PORTLAND MAN ARRESTED HERE; CHARGE "WHITE SLAVE" TRAFFIC

Brought a Pretty Girl From Coquille to Chandler Hotel.

HIS VICTIM IS ONLY SIXTEEN YEARS OF AGE

Is Taken From Bed at Midnight to the City Jail.

Dr. A. W. Porter, whose business card states he is a professional corn doctor and manicurist with an office at 175 Madison street, Portland, was arrested by Sheriff Gage and Marshal Carter at midnight last night in room 115, Chandler hotel, in the company of Marcella Smalley, a pretty sixteen year old girl of Coquille.

"Dr." Porter and his victim arrived from Coquille on the afternoon train yesterday and went at once to the Chandler. Both parties registered under their own names and were assigned different rooms, the "Doctor" being given 115 and Miss Smalley 112. Nothing particular was noticed in their appearance or conduct that would lead to suspicion, but Miss Smalley had announced to some of her friends that the "Doctor" whom she thought was a "real nice man," had volunteered to pay her fare to Marshfield and give her a nice little vacation. The news reached Sheriff Gage and with his knowledge of the "white slave" trafficker the Sheriff determined to keep a watch on the pair. He boarded the same train that was taken by the "Doctor" and his victim. Arriving here he shadowed them to the hotel, but as there was no attempt at concealment in registering and as they had been assigned different rooms he thought there might be nothing wrong but determined to continue his watch.

About midnight in company with Marshal Carter he started an investigation. He first sought Landlord McKeown and apprised him of the situation and Mr. McKeown promptly offered his assistance. He turned over his hotel pass key and the two officers proceeded at once to "Dr." Porter's room. It was opened but found unoccupied. They then extended the search to room 112 where the "Doctor" and the young lady were found together having retired for the night. There were tears and protestations but all proved useless. The men of the law insisted on Porter's donning his clothes and accompanying them to the city jail. He asserted that it was his first offense; that he had never been arrested before and dreaded the disgrace but the officers were obdurate. The young lady was consumed with remorse and regret. She said that Porter had offered to pay her fare to Marshfield and said he would be good to her. He called at her room and by flattery and cajolery persuaded her to permit him to remain.

Miss Smalley is a pretty girl only sixteen years old. She has been a waitress at the Baxter hotel in Coquille for some time and was a general favorite. Her parents are highly respected people there, but are away at present on an outing vacation trip. She was not arrested but was given some fatherly advice by the sheriff who compelled Porter to provide money for her return to Coquille.

Porter is a smooth shaven man about thirty years old, not particularly handsome or attractive, but a smooth talker. He claimed to be making a professional trip here and was well provided with money. Sheriff Gage is not certain but that he may be a member of an organized gang engaged in the "White Slave" traffic in this section as there have been other similar cases here recently.

Porter was taken to Coquille and

TENNESSEE COAL AND IRON HISTORY

A Big Deal in High Finance That Did Not Cost a Postage Stamp.

(By Associated Press to the Coos Bay Times.)

NEW YORK, July 29.—That the financing of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company syndicate in 1905 did not cost as much as a "postage stamp" was the declaration today of L. C. Hanna of Cleveland, Ohio, before the Stanley Steel Trust committee. Hanna, who was a member of that syndicate before the United States Steel in 1907 testified that the main purpose of the men who took over the Tennessee Company in connection with the Steel corporation was to develop great mineral resources rather than the mechanical equipment of the property.

Hanna testified that at this time of the sale of the Tennessee Company to United States Steel that the company was in good financial condition and did not need to sell, but the sale was necessary to avoid the threatened spread of a ruinous panic. "The whole financial situation in New York was acute," said Hanna, "and the fear among the wise set finances was that it would grow worse and pass beyond control of these men in the transfer," the witness admitted, not a dollar changed hands, the transaction being executed by change of stock. The effect of the transfer he felt assured, saved the day and was the turning point for better in the panic.
