A CAREER FOR YOUNG MEN.

YOUNG fellows who are wrestling hard with the problem of choosing a career for themselves may find it profitable to give heed to what James J. Hill says about it. He is a wise old man who has had vast experience in the world and unusual opportunity to see things.

Mr. Hill believes that rich opportunity awaits college men who take up scientific farming—rich opportunity to prosper and to get real enjoyment out of life. "There is not and never will be any oversupply of educated farmers," he declares emphatically.

Then he adds this other thought: I do not think of any other occupation of which these sweeping assertions can be made. I do not know of any in which it is more possible to continue in connection with the main business of earning a living that enrichment and enlargement of the mind which is the best gift of university life and its proper, though seldom realized, continuation after the university has been left behind.

WATERFRONT.

The other day the old battleship Texas was sunk, being used as a target for practice of the battleships in her vicinity. Now comes the report by the examiners of the wreck, which is to this effect: "When the guns were aimed from more than six miles distant, the first two broadsides sank the ship. If the shooting had been that of real war, the first shells that hit would have been so disastrous and demoralizing that the victim could never have overcome the opponent's advantage and would have succumbed in a few minutes.

ELECTION IN COQUILLE.

F. C. True, Formerly of Marshfield, Elected Councilman. The regular annual municipal election of the City of Coquille took place in its usual quiet and orderly manner.

There was no great fight on, and while there was a fairly good vote out all went smooth. The following named persons will have charge of the city's affairs during the current year: As Recorder, J. S. Lawrence.

As councilmen for one year, W. C. Laird, W. H. Mansell and J. H. Oording. As councilmen for two years, D. D. Pierce, C. T. Steels and F. C. Trno.—Coquille Sentinel.

IS NEAR PORT.

WITH TEA AND TOAST

GOOD EVENING.

NEIGHBORS.

All the worlding and the good of this world come from it. It is a gathering of our fellows in our midst. One doesn't get the best neighbors. He gets what he gets to a common pool. We must come to look at all the world as our neighbors. We must see away with the idea of classes. There isn't any truth in the class lines in America. They are unjust, unworkable, un-American. Why should we have class lines here in this country and one man despise another just because he has been lucky enough to make a little more money? A man has some right to be proud of what he makes with his own hands and his own brains, but he hasn't any business putting on airs over what he is mere trying to spend.—Jacob A. Rhs.

THE MICROBE'S SERENADE.

A love-lorn microbe met, by chance, At a swagger bacteroidal dance A proud bacillan belle, and she Was queen of the animalcule Of organisms saccharine She was the protoplasmic queen: The microscopical pride and pet Of the biological smartest set. And so, this infinitesimal germ Evolved this pleading low refrain: "Oh, lovely metamorphic germ What futile scientific term Can well describe thy many charms? Come to these embryonic arms Then hie away to my cellular home— And be my little diatom."

His epithelium burned with love And he swore by molecules above She'd be his own gregarious mate, Or else he would disintegrate. This amorous mite of a parasite Pursued the germ both day and night And 'neath her window often played This Darwin-Huxley serenade: "Oh, most primordial type of spore I never saw your like before And though a microbe has no heart, From you sweet germ, I'll never part; We'll sit beneath some fungous growth Till dissolution claims us both." GEO. ADE.

The most natural thing in the world for a woman to do is to scream. After a man has been married a few years he begins to look like a book the baby has played with.

THE LAST STRAW.

The small boy stood with drooping head "Twas nigh too much to bear. "Ah me! I rather would be dead!" He muttered in despair. "I used to think myself abused. In olden days," quoth he, "When father's ancient pants were used To make a pair for me.

"It used to cause the kids to smile When I wore clothes of pink. But since the baron skirt's in style, I'm getting stung with na's." WILLIE.

LANGUAGE OF STAMPS.

If the old gent stamps on the floor above the parlor three times in quick succession at 11 o'clock, it is a sign that you had better hike for the timber.

If you fail to stamp real hard on the front step before entering the hall on a slushy day, it is a sign that there will be something doing when your spouse sees the hall carpet.

If, after you have been knocked down for any reason, your adversary should stamp upon your conk, it is a sign that it is better to give than to receive.

PRACTICAL JOKES.

Methought I'd seat me in my chair, and fall into a study brown, but some blamed aleck standing there withdrew the chair as I sat down. And so I sat upon the floor, and broke two boards and eke my spine; and even as I write I'm sore, and vengeful thoughts and dreams are mine. I weigh three-quarters of a ton, and when I'm down I can't get up; a joke like that seems measly fun, and it with sorrow fills my cup. I do not like these dizzy jests which cause some fellow mortals pain, and stir up anger in their breasts, and make them act as though insane. The man who cannot see a joke, who cannot spring a sunny smile, unless some fellow's slats are broke—his sense of humor's out of style. Because I'm like a load of hay, and can't get up when I am down, I am the tall guy every day for all the alecks in the town. I think the correspondence schools should start a new and useful grind, and teach new folly to the fools—some harmless and denatured kind. WALT MASON.

LIFE'S SHOW.

This life is all a fleeting show; We learn this with a frown; We spend our lives in earning dough To view its pleasures, and yet to go just as they ring the curtain down. —Exchange.

HOW HOWE SAYS IT HAPPENS.

No one ever fooled the people with false teeth. If you want to be popular, don't ask for sympathy—give it. No woman should laugh at a joke on her husband.

Ever occur to you that lately there are an unusual number of handsome married women? There was a time, long ago, when a woman quit trying as soon as she married.

How willingly the world imposes on an Easy Mark!

A bluff has a tendency to run out, and every so often it is necessary to renew it.

The boxing bird is a cleanly bird And as square as the day is long, And he can't see why the reforming guy

Will say that his game is wrong. For it makes men quick with their eyes and hands And it makes men healthy, too, And there's naught that's mean with a sport that's clean And a natural thing to do.

I'll stake my word for the boxing bird And say that his cause is just; If he were all I would stand or fall On the gage of confiding trust.

The boxing bird he would be all right If the game did of him consist— If he went on his own and was left alone With his mind and his willing fist.

But the boxing bird isn't one, two, three— It's the truth, though perhaps it's tart— You must lose all sight of the men who fight.

They are only a thing apart. It is not by them that the knock's inspired— It's the rough neck blokes that swarm For a piece of the pot when the game is hot That animates R. E. Form.

If you could keep out some of the mugs, The mug with the brazen front, Who does not care how the fighters fare As long as he cops the blunt; If you could get rid of those noisome pests,

The ghouls of the graft and frame, You'd remove the cause of those drastic laws That throttle your boxing game.

MANY PIONEERS MEET.

Yesterday was not pioneer day but nevertheless it was a day of reminiscences of pioneer days in this city. John Moore of near Bandon, was up shaking hands with old friends and making new and the result was, of course, many stories of pioneer in this section. Mr. Moore was one of the early pioneers of this county, coming here in 1870 and yesterday he in company with Judge Harlocke, L. A. Lawhorne and others were very busy recalling almost forgotten events in the early history of this section. Judge Harlocke and Mr. Lawhorne came here in 1871 and aided in the construction of the Coos Bay wagon road after which they went east of the coast range and worked for some time on the Oregon & California railroad which was built about that time.—Coquille Sentinel.
