CONTRIBUTIONS concerning social happenings, intended for publication in the society department of The Times, must be submitted to the editor not later than 6 o'clock p. m. Friday of each week. Exceptions will be allowed only in cases where events occur later than the time mentioned.

Tell us not in idle jingle
Marriage is an empty dream,
For the girl is dead that's single,
And things are not as they seem.

Life is real! Life is earnest!
Single-blessedness a fib!
"Man thou art, to man returneth,"
Has been spoken of the rib.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destined end or way,
But to live that each tomorrow
Brings us nearer wedding day.

Life is long and youth is fleeting,
And our hearts, tho' young and gay,
Still like pleasant drums beating
Wedding marches all the day.

In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb driven cattle,
Be a heroine—a wife!

Trust no Future, how'er pleasant!
Let the dead Past bury its dead!
Aim not in the living present,
Hoping for a spouse ahead!

Lives of married folks remind us
We can live our lives as well,
And departing, leave behind us
Such examples as will tell;

Such examples that another
Wasting time in idle sport
A forlorn unmarried brother
Seeing, shall take heart and court.

Let us then be up and doing!
With a heart on triumph set!
Still achieving, still pursuing,
And each one a husband get!

—Selected.

I KNOW I am perfectly safe in counting upon it, my dears. There is no chance of your disappointing me, and thereby robbing me of the moral that I confidently expect will adorn this tale. In the first place, it would be very unkind of you; and in the second, very unnatural. I am relying, however, upon the latter, being not altogether of a trusting disposition concerning the kind or unkind impulses of the feminine heart.

Consequently, when I ask you a question on a particular subject, as I am going to do in a minute, I know you are going to give expression to what will immediately afford us something to talk about. So, without further parley, here it is: Confidentially, just between ourselves, you know, what is your opinion on the popularity of a clever woman?

There! I knew it! I was perfectly confident that there would be that involuntary rise of the eyebrows. I was absolutely sure of that peculiar little smile. We can't help it, any of us, any more than we can help fingering our stray locks, or polishing our nails on our palms. It is one of those unconscious little habits that reflect the impulses of our minds. And so when anyone mentions a clever woman, one smiles and looks catty.

I suppose it all harks back to this: The clever woman has all too often used her cleverness in the cause of adventure. All adventures are of necessity clever. Therefore, all clever women must, perforce, be adventuresses. Consequently, that catty smile. That's why I asked you. I wanted to see it.

But, dearie me, children, when one gets right down to it, it is not that such women are so clever, as that the men they fool are so foolish. You and I, not at all clever women, know how easy it is. We know the little tricks, the wiles and smiles, the "charming inconsistencies" that win us what we are after, even if we are not always unconsciously "playing" our victims. Many of us are too innocent to know that we are playing them. But many of us, also, are thoroughly aware of what we are doing. And we know, you must con-less, that it is an awfully simple little game.

So it doesn't take a clever woman to get what the ordinary woman wants. It does take a clever woman to get what the clever woman wants. There's a vast difference, with many distinctions, my dears. And it depends altogether upon the desires of that clever woman, what she does to gratify them.

I know two really clever women. The woods are not full of them, by any means. But I know two.

One of these is a woman of 35—not so old that one can lay it to her age these days that she isn't marperion in an individual sort of way, ried. She is a rather distinctive without being actually good looking. One might even call her plain, if there weren't something in her expression—in the shadows of her eyes and the lines of her mouth—that makes you look a second time. And she is invariably dressed in excellent taste. She has read much, is original, talks fascinatingly, and is a clever raconteur. When I'm where she is I make myself as invisible as possible, and then just dote on her. This woman never has a swarm of men around her. But there is always one—often two—to be seen engrossed with her in conversation, with an interest that is genuinely respectful. One can't imagine a man attempting to flatter her. But she is the most widely admired woman I ever knew.

The other woman is of a different type. She has a delicately fair skin, reddish brown hair and eyes of the same velvet hue. She is tall, willowy and sinuous, with a more or less indefinable figure. She is not gowned—she is draped. And she wears her hats sweeping low over her eyes to give them that elusive, veiled quality that is as fascinating as it is baffling. This woman has "temperament." She says so herself, which is how I know. She, too, talks cleverly, but in an entirely different way from the other woman. Her cleverness consists in what she does not say. Her wisdom is of the world, wordly. Gifted with a charming enunciation and the faculty of infinitely delicate expression, she can transform the ugliness emotion into a beautiful passion. She is invariably the center of a charmed circle of infatuated men who discuss her among themselves when alone. She has few women friends.

It all depends, as I said a while ago, upon the desires of the clever woman, what she does to gratify them. And it is the "temperamental" clever woman who gets a certain kind of homage, the sensibly clever woman gets another.

But in either case, we may as well acknowledge that it is the clever woman, of one sort or another, who is admired by men. They may protest that they don't want clever women for their sisters and wives, but it is the clever woman, just the same, who wins their admiration and, in one case, their respect.

And so now, my blessed, what are you going to do about it? Condemn all clever women because they are clever? What's the use? Condemning them doesn't do away with them. For my part, it looks to me like a timely little hint to those of us of drab personalities and fawn-colored dispositions, to tone up our color-schemes."

Miss Nellie Tower has issued invitations for a miscellaneous shower for Miss Bertha Kruse of North Bend whose marriage to Dr. Caphey of Portland is announced for the latter part of April. Miss Tower's invitations are for next Wednesday evening.

Mrs. C. F. McCollum of North Bend returned home this week from San Francisco where she has visited with her sisters, Mrs. Sheridan and Mrs. Moffett.

Mrs. John Lafon of West Marshfield expects her father and mother here from Harrodsburg, Ky., shortly to make an extended visit on the Bay.

At the regular meeting of the Marshfield Methodist church Epworth League, in the church parlors, Wednesday night, Eric Bolt, Frank Dil-

PERSONAL notices of visitors in the city, or of Coos Bay people who visit in other cities, together with notices of social affairs, are gladly received in the social department. Telephone 1331. Notices of club meetings will be published and secretaries are kindly requested to furnish same.

Lon, Wm. Stauff, Mrs. F. C. Blrch, Miss Irene Preuss and F. L. Sumner (alternate) were elected delegates to the district convention to be held April 21 to 23, inclusive, in Coquille. At the next meeting, the league will elect officers for the ensuing year.

G. W. Dungan and wife are here from Bandon for a few days visit with friends and relatives.

Miss Ramona Radcliffe, who spent the summer here a couple of years ago, is expected here again this summer to visit her cousin, Mrs. E. W. Kammerer. Since her previous visit here, Miss Radcliffe has gone on the stage and won considerable renown.

Mrs. Colby K. Perry will entertain the Altar Guild of the Marshfield Episcopal church at her home next Tuesday afternoon. The guild met last Tuesday with Mrs. F. A. Hazard. At present, they are working new altar cloths for the church.

The Sisters of Bethany will meet next Wednesday afternoon with Miss Agnes Hutcheson to continue their needlework. This week there were present, Mrs. J. T. Harrigan, Mrs. Arthur McKeown, Mrs. F. A. Sacchi, Mrs. L. F. Denning, Mrs. Harry Bradfield, Mrs. Otto Schetter, Mrs. C. K. Perry and Misses Grace McKeown and Alice Louise Maloney.

Mrs. E. S. Bargelt will entertain a small coterie of ladies, hitherto termed the "Glow Worm Club" at her home in South Marshfield this afternoon complimentary to Mrs. Wm. Dungan of Bandon. Some of the members dislike "Glow Worm" club as a title and this afternoon it is proposed that a secret ballot be held to select a new name.

At a recent meeting of Doric Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. F. A. Hazard was elected treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. John Bear, who retired on account of her removal to their ranch for the summer necessitating her absence from many of the meetings.

On Sunday evening in the Episcopal church, Miss Ora Jane Woods and Mr. Alexander Brown Campbell received the sacred rite of Baptism. Mrs. Rosaltha Campbell, Mrs. A. B. Campbell and Miss Mary Jameson acted as witnesses.

The meeting of the Ladies Art club which was to have been held yesterday at Mrs. Lang's home was postponed until next Friday when Mrs. LeMieux will be hostess.

Mrs. A. B. Daly, entertained in her home in West Marshfield Thursday afternoon for Mrs. Rose Sr., it

How to Choose a Cream Separator

HERE IS THE STANDARD BY WHICH THE EFFICIENCY OF A CREAM SEPARATOR SHOULD BE TESTED:

IT SHOULD SKIM COOL MILK.

It's much harder to skim milk at 65 to 70 degrees than milk at 85 or 90. Some machines that will do fair work with milk at 90 degrees will get all clogged up with milk at 70. Remember that lots of times in the winter your milk will be nearer 65 than 85.

IT SHOULD PRODUCE HEAVY OR THIN CREAM AS DESIRED.
Whether you are churning your own cream, selling it to a local creamery, or shipping it to some distant point, it is desirable to produce a very thick cream. Thick cream churns easier, is less liable to spoil, and has less bulk. It pays to make thick cream, but to do this the machine must be mechanically perfect. A poorly or cheaply constructed separator cannot be adjusted to secure the desired results.

IT SHOULD SEPARATE ITS FULL RATED CAPACITY.

All cream separators are rated upon the basis of their capacity for one hour. The DE LAVAL is the only machine made that will, under all conditions, separate its rated capacity for one full hour, and at the same time skim clean and produce cream of uniform quality.

In addition to the above a cream separator should be simple in construction, durable, easy to operate and easy to clean.

THE DE LAVAL MEETS ALL THESE REQUIREMENTS.

We don't know of any other separator that does. If anyone representing any other separator comes to you with a lot of claims make them prove up to this test. Your creameryman or your state experiment station will tell you that it's a fair test.

We know that the DE LAVAL will give you better service and last longer than any other cream separator on the market, and we stand ready to prove it at all times and against all comers.

Write us or better yet call in and see us, or get a catalogue and talk over terms and prices.
