CHASE GIVES REASONS

Senator Explains Why He Is Not a Candidate for Re-election.

P. M. Hall-Lewis, chairman of the Coos County republican central committee, has received the following self explanatory letter from W. C. Chase of Coquille relative to his attitude on the senatorship: "As you are aware, I have for a long time been besieged by many friends, on every hand, relative to my being returned to the legislature for another term. I have considered the matter seriously and carefully. I have also given considerable thought to the political situation in our state, and the welfare of the republican party. Other aspirants are seeking to know my wishes, and since the time has arrived when I feel that I should announce my position concerning the state senatorship, I have decided to state, that inasmuch as a division of the republican vote at this time might jeopardize the election of a republican to our state senate, considerations of party fealty have caused me to determine not to be a candidate for renomination. "While I deeply and most sincerely appreciate the earnest solicitations and generous confidence of my friends, I wish to point out that it is vitally important that harmony should exist and that the unity of the republican party be maintained upon a safe and consistent platform, and that it is the duty of every republican to subserve the interests of our people by strict adherence to the principles of his Party, and loyalty to our State. "Any announcement, at this time, as to my future political aspirations, in view of the foregoing, would, I take it, be improper."

WANT TO GET MORE MEMBERS

Marshfield Development Club to Interest More in the Organization.

At a meeting of the Marshfield Development League last evening the membership committee was instructed to make a more active campaign to enroll more and secure a larger attendance. Last night's meeting was held in their new hall, formerly known as the Redmen's hall, on North Front street. There were about 25 in attendance.

There were a number of impromptu talks on the value of such an organization and what might be accomplished by it and also on increasing the membership. Among those talking along this line were J. C. Kendall, M. C. Horton, I. S. Smith, C. I. Reigard, A. H. Stutsman and R. A. Copple. Mr. Copple in his remarks stated that some had tried to make it appear that the organization was for his benefit and was only for those who had supported him. He said this was incorrect as the organization was for all who wished to aid in the upbuilding of Marshfield.

It was decided that the regular meetings should be held the first and third Friday evenings of each month. Instead of fixing any membership fee, it was decided that the incidental expenses should be met by voluntary contributions, $9.05 being raised last night by Treasurer Eugene O'Connell when he passed the hat.

R. A. Copple asked that the committee recently appointed to have the city council retain the 90-day residence qualification for voting at city elections be continued until the council finally acts on the matter. Upon request of Chairman Kendall of the membership committee, the committee was increased to eight. B. Maloney, Jens Hansen and W. B. Cox being added to it.
