Polks Oregon and Washington

State Gazetteer and Business Directory.

Just issued for 1911-12 is the most complete work of the kind published. It contains an accurate business directory of every city, town and village in Oregon and Washington, and the names and addresses of country merchants and professional men, lumbermen, etc., who are located adjacent to villages; also lists of government and county officers, commissioners of deeds, state boards, statutory provisions, terms of courts, names of the postmasters, postoffices, express, telephone and telegraph offices, justices of the peace, hotels, daily and weekly newspapers; besides much other information useful to all classes of business and professional men. A descriptive sketch of each place is given, embracing various items of interest, such as the location, population, distances to different points, the most convenient shipping stations, the products that are marketed, stage communication, trade statistics, the nearest bank location, mineral interests, churches, schools, libraries and societies. An important feature is the classified directory, giving every business arranged under its special heading, thus enabling subscribers to obtain at a glance a list of all houses manufacturing or dealing in any particular line of goods. The work generally is compiled to deserve their liberal patronage.

M. C. HORTON ON PUBLIC WORK

Says Committee Did Not Urge Unbusinesslike Reduction in Tax Levies.

"Some of the city officials or councilmen evidently misconstrued our request when we appeared before them as a committee from the Chamber of Commerce," remarked M. C. Horton today in discussing the criticism of the committee at Tuesday night's meeting. "We did not recommend or speak of cutting the tax levy but we did recommend a retrenchment in city expenses.

"The Chamber of Commerce appointed the committee to appear before the city council, the school board and the county commissioners to urge a general retrenchment of expenditures. The idea of course was to secure a reduction in the tax levy but to have the reduction in the tax levy to be made proportionate to the reduction in expenses.

"We did not advocate or suggest that the tax levies be made less than sufficient to meet the current expenses but we did feel that the current expenses could be reduced and in a business-like way to reduce the tax levy which is too high.

"We cited what other towns were paying for conducting various city departments and from this comparison we suggested that the Marshfield council might be able to reduce the cost of the city engineering department, the street cleaning department and the police department, some of which they have done.

"The school board is also planning for a business-like retrenchment in expenses which will probably enable us to reduce the tax levy in the future.

"It was not our idea to have a tax levy made that would not defray the current expenses and cause any one to issue illegal warrants to pay bills but we wanted to have unnecessary expenses eliminated.

"In view of this, I do not feel that any members of the council or city officials should criticize the committee and especially on erroneous statements."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Times have changed. Germany no longer sneezes when the kaiser has an attack of influenza.

That he may attain the requisite height to make him eligible for the naval service, a Minneapolis youth is having his legs pulled. The average Coos Bay man, after he has had his leg pulled, feels smaller than ever.

The report that scientists found 500,000,000 bacteria in a quarter teaspoonful of Chicago ice cream moves us to suspect that not much of the cream was left when the counting was over with.
