Waives Right.—Judge C. A. Sehbredre has forwarded to the U. S. Court in Portland a waiver of his right to act as referee in bankruptcy in the Coos Bay Rapid Transit Co. case. Judge Sehbredre did not admit his ineligibility but as there was some objection he did not care to be the cause of a controversy.

Kick On Contract.—Messrs. Hope and several other Ten Mile ranchers were in Marshfield yesterday for the purpose of cancelling the purchase of a stallion from an outside syndicate. The horse was shipped here and the ranchers claim that the parties selling the stallion violated their agreement. The matter has stirred up considerable comment.

Damage Cut Glass.—Some one who evidently just secured a diamond ring is causing some trouble around town by boring little holes in the plate glass windows around town. Last night, two holes were cut in the plate glass in front of Bonebrake's meat market on Front street. If they are caught, it may take the price of their diamond ring to make restitution for the damage they are doing.

Jess Day Arrested.—Jess Day, the prize fighter, was arrested by Constable Cox today just as he was preparing to leave on the M. F. Plant for San Francisco. He was charged with being an absconding debtor by Mrs. Englund who claimed he owed her $76. Day was brought back to Justice Pennock's court and there he gave Mrs. Englund $30 in cash and Geo. Herron went on his note for the other $46. He made a wild rush to try and catch the Plant. Kid Williams and his manager, M. Murphy, also left on the Plant.

BURNT CORK.
 The Paste Used by Minstrel Performers When "Blacking Up."

The popular impression as to the application of burnt cork by minstrel performers and actors in general is that it is rubbed on the face and hands of the player from a cork whose end is charred in a convenient gas jet. This impression is, however, incorrect. The burnt cork used by minstrels and others is the product of the theatrical "paint factories," just as is any other cosmetic or pigment employed by the profession.

One house makes it in the following manner: The corks are placed in three tin vessels, resembling wash boilers, with holes punched in their sides and bottom. Alcohol is sprinkled over the corks, and they they are "dred." When the corks have been properly charred they are placed in muslin sacks, which are knoaded in barrels of water. This operation forces the powdered charcoal through the sacks into the water. When all the charred corks have been worked through the sacks into the water in this way the water is drained through a close canvas sack, and what remains in that sack is ready for the performers. The stuff is put up in cans, from which, when the minstrel is ready to "black up," he takes a little of the black paste in his hands and applies it to his face, neck and sometimes his hands.—New York Herald.

Henry of Navarre and the Red.
 Henry IV. of France was a firm believer in the adage, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." In a letter to the governor of his son he wrote in October, 1607: "Madame—I have to complain that you have not informed me of having fogged my son. I desire and request that you will flog him whenever he is disobedient or otherwise troublesome, knowing as I do that nothing will do him more good. I speak from experience, as at his age I was frequently birched."—Paris Gaulois.

HARBOR WORK TALKED OVER

tive to the facilities here for repairing ships. The information contained in the last bulletin told of conditions as they were about twenty or thirty years ago and do a great injustice to the harbor. A committee was appointed to take these up.

As soon as Mr. Dier's report is completed, copies of it will be forwarded to various members of Congress with requests that they do what is in their power for Coos Bay.

The Chamber of Commerce and Port of Coos Bay commission will unite in preparing an argument to Congress why Coos Bay is entitled to a larger appropriation. H. C. Diers suggested that in this attention should be called to the fact that the government holds over one billion feet of timber tributary to Coos Bay and that when the Panama canal is completed, the value of this stumpage will be increased at least fifty cents per thousand. This increase coupled with the toll that will be exacted for carrying it through the canal would net the government over $50,000,000 by having the Coos Bay harbor available.

Good Roads Work.

A communication from E. N. Harry of Sitkum setting forth conditions on the Coos Bay wagon road was read. Mr. Harry stated that the residents along the road were taxing themselves to the limit and this year proposed to vote a ten mill levy, raising about $10,000 for road improvements. This is to be used entirely for grading. He stated that about two and one-half miles of grade had not been planned and requested that the people of Marshfield should assist in the planning. He estimated it would cost $1,500 per mile to plank the road.

R. M. Jennings stated that Judge Hall, who recently made a trip over the road had been stuck in one of the mud holes and on his return had the county court appropriated $1,000 for temporary repair work on the road. Mr. Jennings said that Hugh McLain had made a trip out over the road this week and would make a detailed report of it on his return.

A letter from J. W. Bennett stating that J. N. Teal, the Oregon representative on the National Rivers and Harbors Congress had requested Coos Bay to raise $200 or $250 towards maintaining the organization. Last year, North Bend did not contribute anything and this year it was decided North Bend should be asked to contribute $75 and Marshfield the balance. M. C. Horton, Henry Sengstacken and C. C. Going were named as a committee to secure this.

For Publicity.

Alva Doll presented a letter from the manager of the publicity department of the Southern Pacific for "Community Advertising" which he was greatly in favor of. The Southern Pacific has been working this for towns along the line in conjunction with its Sunset Magazine. It costs from $1,200 to $3,000 to secure the advertising. The matter was referred to the executive committee for further investigation.

There was a fair attendance at last night's meeting which was held in the new quarters. The executive committee will meet regularly Friday evenings and it is proposed to hold public meetings from time to time.
