BELFAST, Ireland, Feb. 8.—Winston Spencer Churchill, first Lord of the Admiralty, the chief figure in today's home rule demonstrations, arrived today with his wife and was given a somewhat mixed reception. A number of Orangemen who had gathered at the station greeted him with groans and boos but they were drowned by the hearty cheers of the Liberals and Nationalists. There was no disturbance. In the course of the morning, a crowd of Unionists paraded the streets with an effigy of Churchill placarded "Down with Churchill. No home rule." They proceeded to the hotel where Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were staying and sang the national anthem, after which they dispersed without disorder. There was no marked excitement among the workers in the city.

Looks Like Home Rule at Last.

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)

BELFAST, Feb. 8.—The armed forces of Ireland are to be controlled by the Imperial government and the Imperial government will continue its land purchases and pension scheme. Clauses relative to religious freedom and taxes, it is reported, must be inserted to relieve the anxiety of the protestants in Ulster. Churchill contended that the settlement of the long quarrel between the British government and the Irish people was a boon to the Empire beyond compare, as the Irish throughout the world were a power which had in the past mostly worked counter to British interests. Churchill continued that the government is prepared to fight the bill through Parliament and he asked for fair play from the unionists.

Plans for Home Rule.

Religious freedom will be secured, a representation fair to all parties in the Irish Parliament will be guaranteed, law and taxes unjust to any party will be guarded against and Ireland will control its own finances under the terms of the Home Rule bill. These features were announced by Winston Spencer Churchill, who outlined the proposed measure for the first time in his speech today.
