BIG WASTE OF WATER POWER

Prof. Horner Prophesies Great Things For Third Discovery of Oregon.

CORVALLIS, Ore., April 3.—Water by the million horse-power goes to waste annually along our mountain sides. But some day it will generate electricity to light our homes. Later, when the fuel supply will run low, that same electricity will be employed to heat our homes in the winter and our fields in the summer," writes John B. Horner, professor of history and political science in the Oregon Agricultural College. "I fancy that wires or some other device can be placed under the surface to carry sufficient heat through the soil to arouse its fecundity and warm and stimulate the growing plant. Indeed, the stimulation of growing plants with electricity has passed the experimental stage. Furthermore, I am not certain but that along the coast, where the Japan current tempers the climate, a little artificial heat and other stimulus would make it possible to produce two crops of grain each year. Already three crops of alfalfa are produced in certain localities. Science is able to supply the necessary heat when the demand arises.

"Under this system the process of intensification can go until the great domains will be divided into small holdings and other changes will take place which will more than double the agricultural products. A field of five acres will be worth many times five acres under the present system; hence ultimately every foot of fertile land will be so valuable that it will be utilized. Small farms, densely populated districts, fine school-houses, churches and granges, uplifting lyceums and lecturers and great libraries will be in evidence everywhere, and as a result the Willamette Valley, which already has more colleges, universities, churches, and pianos than any other district of similar size and population, will sell good land at prices varying from $500 to $5000 per acre. This miracle is not so difficult as it was to direct the first airplane or harness the first streak of lightning. Yet it is far more important.

"Oregon has already been discovered twice—once by venturesome explorers who found the new country and called it the Great Oregon; then it was discovered by the hardy pioneers who learned by long experimentation what Oregon could produce. Thereupon it was called 'Greater Oregon.' This implies that Oregon is to be discovered anew, that it is to be discovered the third time, when it will be scientifically demonstrated how her soils may be made to produce the choicest among the best of things and these in the largest possible quantities. This, in my opinion, will be done by intelligent farmers, fruit growers and other sons of the soil in systematic cooperation with the advanced scientist in his laboratory. Together they will unfold the mysteries of the soil. They will discover Oregon the third time. Their mission is obvious and it will be fulfilled."

CHICKEN THIEF AT NORTH BEND

Many Hen-Roosts Invaded and Poultry Owners Are Now Vigilant.

North Bend poultry owners are having troubles of their own as a result of chicken thieves getting busy in that section. Numerous thefts have been reported and close watch is being kept in hopes of catching the perpetrators "red handed." A strong clue is being worked on and may lead to arrests soon.

One of the latest to have his hen roost robbed was E. Ohlin. They broke the lock on his hen house and carried away a number of his birds. Last night Robert McCann heard prowlers around his hen house and by promptly investigating frightened them away. He caught a glimpse of them and thought he recognized them.

DEATH OF A PIONEER.

Cyrus Hedden, age 91 years and 25 days, died of pneumonia, March 29th, at his home in Scottsburg, Oregon. He was born March 4, 1820, in Newark, N. J., where he lived until 25 years old, then went to Terre Haute, Ind. In 1850 he crossed the plains to California where he went into the mines. In '51 he came to Oregon, where he figures among the ablest of pioneers. Was one of the first into Coos and Curry counties and a survivor of the Indian fight at Battle Rock, now famous in the history of the country, also on Coquille River in September '51 when half their number was killed he tramped up the lonely beach, carrying and dragging his wounded friend and companion. Capt. L. L. Williams, thus he reached Scottsburg, where he opened a blacksmith shop and later became a successful merchant. He turned his mercantile business over to his son, John N., in 1877, who has been associated with him in business ever since he was 20 years old and who still keeps the firm name of C. Hedden.

He leaves to mourn his loss, one brother and two sisters, of Newark, N. J., and son John N., and seven grandchildren—Roseburg News.
