GOOD CHANCE TO GET RICH

LUMBER KING WEYERHAUSER SAYS OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE MILLIONS ARE JUST AS GOOD AS THEY EVER WERE.

Frederick Weyerhaeuser, of St. Paul, is said by some to be the richest man in the world.

He mildly disputes the statement, saying it is exaggerated.

In person he is of medium height, with a face of Teutonic traits; he is in his 78th year and has clear kindly eyes, which seem rather pensive, but which, if you note alertness as they gaze into yours, are evidently reading correctly—what you are. The eyes are those which you know will in a few moments form a very correct estimate of what they see, and an estimate that you feel sure he will not likely alter.

"Yes, conditions of life have changed vastly in my existence of 77 years," he replied to a question, "but I believe the young man of today has exactly as good a chance as existed when I first tackled life for myself. "Superficially it looks more difficult now, for we compare the opportunities as they existed before sweeping change came into use in business, and in what lay at hand waiting to be used.

Chances Good as Ever.
"Still, the man who looks at things as they really are, who makes up his mind to work at something worthy of work, and to work hard, can achieve just as readily as he could have done 40 or 50 years ago.

"Certainly, if I had my life to live over, I would do exactly the same as I have done, and with just as certain belief as to ultimate success as I had when I began."

"And how did you begin, Mr. Weyerhaeuser?"
"By working," he answered. "I had very little capital, hardly enough to be called capital in those days, but I went to work on a definite plan, I wanted to own a sawmill.

"I worked, and I began then the system I have ever followed since of saving my money.

"For the surest way to make money is to save money and use what you save.

"It was a task which became a pleasure when I began to see results, for I worked very hard, as I still do.

"My hours were from before daylight until 9 or 10 at night, and with that sawmill in sight I found pleasure in the long hours, and pleasure in the frugality I was obliged to practice.

"When I found myself the owner of my first sawmill I went after the second, and when I got the second I went after the third, until I owned 25 of them."

"And how many of them have you now?"
He thought a moment and said: "Why, I haven't counted them up lately; I could not say offhand."

"And do you work now?"
"Still Loves Work.

"Not as hard as I formerly did, though I love work just as much. I keep my business hours now down to 8 or 10 a day, and when I am taking a vacation time, as I am now, I leave the details to others and attend only to general matters.

"I believe that men today are too much afraid of long hours of constant attention to their work; I do not condemn those who live in other directions from mine, but the fact remains that work where the interest of the man who works is centered becomes a source of real gratification of honest pleasure and of accomplishment.

"Any young man can get rich, can succeed in his business if he saves; if he has a definite and honest purpose, and if he is so filled with his purpose that work ceases to be a hardship and becomes a privilege.

"If I had a capital of $5000 and was beginning life again, I would go into some small business and work to make it a big one, and any man can do that."

"But there is not enough timber left in the country to make another lumber king, is there?"

"Of course there is; there is plenty of timber to make plenty of rich

WHAT DREAMS MEAN.

The mind is active while the body sleeps. Dreaming is the plainest indication of this fact. The dream the mind really experiences is much different from what it records when the body becomes conscious. Even in somnambulism it is unusual for men and women to have any recollection upon awakening. This is because thinking done when the body rests is different from that done when the body is active. The unusual pictures and objects seen in dreams have made some of the great pictures, poems, musical compositions and books of the world.

The mind is so active when it is supposed to be asleep that if the motor co-ordinations are not cut off somnambulism takes place, the body responds to the command of the brain, without the person ever realizing it.

Sleep and dreaming have even more significance, according to the opinion of Havelock Ellis, Professor Nacke and Mme. de Manacéine. For it is then that character, desires and hopes show themselves more than when people are awake.

It is rather startling to hear that man thinks as intelligently asleep as awake, but no less an authority than Sir Arthur Mitchell admits that thinking is essential to life, says the Chicago Tribune. Thinking when we sleep may be different than when we are awake, but the process goes on just the same. Man cannot think unless he is alive, and he cannot be alive without thinking.

Dreams are not as confused as we think. They become confused from the standpoint of memory, but are not from the point of the dream organ. Memory half-blurred in trying to recall them makes dreaming seem confused. Dreams born under normal conditions are normal; it is only those that are created under abnormal conditions that are strange. For as Cicero said: "It cannot be doubted the number of true dreams would be greater if we were to fall asleep in a better condition; filling ourselves with wine and flesh obscures our dreams."

Carl du Prel holds that every individual has two consciousnesses rising and sinking like the weights of the scale. There are in alternation awaking and sleeping. "Potentially the dream consciousness is present even in waking," he says, "and the waking consciousness in dreams, just as the light of the stars is present when the sun shines, but is first visible when the sun sets. Were the light not so weak in most of us it would never have been necessary to have written on the temple of Delphi, 'Know thyself,' and Plato would not have said that 'most men only dream, the philosopher alone strives to awake.'"

Mozart more than any other musician said that he was at his best when dreaming or in this stage of thinking. As he once told a friend: "When I am all right and in good spirits either in a carriage or walking and at night when I cannot sleep thoughts come streaming at their feet. The things which occur to me I keep in my head and hum them to myself. If I stick to it there soon come one after another useful crumbs for the pie, according to counterpoint, harmony, etc. This now inflames my soul, which keeps growing and expanding, and all the invention and construction go on as in a dream."

"How about conservation?"

"I am for conservation; I practice it as far as the tax system in my region on timber will permit; I do not replant timber because it takes about 100 years to grow it.

More Fun in Optimism.
"So you make a practice of looking at things from optimism in your heart, you like the sunny side of life, Mr. Weyerhaeuser?"

"Sincerely I do; there is more fun on that side, always."

"And what do you think about our country?"

"Our country is all right, and will be all right. These questions about taxes and other things that seem to be vexing in their difficulty will all yield to the good sense and wisdom of the American people, and will give place to new problems, as we advance into new conditions."

ROCKEFELLER TACKLES CUPID

Bible Students Will Spend Spring Learning What Marriage Costs. NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The young men of the Rockefeller Bible class will devote the spring months to the study of marriage. A series of 15 special lectures is announced, beginning February 16, under the general title of "facts necessary to be known about engagement and marriage." The titles of some of the individual lectures are as follows: "What It Costs," "What Has the Wife the Right to Demand?" "Why the Home Should be Away From Relatives," "Dangers Facing the Man Who Marries With Only Enough for One," "What a Man's Income Should be," "Rents in New York." In discussing marriage with his Bible class on one occasion, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., said: "Get married as soon as possible, but be sure to get a wife who shares your views of life. A young man should take great care in choosing a wife, as she can make or mar his career."

OLCOTT PLACES COST OF ELECTION AT $125,000

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 14.—One hundred and twenty five thousand dollars is the estimate made of the cost of the primary and general election for the state by officials of the Secretary of State's office. There are 1082 precincts in the state and it is estimated that the expenditures for clerks and judges will be $77,902. At the last election it cost the state $1538 for the corrupt practices act pamphlets for the primary election and $4436 for the general election, and $18,425 for the initiative and referendum pamphlets. It is estimated that the cost will be just as much, if not greater, for the coming election. The cost of the ballots is placed between $15,000 and $20,000. For pencils and sundries the cost last year was $500 and for tally books $5000. In view of these figures in the past and that new precincts have been created and the state has grown, it is estimated the cost, at the lowest figure, will be $125,000.

ATTENDANCE RECORD BROKEN.

More people attended the exhibition of the "Two Orphans" at the Orpheum Theater yesterday than has ever been known to have turned out to any theatrical performance of any description ever given in this city. This house is known for its originality and the faculty of making good all its promises to its patrons which has been a means of a gradual increase in business. The "Two Orphans" made a hit and made another triumph to the long list of feature photo plays recently shown at the "House of the Photoplay."

A CORRECTION.

The statement in last evening's report of the City Council meeting should have read that Robert Marsden wanted the City Council to make an offer for his water rights on the city park property. This right has been owned by Mr. Marsden and others for about 40 years, which fact is or should be well known here by old residents and most of the members of the City Council. Mr. Marsden is only asking for his rights in the matter and is not asking the city to buy any hot air claims but actual property rights that he owns.

Home Permanency vs. Home Monotony

This is a vital question for present day homebuilders—whether to have a house which in appearance must always remain the same or a house that will permit of a little refreshing occasionally. Neighborhoods change as do individual tastes—a frame house can easily be made to harmonize with its surroundings—a fresh coat of paint often will make it as good as your neighbor's new house—the same as a new suit makes you feel like a new man. At any rate a frame house is susceptible to most any change you might desire and while it is permanent it does not necessarily need become an eyesore or a monotony. There are lots of things we've observed about houses and lumber that you should know before building—come in and we'll give you our views.
