Mrs. E. R. Hodson and daughters, Erma and Irene, will spend a few days with relatives on South Coos River.

Horace Byler, who has spent the past few weeks with his aunt, Mrs. Geo. Langford at Stockton, Calif., returned yesterday.

The old North Bend mill which has been closed on account of the slippery condition of the wharf, expects to resume operations Monday.

Rev. A. D. MacLeod and Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Idaho, spent yesterday on South Coos River. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are looking over the country, with a view to locating here.

Mrs. Jessie Fritcroft of Bangor, who underwent a serious operation yesterday at the Mercy hospital, is still in a critical condition, but is reported to have had a fairly comfortable night.

The Presbyterian services for Sunday are as follows:

10 A. M.—Sunday school.
11 A. M.—Preaching service.
6:30 P. M.—Christian Endeavor.
7:30 P. M.—Preaching service.

Rev. A. D. MacLeod will conduct the services. All strangers are cordially invited to worship with us.

The entertainment and social given last evening under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. was a great success both socially and financially. The numbers were all well rendered. The address by Rev. MacLeod was both instructive and impressive. The solo by the county president, Mrs. E. McCray, was given in her usually pleasing manner. After the program refreshments were enjoyed by all.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

WRITES ABOUT WATER SYSTEM

Coos Bay Man Expresses His Views of the Situation Here.

Editor Times:

The article in The Times of recent date concerning the water system and its future development was a timely one and it behooves the citizens and the authorities to profit by the experience of other cities in Oregon and not to neglect this vital adjunct to a growing municipality. An adequate supply of pure water for all purposes.

The present supply may be enough for present purposes, but the "wise man makes provision for future contingencies," so also should a young and growing community.

Numerous cases can be cited among Oregon towns where this important factor has been neglected until it was almost too late, and the community was compelled to pay a fancy price for water rights which could have been secured for little or nothing a few years before.

Portland, even, was compelled to pay an extravagant price for the Bull Run site after trying in every way to use the Willamette river water. Eugene is up against the same problem now. Boiling and filtering make the fluid chemically pure, but nothing can take the place of the water drawn from the eternal springs gushing from the precipitous sides of the mountain ranges. Medford, another growing Oregon city, when at about the same stage of growth that Marshfield now is, thought "there was no hurry" about extending the, at that time existing, system, or of acquiring water rights for future use. When a year or two later the town commenced to grow, the citizens suddenly woke up to the fact that modern sewerage must replace the cesspool system and that water drawn from wells in a congested community was not the same as the "nectar that Jupiter sips."

The community also found that water rights covering the necessary quantity of water to provide for future use for a booming city were scarce and high priced. As a consequence the Medford water system has cost many thousands of dollars more than it would have cost if the water had been taken when it could have been had for the asking—practically, to say nothing of the lives sacrificed through the prevalence of typhoid for several months and the loss of desirable citizens, who came to invest, but refused to do so, when they learned of unsettled conditions in the matter of the water supply.

Marshfield is in practically the same condition as was Medford. The present supply is apparently adequate for present needs, but during the next few years the Coos Bay country will develop to fast that it will keep you stepping to be in sight of the procession all the time. Now is the time to go out and secure the water rights which will insure the city a supply of water, and no better investment was ever made by a city. The Medford system installed only a year, is paying interest on the half-million dollar investment and furnishing a surplus for the sinking fund each month. By the time the bonds have matured the indebtedness will have been wiped out, and in the mean while the people are furnished with pure water at a reasonable rate.

BORN.

MAYFIELD—To Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mayfield at their home, Fourth and Commercial, Friday, January 13, a nine-pound daughter. Mother and child are getting along fine and Mr. Mayfield who is office manager for F. S. Dow, is wearing a smile that will surely win the heart of the little maiden who is to be christened Vera Bernice Mayfield as well as thawing out any grrouch that weather conditions have inflicted on any Coos Bayite.

Repair Burner.—The big refuse burner at the C. A. Smith mill is undergoing repairs, many rivets in the water cooler jacket having given away. This has delayed the operations at the mill somewhat, it being difficult to cart the sawdust and refuse away.

Gets Damages.—Justice Pennock in the case of J. W. Hunt vs. Herbert Blake of Allegany has handed down a decision in favor of the plaintiff, awarding him $92, the amount sued for. The claim involved the building of a house at Allegany.

Sells Stock.—Geo. Goodrum and Thayer Grimes have disposed of the balance of the Frey bankrupt stock at North Bend to S. J. Immell, a recent arrival from the east, who will close out the present stock and conduct a shoe store and electrical shoe repairing business there.

Roses and Snow.—Mrs. James Forty of Bay Park today sent in a handsome bouquet of roses which were grown in the yard around her home. "Ask some of the people who are kicking about the weather if they can beat roses blooming out doors on January 13," said Mrs. Forty today. The snow and cold of the last few days has not even spoiled the roses.

Was Hoodoo Day.—Yesterday sure was hoodoo day if the believers in omens, signs, etc., are to be relied upon. Did you notice that was Friday and the thirteenth? Aside from being isolated from the rest of the world by having its mail shut off and telephone and telegraph communication cut off, Coos Bay in general did not suffer anything from the double hoodoo.

ABOUT THE TOWN.

"Speaking of the difficulties of getting mail through the mountains," said Charlie, the barber, as he adjusted the towel about the neck of the Cynic this morning, "makes me think of the time I spent up in Montana a few years ago."

"Were you ever in Montana?" asked the Cynic.

"Yes, I spent some of the best years of my life there," said Charlie.

"I went there at a time of year when the mountain flowers were in full bloom,—when the summer zephyrs went singing softly through the boughs of the pines,—when the Commercial clubs were sending on literature ascribing to Montana a climate invigorating, healthful and pleasant." "It was, too." "I came—I saw—I remained to unite my voluminous baritone voice with the tenor of the zephyrs and the bass of the Commercial clubs in singing praises of that climate," the Cynic groaned.

"Have you tried my new dandruff eradicator?" asked Charlie.

"Nothing doing," answered the Cynic.

"But speaking of getting mail through the mountains," said Charlie, "we used to get our mail out there three times a day when the

Personal Notes

TAYLOR SIGLIN was down from his Isthmus Inlet ranch today.

F. S. DOW left today on the Plant for San Francisco on business.

MRS. CARL SMEDBURG of Catching Inlet, is a Marshfield visitor today.

T. C. RUSSELL of Beaver Hill was a Marshfield business visitor yesterday.

MISSES BERTHA and Laura Kruse of North Bend are Marshfield visitors today.

CHAS. SELANDER and wife of Catching Inlet, are shoppers in Marshfield today.

F. S. DOW leaves today for San Francisco where he will remain a week or so on business.

IRIS ELROD is assisting at the Woolen Mill store while Geo. Rotnor is spending a few weeks in California.

HJALMAR MATTSO of Catching Inlet was in town today attending to some business and partaking in the granger meeting.

GEO. ROTNOR, manager of the Woolen Mill store, left today on the Plant for San Francisco, from where he goes to San Diego on business. He expects to return about February.

Are Moving.—The Brown Drug company is moving into its fine new store in the Coos building on Market avenue and it is their intention to be ready for business at the new stand Monday morning.

DAVID MASTERTON, who has had charge of the planting of shrubbery and beautifying the grounds of L. J. Simpson's "Shore Acres" home, has moved to Marshfield and will make his home here. He plans to continue to devote his time to floriculture and gardening.

MATT TALBOTT, aged 81, was here from South Inlet today. He is enjoying fairly good health despite his years. He has now been a customer of Henry Sengstacken for thirty-six years, he recalled when he first visited Mr. Sengstacken today.

MRS. McLACHLAN and daughter left today for California where they will probably remain. Miss McLachlan, who was formerly with Mrs. Donaldson's millinery has recently been employed in the postoffice. Miss Ferdine, the teacher who has been making her home with them, will now reside with Mrs. Hazard.

ARNO MEREEN, general superintendent of the C. A. Smith mill, is expected to return in a week or ten days from California where he has been visiting his family. Jack Meeen, who has been at Puget Sound points and Portland is now at home in California and may return with his father to the Bay.

MRS. FARRINGER has just completed moving into her new studio which is now open for students for the following year. It is located on Front street over the new Grand theatre. Reception hours are from one to three p. m. Telephone 247-R.

snow was over twenty feet deep all over the country."

"How'd they work it?" asked the Cynic.

"Tunneled," answered Charlie.

Again the Cynic groaned.

"The trouble here is that these native Oregonians, don't understand the handling of snow," continued the barber. "If they would send me up there with a bunch of these fellows from the East, I'd get the mail through on the dot every day." Six feet of snow amounts to nothing."

"Use snow shovels, I suppose," said the Cynic.

"No, I'd simply pile a lot of brush along the road, set fire to it and have the snow melted in a short time."

"There's plenty of brush along that mall road too."

"Wouldn't a barrel of that dope you used on my face do just as well?" asked the Cynic as he waited for his change.
