

"Our Patrons Are Entitled to the Best, and This Includes Clean, Hygienic Light."

The above declaration comes from the Iowa Clothing and Shoe Company of Ottumwa, Iowa, in a letter expressing satisfaction with Tungstens store lighting and improved show window lighting.

That this kind of policy pays, and pays big, goes almost without saying.

"We consider window lighting an advertisement of value, burning same every night, although our store closes at 6 o'clock every evening except Saturday," writes the manager of the firm.

The merchant who deems the best none to good for his customers usually HAS plenty of customers.

If you have store and window lighting problems our New Business Department can be of help.

HOW TO HAVE WINTER EGGS.

Make Hens Comfortable and Keep Chicken House Clean.

One great essential in getting winter eggs is to make the hens entirely comfortable. The first thing to do is to get busy now and clean out the house thoroughly. Remove every useless article and leave the floors entirely free from anything that will obstruct their free use as a scratching place. Clean down the walls, spray thoroughly, remove every bit of litter from the floor, and if it is a dirt floor take out at least a couple of inches of the old dirt, which should be replaced with clean loam.

Make ready a corner in each pen that can be used as a dusting box. This can be kept supplied with the fine siftings from hard coal ashes and will be much enjoyed by the whole flock. If it can be placed where the sun will shine on it so much the better. Do not close the windows until the weather gets real cold. Let there be one glass window for each pen of 10 by 12 or 13 feet and one muslin covered frame, with at least twelve square feet of surface for each pen.

This may look like a cold proposition, but it will be found the muslin does not make the pen any colder than does the same amount of glass surface and at the same time gives a steady supply of fresh air. This muslin will help greatly in keeping the poultry house dry during the winter and will make it much more comfortable than a closely shut up house can ever be.

For colder nights have a curtain of cheap sheeting running across the front of the roosting place. This does not need to fit tightly except at the top and may hang out some inches from the drooping boards, giving plenty of room for the fowls to pass to and from the roosts. On the very coldest of nights the roosting place will be found to be entirely comfortable, and in the morning the hens will come out ready to scratch and bustle for their breakfast.

Above all things, be sure to keep a good six inches of perfectly dry straw on the floor for scratching material. There can be little comfort for the hen in scratching a pile of dirty, damp litter that has been on the floor for a month or more.

Spilled the Evening For Her. "I suppose you had a perfectly lovely time at the dinner party last night?" "No. Through some mistake they seated me next to my husband."—Chicago Record-Herald.

GOOD EVENING.

Viva La Bagatelle.

How queer life's curious contrasts are!

The short man has the tallest debt;

The slim man smokes a big cigar, The fat man puffs a cigarette!

The bad man's purse is to the good, The good man's roll is to the bad, The wise man's saws will saw no wood,

The gay man's jokes are very sad!

The bookish man can keep no books, The kneady man can make no dough;

The seer is awfully short on looks— The actor never has a show!

The fortune teller's always poor; The doctor's generally ill, Oh, let's be glad for one thing sure— We fools have got our folly still!

An eastern man paid $5,000 for an automobile, took one ride in the machine, and then sold it for $2,500 because it splashed mud on him. A sensitive person like that couldn't stay in the Marshfield city council longer than twenty-four hours.

Some Coos Bay people simply can't take a bit of interest in the revision of the Ten Commandments until this Port Commission question is settled to their satisfaction.

Try to remember that automobile agents do not place pictures of their machines in the paper merely to have their beauty admired by the public.

Cheering thought: Every disagreeable day must come to an end, and the end of every day brings the baseball season that much nearer, but what are the Coos Bay fans going to do about it this year?

THE BACHELOR GIRL SAYS: "It's a wise woman that knows how little she knows about her husband."

THE QUIET OBSERVER SAYS: "It looks as if the devil never took a vacation on Coos Bay."

A man with a cold feels heroic, a girl disgraced.

The high cost of living doesn't reconcile many people to the low cost of dying.

A man who things his work is worth dollars a minute will spend an hour looking for a dime he dropped in a room.

There's nothing that gives a woman such a sense of triumph as to keep her husband in bed on account of feeling ill, though she knows there is nothing the matter with him.

It's a mighty mean man who will order his paper stopped as soon as advertisements of Easter bonnets appear.

There are many kinds of fame, but the Wilkesbarre, Pa., man who ate 144 eggs in order to win $10, has not acquired a very durable bunch of laurels.

ANTICIPATING.

We are apt to rely upon future prospects and become really expensive while we are only rich in possibility. We live up to our expectations, not to our possessions, and make a figure proportionable to what we may be, not what we are. We outrun our present income, as not doubting to disburse ourselves out of the profits of some future plane, project or reversal that we have in view.—Addison.

HOW TO PICKLE PIGS' FEET.

Directions For Preparing a Cheap and Palatable Winter Dish.

Take a dozen of the feet, scrape and clean thoroughly, soak for three hours in cold water and scrub again. Place in a large kettle with two tablespoonfuls of salt and water to cover and simmer gently for four hours or until tender. Cool in the liquor in which they were cooked. When cold pack in a stone jar, with a good pickle made in the following proportions:

To two quarts cider vinegar allow one quart of the liquor in which the feet were cooked, a dozen cloves, a teaspoonful mustard seed and a dozen peppercorns. Scald and put a layer of the feet in the jar and over them place a few slices of onion. Then add more pigs' feet and more onions. When all the feet are in cover with the hot pickle and set away to cool. Leave several days before using.

For broiling, wipe the feet dry, split down the middle, season with salt and pepper, roll in olive oil or melted butter, then in bread or cracker crumbs and broil over a clear fire, allowing four minutes for each side. Serve with sauce piquante or on pieces of toast with a quarter cup maitre d'hotel butter spread over them. Another excellent way to prepare them is to dip in batter, then fry in butter and serve with mustard or piquante sauce.

How to Clean Willow Plumes.

To clean willow plumes place them in a long pan and partly cover with gasoline. Do not attempt to shake the feather in the liquid, but place in the pan and roll and rock gently back and forth, driving the gasoline from one end of the pan to the other. Lift the feather gently out and place on a clean cloth to dry. When dry shake in the sun, and then, when certain all the gasoline has evaporated, shake it slowly over a register to puff the tiny fronds. Willow plumes are all hand made and not easy to clean, and if the plume is an expensive one it would perhaps be better to send it to a reliable cleaner, but for the cheaper or half worn ones the home cleaning will probably be quite as successful if care is taken.

How to Wear Your Furs.

The wearing of the scarf now that it comes in fur is just as important as the long flat one of satin worn so tirelessly throughout the summer, says a Paris correspondent. So pilable are the up to date furs that they can be twisted in curious ways.

The Frenchwoman has a knack of draping her scarf around her back. The ends are crossed in front and then thrown back over and allowed to hang down the back. Other furs are like two immense stoles, which meet and hang well down below the waist at the back and end at the hem of the skirt in front.
