tion where he has been directing the effort to extinguish the fire there. The fire was well in control when he left. It had burned over about 1,000 acres of which about 300 was green timber.

Catch Big Salmon.—Matt Jutstrom last night landed fourteen salmon that averaged twenty-eight pound. They were the finest lot of fish that has been brought in here as one night's catch this early in the season in many years. Fishermen say this indicates that the salmon this year will average much larger than usual.

Sacks Bother.—Hugh McLain, who bought the five hundred tons of cement that was damaged in the water-logging of the Saginaw is grinding it up in his rock crusher. He attempted to grind it up with the sacks and all but this failed, and now he is having a big job getting the sacks off the cement which has hardened. The cement will make the finest kind of concrete.

Good Roads Committee.—At the meeting of the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce yesterday, R. M. Jennings, M. C. Horton, Henry Sengstacken, Dr. J. T. McCormac, J. C. Laird and Hugh McLain were appointed a committee to meet with the Coos county commissioners at Coquille next Thursday and take up the matter of improving the old Coos Bay wagon road as was outlined in The Times yesterday.

Looks Like Business.—P. C. Heald, the well-known timberman who has been spending a few months on Coos Bay, remarked today that one of the best evidences he has had that there is something substantial back of the Southern Pacific line from Eugene is contained in an offer he has just received of $16,000 for a quarter section of timber on the Siuslaw near the route of the proposed new road. He purchased the land two years ago for $2,200.

Sails Late Today.—The Saginaw will sail late this afternoon for Portland under her own steam. Mr. Hart, one of the owners, and Capt. Pillsbury believe that the temporary repairs will keep her in good condition throughout the trip.

No Deal Made.—It was reported on the streets this morning that the Bank of Oregon had purchased the Gulovson corner at the southwest corner of Central Broadway for $25,000. C. S. Winsor, cashier of the Bank of Oregon, stated that the report was absolutely unfounded. He said that parties had been to him trying to sell to them but that he had not even negotiated for it.

Sunday Schools to Re-Open.—The Sunday school of the Episcopal church in Marshfield, which has been closed in the summer months, owing to the large number of children who are away, will start again on Sunday morning, the third of September. The Sunday school of the Episcopal church in North Bend will also be held on Sunday afternoon, the third of September, at 2:45.

Steam Bakery.—The Coos Bay Bakery this week installed a new boiler and other equipment making it a modern steam bakery the first on Coos Bay. There are many advantages in steam baking chief of which is that it is sanitary and secures a uniform and thorough baking of bread. It is only one of a number of important improvements made in this up-to-date shop.

W. W. HOLLAND returned today from San Francisco where he represented the Marshfield Aerie of Eagles at the Grand Aerie in San Francisco. He reports that the convention was one of the finest gatherings that he ever witnessed.
