BONDING FOR ROADS.

DOUGLAS county, Oregon, is the first to awaken to the opportunity offered by the new law passed by the people of the state permitting the several counties to bond themselves for the construction of permanent highways within their borders.

Considering the fact that Coos county, within the past ten years has expended one-half this sum on its roads and has little to show for it in the way of a completed route of travel that is useable in winter.

We believe that it would pay our people to delve into the matter with a view of securing direct, well-made, permanent, carefully-engineered roads along the following lines.

We do not know what the cost of a modern system of roads would be, but we do know that $500,000 spent in this public service would be infinitely productive of real good to the whole people.

MARY BAKER EDDY.

A GREAT and good woman has passed to that bourne whence no word nor soul, has returned. She laid down one of the greatest and grandest tasks ever conceived by mortal mind, the creation of a church and creed that shall make mankind better and happier.

fluence for good; and though we speak as one uninitiated and in an wholly exclusive sense, we cannot refuse to concede to this woman the full measure of her splendid concept and achievement.

Hundreds and thousands of people have been aided and redeemed through the gospel of peace and spiritual cleanliness taught by this leader and teacher; it were folly to gainsay such a conclusion, and its admission seals her right to the best claim that can be made for her.

Some will differ with the Christian Science estimate of Mrs. Eddy, others condemn the pretensions of her faith, but no one can deny the tremendous power of her teachings.

A MUSICAL EVENT.

Musical people of the city will take much interest in the performance of Mrs. Perl Riley Ballinger, the Marshfield pianist, who will take part in the entertainment to be given next Wednesday evening by the members of the Chaminade club.

In addition to the selections by the club chorus and those by Mrs. May Dearborn-Schwab who is brought here from Portland by the members of the club, Mrs. Ballinger is on the program for a piano number. She will play Schubert's Impromptu Op. 90, in which her talent is shown to particularly good advantage.

"The variety of selections enabled Miss Riley to show her ability in many ways. She has a mastery technique and her renditions are at all times beautiful and intelligent.

Mrs. Ballinger's selection on the program at the concert is one of a collection of excellent ones.

BRIEFS OF BANDON.

News of City-By-the-Sea As Told By The Recorder.

Fish stories are always in order in Bandon as well as elsewhere, so here is a starter: A short time ago Gus Barre, one of our local fishermen, caught a Chinook salmon that tipped the beam at a trifle over 75 lbs.

A. L. Barnes had the misfortune to accidentally shoot himself in the leg while out squirrel hunting Saturday, with a 44 revolver. Luckily, it proved to be only a flesh wound and though it gives him much pain, he is able to walk around slowly and it is hoped that the wound will not prove serious.

The new officers of Bandon Grange as elected at their regular meeting last Saturday are: F. F. Eddy, Master; C. B. Zeek, Overseer; M. G. Fohl, Lecturer; J. F. Haga, Steward; D. H. Jackson, Sec.; Thos. Devereaux, Treas.; F. M. Sanderlin, Chaplin; Wm. H. Bates, Assistant Steward; Mrs. Canterbury, Lady Assistant Steward; E. M. Randleman, Gate keeper; Mrs. Cope, Flora; Mrs. Hunt, Pomona.

How to Remove Ink From Carpets. First pour cold water on the spot if it is a fresh one, taking it up with a spoon, which is pressed down into the pile of the carpet. Lay a cloth around the spot so it will not spread.

POULTRY SHOW — A GREAT SUCCESS. The beauty of the birds shown at the present Poultry Show is largely due to the fact that the poultry-raisers are using Prussian Poultry Tonic and Prussian Lice Killer, obtained at The Red CROSS DRUG STORE.

BROTHERS LONG APART UNITED

John Jewett of Coos County, Finds Relative in Roseburg Soldiers' Home.

ROSEBURG, Ore., Dec. 9.—Bent and enfeebled with old age, and evidencing the hardships endured in early life, Henry W. Jewett, aged 77 years, and John T. Jewett, aged 73 years, met at the Soldiers' Home this week after a separation of more than 50 years.

Henry W. Jewett, the older of the brothers, was born in Indiana, and when a mere child accompanied his parents, to Iowa, where John T. Jewett was born.

For a time they attended the Salem schools, but upon the breaking out of the war both enlisted, one proceeding north and the other south.

As near as can be ascertained Henry Jewett served during the Yakima Indian wars of 1855 and 1856, while his brother, John Jewett, served his country during both the Yakima and Rogue River Indian wars.

In the meantime Henry lived almost continuously in Clackamas county until August 11, 1909, when he became indispensed and was compelled to seek refuge in the Soldiers' Home where he has since resided.

Entertaining the belief that he would be able to eke out an existence, and thus escape the generous offer of state charity, John Jewett worked at odd jobs in Coos county until a few days ago, when he, like his senior brother, decided to apply for admittance at the Home.

During the day inmates of the Home learned that two men, both named Jewett, were included in the veteran family, and consequently it was arranged that they should meet. At first each appeared skeptical, and it was not until they had conversed for some time that they became convinced that they were brothers.

All afternoon the brothers sat quietly in their apartments at the Home and talked over happenings of their boyhood days. Each remembered vividly the scenes enacted during the early days in this state, and with misty eyes they spoke tenderly of their parents who long ago crossed the great divide.

Although the aged men appear somewhat broken from ill health, they still possess a good memory, and fully realize their miraculous meeting.

Henry Jewett was admitted to the Home from Clackamas county, and John T. Jewett from Coos county.

THE BEAR AND THE MORAL

We set the bear trap in the old hollow snag At the foot of the peak in the little fern sag We baited with venison, bacon rinds too, Not a very strong bait but thought it would do.

Old bruin had supped in the berry patch near, We noticed his sigh while out after deer, The berries were plenty he'd surely be back.

With his horse and his gun and little cur pup He found the trap gone some time by the look, Of the ground, torn up, by the end of the hook.

He tore up the bushes, he ripped up a log, And then he got fast by a hook on the clog, Took another direction and jerked his clog loose.

He heads for the canon, the poor devil knows There's water down there, where the willow bush grows, Some logs he rolled over then on through the bush

He takes the big clog it needs lots of push, At last he is anchored just below a big root His arm thru a tree fork the trap on his foot.

The old trapper goes track for the people from town, They wanted to kill a bear and thus gain renown For killing a bear, don't mention the trap, Old Nimrod was paid so he cared not a rap.

He was worried an hour, then shot in the back We all felt relieved at the rifles sharp crack, Now another exposure of bruin is had The bear and his slayer she was all kiki clad.

Moral—For the bear—Never follow up a bad odor. HUESAY.
