"Every Article a Big Bargain"

The Greatest Bargain Center of All Southern Oregon

After an elapse of exactly eighteen minutes by the watch, the last of the berries had disappeared and, although Adams was game for another ton or two of the fruit Richmond refused to pay any more.

A faked report that Adams' had died yesterday as the result of the fray failed to elicit any sympathetic solicitations from Richmond.

SEELEY WILL REFEREE FIGHT

Well-Known Coos County Sportsman to Be Third Man Monday.

O. J. Seeley, the well-known Coos county horse owner and sportsman, has been selected to referee the Rough-House Charlie Burns versus Guy Lee fight which takes place at the Rink next Monday night. The selection of Mr. Seeley was agreeable to both of the principals and will be especially welcome news to the followers of the boxing game here who contemplate taking in this match.

Both of the little fighters are working hard to get into shape for the coming go; and each is equally confident of his ability to whip the other fellow. Lee was this morning taken for some road work and later was put through the rub-down mill by his trainers at the Turkish baths.

The following past performances of the two scrappers will be of interest to the large crowd of persons who from the seat reservations already made, are expected to be present when the bout is called on Monday evening.

Some idea of how the men stack up may be gained from the fact that both men have at different times fought Abe Lavell. Burns met Lavell once and defeated him; while Lee, in his two fights with Lavell, lost one and won one. He won the last one.

The doors of the rink will open at 7 p. m. sharp on Monday. The preliminary starts at 7:30.

MY EATING "CHAMP" FOUND

Local Youth Consumes Strawberries In Record-Breaking Time.

To Dean Adams, an employee of a local electric company, belongs the title of "Champion Strawberry Eater of Coos County." Some of his warmest admirers loudly proclaim him champion of the world, but last "Lil' Arthur" became peeved at any attempts to share the championship spot-light with him and decide to desert the heavy-weight ranks in favor of entering the sport of strawberry eating. It has been decided by the more conservative to limit Adams' title to Coos county until some white hope shall have memorized, crystallized, fossilized and homicized the dark cloud at present hovering over the manly art.

The feat by which Adams has managed to break into the ranks of the much-talked-of was accomplished at the Java Coffee House last Thursday night.

Feeling slightly faint about eleven o'clock Thursday night, and deciding that a little nourishment would fix him up, Adams betook himself to the Java Coffee house and ordered a bowl of clam chowder. He was just on the last lap of the second bowl when Ed. Richmond and some others at the time in the restaurant started an argument about strawberry eating.

Adams pricked up his ears and when a lull in the conversation occurred he took the floor and made the statement that he could eat more berries than any other man in the county.

This sounded good so after a parley, it was decided that if Adams could eat six boxes of strawberries, Richmond would pay for them. The
