THE LAND OF HEART'S CONTENT

"A sail! a sail! Oh, whence away
And whither o'er the foam?
Good brother mariners, we pray,
God speed you safely home!"
"Now wish us not so foul a wind
Until the fair be spent;
For health and home we leave behind:
We sail for Heart's Content!"

"For Heart's Content! And sail ye so,
With canvas flowing free?
But, pray you, tell us, if ye know,
Where may that harbor be?
For we that greet you, worn of time,
Wave raked, and tempest rent,
By sun and star, in ev'ry clime,
Have searched for Heart's Content."

"In ev'ry clime the world around
The waste of waters o'er;
And El Dorado have we found,
That ne'er was found before.
The isles of spice, the lands of dawn,
Where east and west are blent—
All these our eyes have looked upon;
But where is Heart's Content?"

"Oh, turn again, while yet ye may,
And ere the hearths are cold,
And all the embers ashen-gray,
By which ye sat of old,
And dumb in death the loving lips
That mourned as forth ye went
To join the fleet of missing ships,
In quest of Heart's Content!"

"And seek again the harbor lights
Which faithful fingers trim,
Ere yet alike the days and nights
Unto your eyes are dim!
For woe, alas! to those that roam
Till time and tide are spent;
And win no more the port of home—
The only Heart's Content!"

AGAIN we hear the cry of "How to be a successful wife."

In these days, according to the husband savers, she must see that his slippers are out for him when he arrives home, his clothes spick and span, his dinner ready to be lifted the moment he is ready, and she must wear the smile that won't come off.

But hold! There is the ever-present answer to this being that bears the burden of supplying the bread and butter to her door—that seems to be the open sesame of all, all for him, says Sophie Loeb.

Does his share of good cheer end with keeping the hills of the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker away from that self-same door? And is he ever but the master of all he surveys or rather conveys?

Not much! There is just a little bit on the other side, and the better half is not always said.

Let this be a suffrage age. Let this be a side-by-side man-and-woman scheme of things. Just so! But forever and a day, world without end, Amen (and Awoman too) there will always be the little stay-at-home wife, who, though not making her bread by the sweat of her brain or brawn, does her share with just "puttin' up" with some of the grins and grouches of the man she has chosen for better or for worse.

And in spite of the fact that it is for the worse she is ever confronted with the great continuous theory of "how to keep a husband" because as aforesaid, in the old sense he "keeps" her. How she should ever be ready with the good word and squelch any other feelings she may have.

So that he may go forth without a cloud, the silver lining ever floating before him. Thus she will ever be a healthy, wealthy and wise little wife.

But there is just a little bit coming to her to keep the spirit of her alive and glad and happy, and, yes, willing to forgive and forget and ready on the job—to continue a happiness in the having to hold him rather than a duty in the doing of it.

He would but cherish a bit of the cheer from down town and bring it home to her, rather than leave it with the last comparative stranger seen there!

Or if he would but give her the little courtesies that he has accorded the neighbor, Mrs. John Jones (whom he has accidentally met coming home and carried her packages and smiled and bowed, who thought he was "such a gentleman." But often, sorry to say, most of his "gentleness" ends with the opening of his own door.

If he would only consider that the woman in the case must not be forgotten even if she does happen to be his wife!

Oh, yes he may have good intentions may be very willing to fulfill his part of the programme—quite willing to share his money and his presence with her—his intentions may carry out the complete letter of the law.

But, just as in the old adage, "Hades is paved with good intentions," so is the home. And despite the cry of the cynic it can be made a heaven or somewhere in that vicinity.

For as dear old Omar says, we ourselves should "Make the most of what we yet may spend

Before we too into the dust descend." Just a little of the pleasing on the other partner's side—the man. Just a little pleasantry that he may accord to any woman of his acquaintance who means nothing to him except that she is human, he can give the one woman with profit.

Many a wife has to be superhuman to bear with the many little trials and tribulations that come in order to bear with him. For ever "a fool there is and her best she gives. Even as you and I."

Man, give a little of that "best" to her. The sunny side is not always necessary. She does not expect it. Perhaps she is in such a continuous groove of grinding grievance in her aim to please you that she has forgotten to expect anything. Surprise her! You may surprise yourself in the process.

And always: An ounce of attention is worth a pound of intention.

Candy of Quality

Quality in Candy is a matter we are rather fussy about. That is why everything that enters into Stafford's Coos Bay made confections must be unadulterated and wholesome. This matter of purity in candy is a question of pride with us and it is safe to say that more delectable sweets cannot be found on the Pacific coast than Stafford's. All our candies are pure, fresh, sweet and delicious. They are the come again kind.

High-Grade Tailoring in Authentic Styles

In Women's and Misses' Ready-to-Wear Goods

Our Store Now Replete With Newest and Best in Women's and Misses' Wear for Fall That Eastern Markets Afford

THIS season The Myers' Store offers you better buying advantages than ever before. Not only have we increased our assortments in the various lines of women's wear, but we have selected each article with greater discriminating care than heretofore so as to place before our patrons the very best qualities in the most approved styles—and yet with the one aim of not increasing the cost to you, but to lower it, if anything. With the aid of our New York connections and our matchless buying facilities, we now have here an assemblage of high grade merchandise, perfect to the minutest detail and priced so reasonably as to win the approval of every woman who visits our store and inspects the new arrivals.

Newest Styles Women's Coats and Suits

Strictly High-Grade, All-Wool, Man-Tailored New Autumn Garments

A casual inspection of these clever new styles would hardly reveal the fact that the little women's dress of East India, to a great extent afforded inspiration for the present exacting modes. And yet a more careful inspection of the new styles will prove that not only did the women of the Orient contribute toward the new Fall styles, but that a happy blending has been effected between the Oriental costumes and that of the Revolutionary period. All the late style ideas are now shown in the most wanted shades, and in such popular cloths as the French and English tweeds, serges and chevots, double faced "Ratines" and fine cosmos weaves. The workmanship of all our new coats and suits is of the highest order,—those selling above $15.00 being strictly man-tailored throughout. Prices of the NEW COATS ARE $10.00 TO $47.50 AND THE NEW SUITS $12.50 TO $37.50.

Another Shipment Young Girl's Pretty Fall Coats Just Received

There is just as much style to our young girls' Coats as to those we are showing for young Women. For three seasons we have been searching the country for a little Misses Coat manufacturer who would make up his product with the same care and attention to style as is given to women's wear. Our efforts were not in vain, for we found just the very maker on the top floor of a light, airy factory in Union Square, New York. We invite all mothers—and the young girls also—to call and see the new coats. Ages are 8 to 14 years.

Prices Range from $3 to $12.50

Pretty Little Colored Dresses
