A PLEA FOR BEAUTY.

J. Larsen Says Marshfield Should Cultivate More Roses.
J. Larsen, who with his wife, and daughter, Mrs. Hunter and baby has returned from an extended sojourn in Portland, is enthusiastic about the residential section of the Rose City. "Coos Bay in general and Marshfield in particular can learn much of Portland in one respect," said Mr. Larsen today to a Times' reporter, "and that is their well kept lawns and beautiful grounds about their homes. It only requires a little care and attention but the effect is wonderful. Rosebushes will grow, if anything more easily on Coos Bay than in Portland and every home should have some rosebushes. The effect of seeing street after street of beautiful lawns and roses is magical. Portland impressed me as one of the beautiful cities of the world and I have been all around it. Marshfield's chamber of commerce should urge upon its citizens the necessity and value of giving attention to home surroundings and cultivating roses."
