Your store-news, should appear as regularly as does this newspaper. If a newspaper omitted an issue now and then—even for so weighty a reason as fearing that it might rain—it would not be a good newspaper.

COLON BACILLI IN CITY WATER

State Board of Health Approves Four Samples and Condemns Three.

Dr. Ira Bartle, health officer and member of the council of North Bend, has just received the analysis of seven samples of water taken from hydrants at North Bend and Marshfield and the Oregon State Board of Health official making the analysis finds that four of the samples are all right and three of them are bad, the latter containing colon bacilli (human sewage) and being absolutely unfit for domestic use.

As one of the samples sent from here was water that had been boiled, the result of the test is an even break. The sample of boiled water was found to be excellent. It was included by Dr. E. Mingsus, city health officer of Marshfield in the samples to ascertain if the boiled water when allowed to stand was certain of being free from disease germs.

For the other two samples from Marshfield, Dr. Mingsus took one from the faucet at his office and the other from the faucet at his house. The sample from the office faucet was found to be all right but the one from the Mingsus residence was found to contain colon bacilli and be absolutely unfit for domestic use.

Dr. Bartle stated today that he was going to have further tests of the water made and try to get the trouble with the water system remedied quickly. He is also planning for a conference with Dr. Mingsus and Manager Flanagan of the Coos Bay Water company.

Dr. Bartle stated that the Coos Bay Water company officials had promised to assist in trying to locate the source of contamination and to cooperate to the fullest extent with improvements in trying to remedy it. As soon as the spring rains are over, further tests will be made to ascertain the condition the water is likely to be in all summer.

Dr. Bartle says the Water company is now fencing in the reservoir. However, he thinks that at least two sediment tanks should be put in and other improvements made.

Dr. E. Mingsus, city health officer of Marshfield, today said that something must be done at once about the water situation. He said that he believed the only thing to insure a healthy water supply would be to put in a large reservoir with two compartments, so that they could be emptied and cleaned alternately without shutting off the supply and also that the water should be filtered.

Dr. Bartle said that the only safe thing to do until the source of contamination is found and remedied is for the people to boil the water used for drinking and domestic purposes. City Health Officer Mingsus also sent a sample from the Lando well on Nob Hill and this was found to be infected and unfit for domestic use.

MYSTERY IN LOCAL CONVICT

Handsome, Well Educated Stranger Keeps Name Secret—Is Paroled.

Alleged son of an ex-mayor of Cleveland, Ohio, and graduate of Princeton University, a tall, handsome athletic young man who answered to the name of "Ray Brown" was yesterday sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary by Judge Coke at Coquille but was released under parole during good behavior. Extenuating circumstances stated by the youth claiming that the forgery to which he pleaded guilty was for the purpose of aiding a sick companion won for him much sympathy and the clemency of the court.

Brown, he refused to give his real name, was bound over for passing a bogus check for $31.62 on the Hub Clothing and Shoe company at Bandon. It will be remembered that he was alleged to have passed a similar one on the same firm here. He claimed that he and two companions had started through this section on foot, were broke, worked a few days at Gardiner, came to Coos Bay where he could not get employment and went to Bandon where one of them was taken sick. He needed medicine and clothing and after their futile efforts to get employment there, "Brown" alleged that he told his companions that he was going to pass a forged check. The proceeds, it was claimed was used in buying clothing and medicine for the sick member of the trio and a ticket to San Francisco for him.

"Brown" pleaded guilty to the indictment and told this story coupled with part of the story of the mystery surrounding him. He claimed that he and his father had trouble that he did not want to appeal to his parents.

His pal substantiated the story in every detail and Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Liljeqvist was unable to shake it. Finally Mr. Liljeqvist entered a plea for clemency for "Brown" and asked that he be sentenced under parole and Judge Coke complied.

"Brown" is about six feet four inches, weighs probably 225 pounds has every air of good breeding, education and refinement and had the sympathy of everyone around the courtroom.

Soon after the passing of sentence, Fred Powers of the Smith-Powers Logging company, arranged to give him work for the company. He is to remain in Coos county until given permission by Judge Coke to leave and is required to report to the court the first of each month.

Kelley Is Sentenced.

Joseph Kelley, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with "re-made against him for entering Dorsey Kretzer's residence in Marshfield and taking some jewelry. Owing to the value of the jewelry being less than $35, the maximum punishment for the offense was one year in the county jail and this was imposed by Judge Coke, who in passing sentence, said that it probably wasn't all that Kelley deserved.

SLANDER SUIT MAY GO OVER

M. E. Whitmore Makes Novel Answer to Charges in Sandberg Case.

Whether the $10,000 slander case of P. A. Sandberg, former city engineer of Marshfield, against M. E. Whitmore who recently moved to California will come to trial this term of circuit court is a matter that is causing much comment. Mr. Whitmore has not returned from San Francisco and this has augmented gossip to the effect that he will endeavor to have the case continued. Mr. Sandberg and his attorneys, Selby and Goss, are very anxious to have the case tried at this term because all the principal witnesses are here and ready and may not be secured easily or at all if the case is delayed.

Makes Novel Answer.

According to a report received by The Times, Mr. Whitmore has entered a novel answer to the charges against him. The report says:

"In the case of Sandberg vs. Whitmore the defendant, Whitmore, admits the conversation at time and place charged in plaintiff's complaint, but denies that he used the language as charged and states that the language that he did use was 'I loaned P. A. Sandberg $350 during the year 1910 and that the cost of engineering on the various street improvements in the city of Marshfield was about five per cent of the entire improvement, or words of similar import.'

Cruelty Case Up.

The case of the State vs. Crowley who is charged with knocking out a horse's eye at Bandon, has been on trial since yesterday. Crowley admits that he knocked out the horse's eye but claims that the blow was struck in self defense. In examining the witnesses, the attorneys sought to interject a little merriment into the proceedings by asking each of them as to the "reputation of the horse in question for peace and quiet in the community of Bandon."

Representative Underwood Explains "Free List" Bill in House Today.

NATION MUST CUT DOWN ITS EXPENSES

Democratic Leader Speaks in Favor of Measure—Republicans Oppose.

(By Associated Press to the Coos Bay Times.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 25.—The tariff again holds the attention of congress. It made its appearance today in the shape of the free list bill which threatens to lead to an almost endless debate before finally passed along to the Senate. Leaders of both sides in the House foresee long delays and talk ahead. That the measure will pass is generally conceded.

Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee in explaining the proposed measure acknowledged it meant a reduction in the government revenues of ten million dollars a year, but declared this will more than be met by the government economies.

"This free list bill is not offered as a compensation to farmer for the products of his that were put on the free list in the reciprocity bill," said Underwood, "because we do not believe the passage of the reciprocity agreement will in any way affect the farmers' income."

"One of the objects of the bill is to remove from the protected list those implements that the farmer used in producing his crops. The other purpose is to reduce the cost of living to the masses by putting food products on the list." Underwood announced this was only the beginning of the democratic revision of the tariff.

"We purpose to revise the tariff schedule by schedule," he said. "That, in our opinion, is the only proper way to handle the tariff question in Congress. The democratic party does not stand for wiping out the custom houses," we realize the expenses of the government may be borne by a judicious system of duties. But by lowering and adjusting prohibitive duties, we can fully maintain the amount of customs revenues."

The minority report on the free list bill is signed by all republicans on the Ways and Means Committee and declares the measure represents a transparent attempt to manufacture political capital.
