also arranging to estimate the value of the old waterworks system here.

Fine Strawberries.—"There," remarked J. W. Umstadt as he wheeled 200 boxes of strawberries into the Anona this morning. "that shows what old Coos can do. Those berries are as fresh and full of flavor as the first of the season."

Deal Is Closed.—Peter Scott Sr. last evening announced that the negotiations for the sale of his four-acre "Glen Garden" tract to E. W. Wright of Portland had been concluded. The property has been under option for some time but was not closed until yesterday. Mr. Scott is now arranging to give possession.

Sunday School Picnic.—The Sunday school of the Christian church of Marshfield will hold its annual picnic at Cooston grove across the Bay next Wednesday. The boat will leave the public dock at the foot of Market avenue at 9 o'clock in the morning. Members of the school and their friends of the school are invited. No fares will be charged.

Saw Two Bucks.—George Rotnor is still feeling glum over an experience he had Sunday. He drove to the beach for a little outing. Before leaving, he had a hunch that he should take his deer gun but finally decided it would be too much bother. After reaching the beach, he strolled back into the timber and set down to smoke. It looked as though there might be deer there and sure enough a couple of the biggest bucks he ever saw soon ambled across the opening within a few yards of him. They took their time in getting back to cover and all George could do was to make resolutions that never again would he wander out into the timber in the open season without his trusty rifle.
