Cow In Trouble.—Jack Parker of Bunker Hill is having more or less trouble keeping his cow out of trouble. The meek eyed bovine has the habit of getting out and wandering where she should not. Last spring, neighbors complained and Marshal Carter impounded her and it cost the owner $2.50 to restore her to her own yard. Again yesterday, she wandered off and it cost him $2.50 again to get her back.

To Tell of Revival.—Rev. G. Le Roy Hall is expected home today from his trip to Portland to attend the Gipsy Smith revivals and a visit at Pendleton and other Eastern Oregon points. JETTY LIKELY TO BE REBUILT

Capt. Macgenn Thinks Emergency Appropriation Will Be Secured Now.

Capt. T. J. Macgenn of the Breakwater was enthusiastic on his arrival here today as a result of news that he heard in Portland. According to information obtained from a very reliable source, he has reason to believe that an emergency appropriation will be secured at the coming congress for the restoration and extension of the north jetty and that possibly the south jetty may be provided for.

The likelihood of Coos Bay securing a railroad before another congress has opportunity to make an appropriation for the improvement of Coos Bay bar is understood to be one of the things that is hastening the action.

Capt. Macgenn has furnished Congressman Hawley and the United States engineer's office some valuable data showing the necessity for jetties in improving the Coos Bay bar.

MAKE ROSEBURG REAL DRY.

Even "Near Beer" to Be Prohibited There Soon.

The Roseburg Review says: "To make Roseburg as 'dry' as it is possible by law to make it is the purpose of an ordinance introduced at the city council meeting Monday night, prohibiting traffic in any kind of malt liquor. This directly involves near-beer, the supposedly non-intoxicating malt beverage existing just outside the pale of the state prohibition law. The ordinance will come up for final reading and action next Monday night."

"The measure makes the sale of malt liquor a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or jail imprisonment, or both. It is patterned after a law in force in the city of Eugene and has been upheld by the State Supreme Court, according to the statement made at the meeting by Councilman George E. Houck, who explained in so many words that the purpose of the ordinance was to make Roseburg a "dry" town."

FREY IN TROUBLE.

Think Former North Bend Is Mixed Up In San Francisco Case.

The following item from the San Francisco Examiner is supposed to refer to a former well-known resident of North Bend:

"Louis A. Frey was arrested for grand larceny on complaint of Samuel Tompkins. The two men are partners in a cleaning establishment at 3077 Twenty-fourth street. Tompkins says he put $500 in bank to run the business. Frey was to give him a chemical preparation used to clean clothing. Frey says Tompkins drew out the money. Detectives Barke and Richards arrested Frey."

THE POOR COOKS.

Alas, the homes that joy forsook because the housewives couldn't cook! Alas, the agonies and aches imparted by punk chops and steaks! Alas, the strained and tearwet eyes distressed by seeing fearsome pies! Our kitchens, in these modern times, are scenes of most atrocious crimes; there meat is ruined by the ton, by being charred or underdone, and bread is baked like paving bricks—we slice it up with saws and picks—and things are fried that should be stewed, and deadly kinds of dope are brewed. How often do you see a maid whose cooking leaves you unafraid? I know a million damselfair; they prance around me everywhere, and some can paint and some can sing, and some can wait like everything, accomplishments they have to burn, but when for tempting grub I yearn, I couldn't call a girl by name who's equal to the cooking game. The day's at hand when suffering man must eat his dinner from a can. The girls embark in politics and haven't time for skillful tricks with frying pans and kindred tools, and that's why indigestion rules.

WALT MASON.

SOME BIG POTATOES

J. L. Foster bought three potatoes to this office Saturday two of which weighed two pounds and ten ounces each and the other weighed two pounds and twelve ounces. Mr. Foster raised nine tons of this variety on his ranch this year, some of them being much larger than the ones brought here, and the whole bunch would average about one and one half pounds each.—Bandon Recorder.
