of tickets to defray the expenses.

HAS LARGEST PANTATORIUM

J. D. Falconer, Proprietor of Unique Pantatorium, Builds Up Big Business.

The Unique Pantatorium, now owned by J. D. Falconer, is the largest and best equipped cleaning, pressing and clothing repairing establishment, not only in Marshfield but in the southern part of the state. The place was formerly conducted by D. A. Foote who sold it to J. D. Falconer and D. F. Cooley. Recently Mr. Falconer bought out his partner and is the sole owner. He has been connected with similar establishments and laundries for the past ten years and thoroughly understands the business. On acquiring the shop, the new owner made a considerable financial outlay in adding machinery which would enable him to handle a class of work which is beyond the ordinary shop. He has put in a large steam boiler and an extractor for steam cleaning. He has five persons in his employ, including solicitors who are engaged in securing business in the bay cities.

The establishment is located on Central avenue opposite and a little west of the Chandler hotel. There are four rooms devoted to the work, two pressing rooms and two cleaning rooms. A handsome mirror, new electric irons, tables and other apparatus have been added, and the entire place has been remodeled. Clothing of all kinds is cleaned, pressed and repaired and besides any kind of cleaning can be done. Kid gloves, ladies' garments and the most delicate fabrics can be handled. There is also an equipment for renewing and reblocking old hats. All of these lines are made possible only by the installing of the new and up to date machinery and apparatus.

A specialty is made of calling for and delivering goods to be handled. The Pantatorium has a telephone, No. 250, and any calls will be given prompt attention.

Mr. Falconer has the best of help and thoroughly understanding the business himself, is with the equipment he has purchased able to do first class work. His place is one which will be found very useful and is a credit to the business of the city.

FOR GOOD ROADS.

Douglas County Court Urged to Improve Coos Bay Road.

The Roseburg News says: "According to Mr. Barnard between 1500 and 2000 people were transported by stage over the Marshfield road during the four months ending November 1, nearly all of whom were obliged to spend more or less money in Roseburg enroute. Mr. Barnard, like hundreds of other citizens, believes that the county court of Douglas county should cooperate with the court of Coos county in the improvement of the main line roads to the coast and thus assure a continuance of the mail route as well as the transportation of passengers between Roseburg and Marshfield. In the event the roads are allowed to become impassable it will be necessary to cease the operation of stages, meaning that Roseburg and Marshfield will lose thousands of dollars annually. This is a matter that should receive the attention of the county court of Douglas county without unnecessary delay.

INK STAINS.

How to Take Them Out of White Materials by Simple Methods.

To remove ink stains from white materials before the ink is quite dry sprinkle it with salt and rub with half a lemon or even squeezed rind. Rinse off the acid and wash at once. While the ink stains are wet a good plan is to sprinkle some powdered chalk or starch on the spot and moisten with milk.

When ink stains are fresh they may be removed by dipping the stained part into buttermilk or milk that has been boiled. Change the milk frequently and then wash the article well.

When ink has been allowed to get dry place the stained part on a saucer containing a little boiled water, moisten the stains and cover with oxalic acid. Let it remain a few minutes, then pour boiling water on carefully to prevent the acid from spreading, as it will burn and rot the dry threads.

It is advisable for this reason that the article should be well rinsed in warm water. Pour a few drops of chlorinated soda upon dry ink spots. If the first application does not remove the stain try a little more liquid. Wash immediately.

The chlorinated soda is cheap, 10 cents' worth being enough to last for some time. This preparation is a poison and should not be left within the reach of children. It is excellent for linen or cotton, but will destroy silk fabrics. Muriatic acid is most useful in removing red ink stains.
