RECEIPTS NOT GOOD ANY MORE

No Substitutes For Hunting and Fishing Licenses Now Permitted In Oregon.

Hunting or fishing upon receipts furnished by notaries and justices of the peace will not be allowed in the future, according to instructions recently issued by State Board of fish and game commissioners.

The reason for this action is plain. In the past, notaries and justices of the peace, who have authority to collect for licenses, issue a receipt and mail the money to the County Clerk.

“We have a fairly complete record of notaries and justices who have retained money belonging to the game fund,” said Warden Finley, “and they are located all over the state. These men have actually accepted money for licenses and made no returns of it, nor have they secured licenses for those who have made application. By arresting those holding merely receipts for licenses, we will shortly run down those who have been guilty of this fraud.”

It is provided by law that any Justice of the Peace or notary in the state may receive money for the County Clerk on application for hunting or fishing licenses, and the Game Warden has no disposition to place an obstacle in the way of hunters to thus easily secure their rights.
