A SPLENDID SHOWING.

MANY ATTEND LOCAL REVIVAL

Rev. Geo. L. White Has Big Congregations at Baptist Meetings Sunday.

The "Good News" revival services at the Baptist church was largely attended yesterday. Crowded houses greeted Rev. Geo. L. White, superintendent for the Pacific coast of the American Baptist Publication Society. Splendid singing by the large choir was also a feature.

"I am not an evangelist," said Mr. White at the morning service. "In fact I hardly know what I am, since coming in overland by stage. I just came here to help for a few days this pastor and people." Taking his text, "Freely ye have received, freely give," Mr. White said, in part:

"Naturally people consider this text in connection with the giving of money. I pity the man who has nothing more to give God than a little money. I think that if one has nothing but money to offer he has but little to give. Now I know what you can give. I've looked you all up and I know just what you are worth. You are worth just nothing of yourselves. It all belongs to God, anyhow, and we have nothing that we can rightfully call our own. Your wealth and all belongs to God.

"People today do not appreciate what they really do possess. You say you are poor. You don't know the rudiments even of poverty. In Indiana my father saw people dying because there were no more roots to gnaw. In China today people are dying for want of food.

"We should give what we have to God. We have what we have because of His great kind Providential care. We have besides material things intellectual faculties, Bible knowledge—heart power. The accumulated results of scholarly research. Freely ye have received, freely give, and the kingdom of God will be advanced."

At 3 p. m. Tuesday, Rev. C. H. McKee will conduct a meeting at the Baptist church.

LOGGER LOSES A $35 WATCH

M. Maginnis Reports Time-Piece Was Stolen—Bill Monroe Sought.

M. Maginnis, an aged logger, reported to Marshal Carter and Justice Tennock today that he had been robbed of a $35 gold watch Saturday. Maginnis had been on a protracted spree and his knowledge of the time his watch disappeared was rather hazy. He had not fully recovered today from his celebration.

It was reported that another logger named Bill Monroe had sold a gold watch to Proprietor Coleman of a local saloon for $5. The watch closely tallies with the description that Maginnis gave of his missing time piece.

Monroe has disappeared and is reported to have gone north. He is supposed to have a home or relative at Portland. He gave his name as J. C. Monroe to a local second-hand dealer the other day.

No charges have been filed in the case but the local officers are endeavoring to locate Monroe and have him explain about the watch he sold to Mr. Coleman.

Maginnis has not established his claim to the watch sufficiently to warrant returning it to him.

MOTHER SAYS MAN IMPOSTER

Kimmel Case, Supposed to Have Coos County Connection, on at St. Louis.

The following dispatch from St. Louis gives the latest developments in the case of Geo. A. Kimmel, whose relatives allege he was murdered in Coos county in 1898 while seeking a buried treasure here and whom the insurance companies claim is living under an assumed name:

"Melodrama reached its climax in the Kimmel case when Mrs. Estelle Kimmel, 68 years old, and the man, apparently 69, who is put forward by an insurance company as her son, George A. Kimmel, stood side by side before the jury and when, after comparing their feature by feature, S. N. Taylor, of counsel, demanded:

"'It that man your son?'"

"'He is not my son,'" replied the mother in a firm voice. 'My instinct and mother love,' she testified with streaming eyes and trembling voice, 'would tell me if he (meaning the claimant) were my son, bone of my bone and flesh of my flesh. And I would recognize him.'

"'You feel absolutely sure then,' she was asked, 'that he is no longer living?'"

"'Yes, I am sure my son is dead.'"

"'Mother love or money love?'"

This harsh question was put by counsel for the defense to Mrs. Estelle Kimmel shortly before court adjourned when he reviewed in examination her statement that she would rather have her son back than all the millions of the insurance company which is being sued to recover mel. Kimmel disappeared from Arkansas City, Kan., in 1898.

"You say you would like to have your son back," said the lawyer. "Do you mean you would like to have this convict with record stained with crime and his body and mind marred by disease?'"

"I want my son back as he may be," replied the mother earnestly, "with all the infirmity of deformity that may accrue with years, but I don't want a convict who does not resemble my son in a single feature."

Industrial Accidents Double During Dark Months

Accident insurance statistics show that twice as many injuries to factory operatives occur in the dark winter months as during the light summer months.

The cause principally is poor interior lighting; too few lamps and poor methods of illumination.

Bad factory lighting also diminishes production and adds to damaged material.

Our lighting experts will plan installations for workrooms and factories which will reduce the personal injury list, increase production and very likely decrease the expense of lighting.

A representative will call at your request.

Home Permanency vs. Home Monotony

This is a vital question for present day homebuilders—whether to have a house which in appearance must always remain the same or a house that will permit of a little refreshing occasional change as do individual tastes—a frame house easily be made to harmonize with its surroundings—a fresh coat of paint often will make it as good as your neighbor's new house—the same as a new suit makes you feel like a new man. In any rate a frame house is susceptible to most any change you might desire and while it is permanent it does not necessarily become an eyesore or a monotony. There are lots of things we've observed about houses and lumber that you should know before building—come in and we'll give you our views.

NEW JERSEY MAN CHOSEN

C. M. Pitney Nominated by Taft for Associate Justice of U. S. Supreme Court.

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—President Taft sent to the Senate today the nomination of Chancellor Mahlon Pitney of New Jersey as associate justice of the United States Supreme Court. He also nominated Julius M. Mayer of New York City as judge of the United States District Court for the southern district of New York, and Ferdinand A. Geiger of Cassville, Wis., to be district judge in the east district of Wisconsin.

IOWAN ENTERS PROTEST.

Labor Leader Opposes Appointment of Pitney to Bench.
 (By Associated Press to the Coos Bay Times)

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 19.—A. L. Erick, president of the Iowa Federation of Labor, today wired Senator Cummins and Kenyon at Washington protesting against the appointment by Taft of Chancellor Mahlon Pitney of New Jersey to succeed the late Justice Harlan on the Supreme bench.

In a statement, Erick said the appointment of Pitney is inimical to the interests of the entire working class of the United States. He cited several recent judicial opinions as evidence of this statement, referring particularly to the case of Frank and Dungan versus Herold as indicating Pitney as being irrevocably pledged to property rights as against human rights.

TELLS WHY HENS DON'T LAY EGGS IN WINTER

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside the Poultry Editor makes the following interesting report:

"The price of fresh eggs went soaring after Thanksgiving, and just at that time nearly all hens quit laying. They did not go on a strike, but just quit because they had to. I have received quite a number of letters from people in several states asking why the hens do not lay and how to make them lay. Two farmers wrote that they had about decided to sell all their fowls but about half a dozen, because when the price of eggs was high they did not lay, and when it was down below cost of feed, they laid steadily.

"I have found it very difficult to make people understand that a hen cannot make eggs and feathers at the same time. She can lay when she is shedding her feathers, because there is no drain on her system for any other purpose. But when the new coat of feathers is started, she quits, simply because she cannot do double duty—make feathers and eggs at the same time. When people learn this fact, they will not expect eggs from a hen that is growing a coat of feathers. And then they may also learn how to manage their hatching and feeding so as to get eggs in the late fall and winter, when they want them badly. And when they learn that there will not be pounds, peppered stockfolds, panaceas and back-breaking bone-cutters.

"Pullets that are hatched early in April will make layers of Thanksgiving eggs if they are fed during the summer so that they will be matured by that time. As a rule people feel their little chicks very well, but when they are pretty well feathered, the supply of food given them is not sufficient to push them rapidly to maturity. There is only one way to feed growing pullets satisfactorily and that is to keep an abundance."

ADAM'S LUCK.

Adam never had to listen to people who remembered how many days it rained and how much fell in years that he had forgotten.

THE RAIN SONG.

O, the murmuring drip of the rain from the eaves
 And the melody sweet that the murmuring weaves!
 'Tis a memory-melody born of the heart
 In the simplest of strains, of the commonest art,
 Yet the drip and the drop of the rain in the night
 Times a lyrical linking of laughter and light.

In the drowsiest, dreamiest, dimmest refrain
 Comes the song of the summer, of meadow and lane,
 Of the bees in the clover, and roses in bloom,
 And of breezes that wafted a wondrous perfume—
 For the musical drip of the rain muffled the sounds of the world,
 In a song of the days that are vanished and gone.

It is so softly and is so solemnly sweet
 As the measures all mellowly rise and repeat,
 And in memory now I have journeyed afar
 Down the paths of the past where our treasures are;
 And with boyheart thrill I lie hushed in the dusk,
 While the air brings a tangle of the mind and the musk.

And the shadows that sway in their dance on the wall
 Keep the time of the time of the drops as they fall,
 Keep the time of the song as of old they would keep
 With the drip of the rain as it lulled me to sleep;
 And the hush of the night in the silence of old
 That had all of the world's joy in its velvety hold.

O, the magic there is in the memories best
 With the ripple of rain as it sings you to rest!
 How the worries and weariness falter and cease
 Neath the balsam and balm of the infinite peace
 Of the song that is sung by the whispered leaves
 And the murmuring drip of the rain from the eaves!

THAT SCHOOL PROBLEM.

That communication from a North Bend reader of The Times appearing in the Saturday issue makes a strong and able presentation of a certain phase of our educational system that should receive more attention. The Times has previously referred to the same subject in an editorial way, but not so strikingly suggestive as this article, the writer of which has evidently given the matter much thought and study. The public school system today should give more attention to preparing pupils in a practical manner for the needs of life today. It should take into account, as this writer suggests, the fact that a large per cent of the pupils drop out of school before reaching the eighth grade. Then it should be the plan of any practical educational system to equip these boys and girls in the most thorough manner to meet the duties and demands of life that they will find waiting them outside the school room doors. This does not mean the abandonment of all the so-called "frills" of the schools, or any of life's best ideals. The soul needs nourishment as well as the body. Elementary music and drawing and anything that tends to a development of an appreciation of all that is beautiful in life is as important as the "three R's."

It is a hopeful sign that this matter is receiving the attention of thoughtful and practical men and women.

LOADS BRIDGE COLLAPSES.

Twohy Team and Driver Fall Into River—One Horse Killed.
 EUGENE, Or., Feb. 19.—The bridge across Blak creek on the road to Nott (about 20 miles from Eugene), collapsed under the weight of a Twohy Bros. construction team, and precipitated the equipment and driver, J. M. Gould, of Eugene, into 10 feet of water.

Mr. Gould cut the horses loose, although suffering himself from a seriously bruised leg. One of the horses sustained a broken leg and had to be shot.
