

TO APPEAL ON ASSESSMENTS

Big Timber Owners In Curry County Charge Discrimination Against Them.

Charging that the Curry county Board of Equalization has unjustly discriminated against the large timber owners in assessing the property, an effort will be made in circuit court at Gold Beach this week by the Lin and Lane Timber company, a subsidiary of the C. A. Smith Lumber company, to have the assessment set aside.

It is contended that the larger the holdings, the higher value per acre is fixed by the Curry Board of Equalization, penalizing the concerns with the big acreage. According to the claim set up, a tract of 1,000 acres would be assessed at $10 per acre, a tract of 1,500 acres or 2,000 acres at $15 per acre, a tract of 3,000 acres at $20 and so on.

The case will be heard by Judge Coke at this term of court there if the transcript of the records of the meetings of the Board of Equalization has been completed.

KAY OPPOSES HUME HEIRS.

Attempt to Lower Appraisalment to $150,000 Is Made.

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 26.—State Treasurer Kay announces that he would fight an effort on the part of the heirs of R. D. Hume to lower the appraisalment of that estate from $280,000 to $150,000. Such a reduction in the appraisalment would materially reduce the amount of the inheritance tax, which, roughly approximated, would be between $4,000 and $5,000 under the present appraisalment.

It is contended by the heirs of Hume estate that the Rogue River fishing bill, which resulted in the Rogue River being closed to all but anglers with hook and line, has resulted in a vast depreciation in the value of the estate and a petition asking for a new appraisalment has been filed in the county where the estate lies.

State Treasurer Kay notified District Attorney Brown to fight all efforts at lowering the appraisalment and thus diminishing the size of the inheritance tax.

THE FARMER'S JOYS.

Who wouldn't be a farmer now,
And live 'mid pastures green,
And lug the water from the well,
And light with kerosene?

Who is there happier than he
Who hears the bullfrogs chug,
And stops his haying frequently
To gurgle from the jug?

Who does not envy him the joy
Of rising with the sun,
Or thinking that at 3 a. m.
His day's work's well begun?

Who would not, then, a farmer be
And live among the birds?
His joys no poet could express—
They are too deep for words!

Trouble, trouble, trouble—
A thorny snare to weave!
Lord, make us thankful
For what we may receive.

Tears and heart complainings,
Weary nights we grieve,
Lord, make us thankful
For what we may receive.

And when this world—heaven help us!—
For other lands we leave,
Lord, make us thankful
For what we may receive.

GOV. WEST ON STATE ISSUES

one representative on it and Multnomah five. They are to meet September 5 to draft a bill that will permit a new system and eliminate the defects in the bills enacted by the last legislature which he said he had been compelled to veto.

He said that Coos and Curry counties particularly should be interested in the good roads movement. With good highways leading through this section, he said it should become famous as a summer resort and hundreds and thousands of wealthy people would visit here annually in their autos, making it a summer resort that would rival Los Angeles and Southern California as a winter resort in importance. He said that the idea for building a boulevard from Marshfield to the beach was a mighty good one. He told of the work of Sam Hill, the good roads disciple in Washington and outlined their system of work.

Prison Reforms.

In taking up "Prison Reforms," Governor West said he wanted to reveal a little ambition that he had long cherished. In order to do things, he said that political preferment or wealth was essential to gain the power to do things. He said that he did not have the desire or ability to accumulate great wealth and so he went into the game of politics. One of the hobbies he had long cherished was to do something for humanity and especially the man down and out—the convict. He said it had been more than successful and declared that although the state has been working 450 convicts the past year without guards, only three have escaped. When they had guards, twenty-six got away one season. Besides the benefit to the men, they are earning something for the state. He reviewed how they are doing much to beautify the grounds around the state institutions through convict labor and make the state farms profitable. He also told of how the convicts working at the state brickyards at Salem had forced a private firm to sell out, the rival plant being bought by the profits from the convicts' plant. Now he has devised a profit sharing plan in the brickyard whereby the output has been increased. He said that by putting the convicts on their honor, they were playing square.

Going to the parole system, Governor West related some personal experiences that reached the heart-strings of his audience. He told of pardoning convicts to return to their families, how some of them had done so and made happy homes where misery and poverty had reigned before. He attributed much crime to poverty, ignorance and booze, and said that it was his one ambition to lend a helping hand to these victims of circumstances. He said that he knew it was right and although it might bring criticism, he was determined to pursue it to the end. His stories of success of the parole in specific cases and what it accomplished brought great applause from the gathering.

THE BEST ADVERTISING.

The merchant who doesn't advertise may exist—but he never sets the world on fire. If he can do a living business without advertising—he might double or quadruple the volume by judicious use of printer's ink. When a man or organization plans to put on some form of entertainment to draw the people—publicity is one of the greatest essentials. Without it the people will not know what is going on—and without people public entertainers are not a success. There are many forms of publicity. They vary from the village style of tacking up a pencilled notice in the postoffice to the use of billboards, window hangers and posters—up to the use of newspaper display ads and brightly written reading notices. All forms of publicity are good—but some are better than others. The experience of advertisers who have spent millions in the publicity game is that newspaper advertising gets the best returns.—Fargo Forum.
