CRAWFORD'S OPINIONS ON OREGON'S COUNTY TAX LAW

Counties Have Exclusive Control Over Taxation, Subject to Law Voted by State as a Whole.
SALEM, Ore., Jan. 3.—In discussing the county tax or so-called single tax amendment Attorney-General Crawford passed on several features of it which have been puzzling the people of this and other states ever since the election. He holds that a county may declare what shall be taxed or exempted by school districts, cities or ports within its borders, subject in some instances to the charters or acts which are the fundamental law for the districts, cities or ports.

He also holds that it is possible for a county to initiate and adopt a measure regulating taxation or exemptions at the next election, even in the absence of a general statute prescribing a method of procedure. But, he states, the legislature may adopt a directing statute, this statute to prescribe the mode or method of procedure at the election to pass on the question of taxation or exemptions.

Voters-at-Large Have Voice.

The attorney-general is of the opinion that if the voters at large should adopt a law declaring what should not be exempted, that a county could not enact a valid measure in conflict with such general statute. But, on the other hand, counties may have exclusive control over taxations and exemptions in its own boundaries subject to any general law which may subsequently be enacted by the whole people.

In other words, it is held that the general law referred to in the amendment is to be in the nature of a directing statute prescribing the mode of procedure at such tax election and if passed by the whole people, as required, may regulate exemptions, but this clause in the amendment, the Attorney-General believes, does not restrict the people of counties from voting until such time as some general law or directing statute may be enacted.

One of the important amendments given out in respect to the amendment is the position taken by the Attorney-General that taxes cannot be levied so high under this amendment against any specific class of property, or any specific property, such as a railroad company, as to be confiscatory. He holds that the Federal Constitution would prohibit such a procedure and make it void.

Taxation Forms Prohibited.

Neither is it possible under the amendment, he states, for a county to levy taxes for the support of a church, labor organization, or other use not public.

In addition, he states the new amendment provides merely that the people may designate what shall be taxed and what shall be exempted. It, in no manner, provides for what the money shall be used, nor does it extend this privilege to the people of the counties, the taxes to be raised for public purposes only.

He states that it is possible some condition may arise out of this amendment which will result in the tax commission becoming ineffective and says there is a bare possibility of conditions becoming chaotic and such a wide range in system of taxation that no proportionate distribution of the burdens of state expenditure would be possible. This condition he cites, only as a possibility of the amendment.

He says counties may go ahead and make provision as to taxations and exemptions without the necessity of any general law which will change this or which may restrict this power in some manner.

Mr. Crawford says the next Legislature could submit at a special election a constitutional amendment re-measure.

HOLD MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT

Marshfield Chamber of Commerce to Hold Public Session Then.

A meeting of all the subscribers to the Chamber of Commerce and of the people of Marshfield generally will be held at the new quarters in the First Trust and Savings Bank building Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Matters of moment to Coos Bay will be discussed. Reports will be made by the executive committee and general plans for the coming year will be discussed.

"We want the public to turn out and offer any suggestions they may have for boosting Coos Bay," said Vice-president McKnight today. "We want to make the coming season the best ever and want to enlist the aid of every many interested in Marshfield, so we extend a cordial invitation to everyone to be in attendance Friday evening."
