THE JOYS OF THE SUMMER VACATION.

THE disease of the age is worry, overstrain, too much congestion in the mental workshop. At least once a year every one takes a remedy. This is the summer vacation.

The very name clears the mental atmosphere. Visions of lake, river, sea or verdant landscape at once come before the mind.

Who does not look forward to the summer vacation? Its joys could fill a year; its benefits volumes. The opportunity it gives one to get away from the crowd, the rush and roar of the traffic, its dust and worry, is worth untold gold. The few days or weeks you spend in nature's green fields, in her mountains, camped beside her lakes or tasting the salt in her sea breezes will bring you back a new man.

What magician can do this for you?

No elixir of life has been found superior to nature. She alone possesses the secret, a secret she will reveal only to those who court her in her own realms.

"Throb thou with nature's throbbing heart," says Emerson, "and all is clear from east to west."

The summer vacation gives one this opportunity.

It cleans the dust from the overworked mind, gives it a chance to rest and recuperate itself, reinvigorates it, supplies it with fresh energy and sends it back full of new ideas, new experiences, new joys and memories, clarified and more than ready to meet the work of another year of thinking and planning.

PUBLICITY IS TELLING

F. B. Tichenor Receives Scores of Inquiries Regarding Coos County.

F. B. Tichenor, who is a native of Coos County and at the present time visiting here in the interest of the Women of the Woodcraft has been an enthusiastic booster for this section as is made manifest by the scores of letters he is receiving weekly from prospective locators. This morning Mr. Tichenor received the following letter:

Mill City, Oregon, July 17, '11
Mr. F. B. Tichenor,
Marshfield, Oregon.

Dear Sir:
Would you be so kind as to inform me of the resources of Marshfield and the best way that I could get in there from here.

In closing find stamp for reply.
Yours truly,
Everett Miller,
Mill City.

P. S.—I am looking for a place to locate.

This is merely an example of the splendid results of the value of publicity.

The work of Mr. Tichenor in this county has been given extensive space in these columns and the value of publicity through The Times and the splendid propositions behind the statements, in the shape of Coos County and Marshfield are beginning to tell.
