R. A. GRAHAM LOSES AGAIN

Supreme Court Decides Against Him In Local Litigation.

R. A. Graham, builder of the local ra lway, has lost an other of the several suits that he and f. 3. Minot instituted against the Southern Pacific and its officials to recover money that he cin med was due him for his interest in the Coos Bay, Roseburg and Eastern Rallroad. The last par has just been decided by the Oregon Eupreme Court and was one that he and Mr. Minot had instituted by Atuency General Crawford on a techname of T. R. Sheridan, one of the d ectors, et al as relators. The suhe id have been begun by the district attorney instead of by the attorney general, thereby sustaining the decision against Graham in the lower courts.

Justus Salin will have a hearing before Justice Shuster January 15, on the charge of discharging firearms after sunset. He was arrested last Saturday evening by Deputy Game Warden Si Noah.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

The English Method of Dealing Out Supplies by the Week.

In the matter of small savings and watchfulness of expenditure the English housewife is shead. For example, the English housekeeper deals out to ber servants the week's allowance of sugar, rice, flour, coffee and all other household provisions that are kept in quantity, and requires an account of It all to be rendered, the thing having been brought to so fine a point that she knows the exact amount of each article requisite for her family, allowing so much to each individual and that quantity being sufficient, as she by experience, two ounces of tea, for instance, being regarded as a week's supply for each single individunl, one-half pound of sugar, three and one-half pounds of meat for a woman and five and one-fourth for a manfacts which the housekeeper probably learned from her mother before herknowing, moreover, the greater variety of the simpler kinds required.

All of these stores she sets down in her housekeeping book as she gives them out, and she does not fail on the pext dispensing day to consult her dates and if anything be left over in the cook's hands not accounted for to subtract that from the amount to be newly issued. And in England servants expect this. So far from being indignant with it they would feel as if there were no guiding hand behind them if left undone and they given their head in an overflowing storeroom, as servants are with us.

In fact, there is no saving which the bousewife across the water considers too small to practice or as beneath her dignity.-Exchange.

Sir John Rose at Great Length. An accomplished English barrister was Sir John Karslake. In height he was six feet four inches.

A provincial newspaper in reporting a case in which he was engaged on circuit laconically described the opening for the complainant as follows:

Sir John Karslake, as soon as the defendant's case was concluded, rose at great length to reply."

Miss Scott Makes Daring Flight in Her Airship.

Miss Blanche Stuart Scott, the young woman who recently has acquired such distinction as a daring and intrepld aviator, is the same young woman who nearly two years ago drove her automobile from New York city to San Francisco, Miss Scott's companion on this wild and dangerous adventure was Miss Gertrude Phillips. Their arrival in the Golden Gate city alive and unburt is a fine tribute to American woman-

Miss Scott files one of Baldwin's red devil metal biplanes. This aeroplane, on account of its speed and diminutive size, is considered much more perlious to operate than any other. Its driver must be gifted, with unusual nimbleness of mind and body. Miss Scott chafes very much under the flying restraints placed upon her on account of her sex, but she succeeded in showing ber ability to fly as high as her men competitors in a recent air contest.

There is serious talk of organizing a woman's aero club bere in America, the idea being recently hatched by Baron von Dewitz, and the women interested in aviation are enthusiastic about the movement. It is proposed to model the club after the Aerial League of Great Britain or the Stella of France.

Hot Water as a Tonic.

Drinking a cup of hot water in a more efficacious treatment for many ills than some persons realize. There are physicians who prescribe it for inactive livers, a glassful to be taken as soon as one wakes in the morning. The warmth as well as the liquid are bene-Betal, for it is a well known fact that few persons drink as much water through the day as they should.

That the dose affects the complexion favorably there is no doubt. Some persons add the juice of half a lemon to the water. There is no doubt that for certain systems this is beneficial, but it is a matter that a physician should decide in individual instances.

Many a case of simple indigestion may be cured by drinking a cup of hot water, the dose to be taken as soon as there is any sense of discomfort. Adding a half tenspoonful of bicarbonate of soda is recommended by some physicians where there is pronounced acidity of the stomach, the soda acting as a neutralizer, while the warm liquid carries the matter from the stomach.

Persons who are dieting for reduction find bot water more thirst quenching than cold, and they therefore can get along comfortably with a smaller quantity. That water taken with food is fattening there is no doubt.

Hot water is an excellent substitute for ten for persons made nervous by the beverage and on certain occasions may be used as a food substitute.

If for any reason there is a desire to get along with the least quantity of food and the stomach becomes empty. hot water is soothing and fills the void. so that for a time a feeling of faintness is obvinted.

It is in no way a food, however, and should not be regarded as such.

Changing the Hair Line. So much has been said of the folly of changing the colffure to suit each passing style that the other side is apt to be overlooked. Hair can be worn too continuously in one style, and if a woman is not careful she may find herself without any hair on the top of her head in the place where the hair ought to grow.

The girl who thinks she looks picturesque with parted hair should occasionally take weeks off for a pompadour unless she wants a broad path across her cranium. This holds good of the angles at which the long hair is arranged, and there should be frequent changes, if only in the privacy of the boudoir.

The benefit of these changes is realized when one finds that dandruff accasions. The coat pictured is an airy the fiair, and if it is too long in one cumulates under the thickest part of spot there is danger of the trouble becoming chronic.

for by not regarding hair strain for their daughters. No girl who wears her hair in one way from the time she is six or eight until she puts on long freeks can hope to have a good head of hair. It is bound to be worn in Cosmetics as Character Builder. Cosmetics as an aid in character building are advocated by many doctors who have an extensive practice among society women. One of those physicians says women who have any fittle defect that can be hidden by powder or paint should never hesitate to employ the artificial method. "Appearances," he explains, "mean much to a woman mentally and socially. A giri who has some slight personal defect, such as a scar, a poor complexion or bloodless lips, is enormously handicapped. The knowledge of her defect and the thought others may observe it make her shy and lacking in self confidence. She shuns society and becomes morbid and miserable. I know of one case where a girl's life was ruined because of complexion troubles. So long as a woman's makeup is not so obvious as to be objectionable her means to an end are justifiable. She does no one any harm and she does herself a great deal of good. The knowledge that her particular defect is no longer visible to all beholders gives her a contented mind, and that has its inevitable result upon her character and outlook on life.

Grace Without Petticoats.

"Are you a petticontiess woman? And if you have discarded your underskirts have you learned to go without them gracefully?" said the beauty lecturer to her audience. "The advice I would give to the unpetticoated, to the wom an who wears a skirt so snug and clinging that she must adopt some other style of underwear than the old time petricoats, is this:

"Look at your shoes. Your skirt may not be cut off at your boot tops but it is certain that they will show. "Have your ankles trim. Wear but toned boots and set the buttons over

"Don't wear shabby shoes. Your feet simply must look nice. "Wear thin stockings, the gauzier the better; under them wear flesh col-wred silk hose "If you go without petticoats your out. Don't be pigeontoed."

Home Permanency vs. Home Monotony

This is a vital question for present day homebuilders-whether to have a house which in appearance must always remain the same or a house that will permit of a little refreshing occasionally. Neighborhoods change as do individual tastes—a frame house can easily be made to harmonize with its surroundings-a fresh coat of paint often will make it as good as your neighbor's new house -the same as a new suit makes you feel like a new man. At any rate a frame house is susceptible to most any change you might desire and while it is permanent it does not necessarily need become an eyesore or a monotony. There are lots of things we've observed about houses and lumber that you should know before building-come in and we'll give you our views.
