OBSERVATIONS

THE TILT OF HIS CIGAR.

You can fathom a man by the cut of his jib,
 By his actions, his bluff and his talk;
 You can tell him quite well by his ebb and his swell,
 You can judge him somewhat by his walk.

There are numerous ways you can judge a man,
 But I think that the best way by far
 To get a right line and gauge him down fine
 Is by the tilt of his long cigar.

When the cigar points down the spir-its are down,
 The drooping is plain to be seen;
 When it points straight out he is found'ring about
 And isn't quite certain, I ween
 But there's no mistaking his innermost soul
 When it points to some overhead star;
 You can easily tell that his life is "all well"
 By the tilt of his long cigar.

"Let me write the headlines in the papers," seas Dean Matthews of Kansas university, "and you can write your sermons and sonnets." Or if those were not the dean's exact words they represent his idea.

The people don't read the papers in his opinion, but the headlines, and these combinations of letters ranging from an eighth of an inch to six inches in size form the literary food of the present generation. Perhaps the dean is right. At any rate, head writing is an art which deserves to be recognized.

and fined them, and then rode away, no doubt with a hearty appetite for dinner. Why not? The more work that is done these days in the open air the better for the workers, and a man astride a horse under a blue sky is much better qualified to deal justly than a man sitting in a close, smoke-scented room with a gavel in his hand.

The St. Louis Baseball club in the National league has a woman president. This is not a manifestation of the feminine invasion, however, for the woman in question received the office through the will of the late president, Robison. Her name is Helen Robison, and she seems inclined to dispose of her property as soon as possible, being of the opinion that presiding over the affairs of a baseball club would not be to her taste. Probably it wouldn't. But a woman's influence in the baseball world, on the other hand, might not be such a bad thing.

Speaking of woman's invasion and that sort of thing, here is a member of the sex who has the courage to be a traitor. At least that is probably what she will be called by the suffragettes who listened to her address, and lifted their eyebrows and shrugged their shoulders and looked as many daggers at her as they could. Traitoress aforesaid is Miss Phoebe Cousins, who addressed the last Illinois legislature opposing the amendment providing equal suffrage. Her main contention seemed to be that the thing hadn't worked. Whatever Miss Cousins' offense against party ethics a woman who has the courage to address the Illinois legislature against a measure which her sisters as a body support deserves no little credit.

A gold brick was tried on a woman in Los Angeles, and she called the police. She should be thankful that they didn't try her husband first.

THE BULLFROG'S REVENGE.

There was a bulldog that followed each auto
 And acted and whined like no good canine ought to;
 Till at last a chauffeur said I'll bet ou a dollar
 I run down that cur; but alas, the dog's collar
 Was filled full of spikes. They'd no thought it was loaded
 Until each one of his tires had exploded.

LADIES FAIR.

All blondes are not light-headed. Girls with liquid voices should be careful not to strain them.
 Some women are a delight to the eye, and a drug to the mind.
 Never tell a grass widow that she is in the hey-day of life.
 If woman's age counts against her she knows enough to keep down the count.
 The girl who marries for a lark often finds out that she was a jay.
 The idea of marrying will haunt a woman if she has a ghost of a chance

BASEBALL SCORES.

Odd Way the Plays Were Recorded Back in the Sixties.
 The baseball public of today, accustomed to the minute reporting of games, wherein each run is compounded and many a play analyzed, is offered the account of a game played in Syracuse in 1868. The contestants were the Central City of Syracuse and the Athletics of Philadelphia, and the score was 41 to 12.

The game was delayed a half hour by the difficulty in finding an umpire. Then the report goes on to state:
 "The game opened loosely upon both sides, and at the end of the first innings the score stood Athletics 5, Central City 4, each side making its tallies promptly from the loose playing of the out club. After the first inning the Athletics played more carefully, while the Central City grew more careless until the fifth inning, when they became more demoralized than was the Union army at the battle of Bull Run."
 "Considerable dissatisfaction was manifested and expressed, and in two innings rightfully so, at the evident one sided decisions of the umpire."
 "We will not particularize, but suffice to say that several of the players on both sides did well, while others, especially the Central City side, were not fully up to their standard efforts. The following is the

A CRUSHING RETORT.

Mrs. Songbird Paid Her Haughty Society Patron in Full.
 Last year a prominent Boston society leader, in arranging a musical surprise at an elaborate dinner given to the town's elite, called on a singer of renown to engage her services for that event. It chanced that the singer was naturally independent. On the other hand, the caller was notoriously haughty. As a result this was what transpired between them:
 After the visitor had announced the import of her coming, the singer succinctly said she would sing one number for $200, and that it would be a Wagnerian selection.
 "The price we will not haggle over," said the visitor, "but instead of that grand opera selection I want you to render one of the light and popular ditties of the day!"
 "For the Wagnerian song, $200; for the popular ditty, $300," was the firm reply.
 "But, madame," expostulated the society leader, "your classical song is much more exacting on your powers, so why should you charge more for the lighter and easier song?"
 "Ah," replied the independent one, "the harder song is all fun to me; the easier one all work!"
 So the price was fixed at $300.
 Just as the haughty visitor was about to depart, she turned to the artist and said:
 "Of course, I shall not expect you to mingle with my guests."
 "Ah," was the biting retort, "I shall throw off $50."—Life.
