Those who were in the audience hearing Mrs. Elfrida Heller Weinstein at her presentation in Marshfield under the auspices of the Cham-laine Club in one of their many concerts will be intensely interested in the complimentary extract that appears together with her picture in the Sunday Oregonian of March 24. One of the songs Mrs. Weinstein sang before Schumann-Heink, "Dich Theure Halle," was one that the Marshfield audience was privileged to hear. The extract is as follows:

Madame Schumann-Heink has made a personal protege of Mrs. Elfrida Heller Weinstein, the dramatic soprano of this city, and Mrs. Weinstein, with her husband, leaves here May 1 for Europe to enter professional work in grand opera under Schumann-Heink's direction.

When Schumann-Heink recently sang here in concert, there were numerous amateur and professional singers who asked Schumann-Heink to hear them sing, and begged for her frank opinion as to their capabilities as singers. Some of the applicants were scolded—but in the kindest terms—for presuming to think they could sing and thus waste some of Schumann-Heink's valuable time. Other singers were praised, but the understanding was that the "tryout" was confidential and nothing that happened would be spoken of outside. When Mrs. Weinstein's turn came, she sang, to a splendid piano accompaniment, "Dich Theure Halle," from Wagner's "Tannhaeuser," and next she sang, with fine dramatic fire and thrilling interpretation, "Brunnhilde's Battle Cry" from Wagner's "Valkyrie." No sooner had Mrs. Weinstein finished singing than, according to those who were witnesses of the interesting scene, Schumann-Heink began to cry softly, and she placed her arms around Mrs. Weinstein.

"My dear," said Schumann-Heink, "what on earth are you doing remaining here in the United States? You ought to be in grand opera in Europe! Nobody on the Metropolitan stage in New York can sing 'Brunnhilde's Battle Cry' better than you can. If you wish to begin in grand opera, I predict that you will be a second Gadsdi." With this flattering comment ringing in her ears, Mrs. Weinstein leaves with her husband next month to enter upon a European operatic career.

KILLED ELK HERE
The North Bend Harbor says: It is currently stated that St. Noah, game warden, recently discovered a fine specimen of elk antlers in a taxidermist's shop in Marshfield, and upon making inquiry learned that the antlers were sent there through a local express concern by Thomas B. James and L. A. Frey of North Bend. It is stated that they were held in storage for two years, which allows time for prosecution to elapse, and that the bull was shot near Allegany. St. Noah is quoted as stating that he was powerless to prosecute the offenders, as the time limit had expired.

CALL TO THE PEOPLE OF COOS COUNTY

Miocene Oil & Gas Company Offers Treasury Stock for Sale.

(From Bandon Recorder.)
The Miocene Oil & Gas Company hereby offers for sale to the public at large, without restriction, not to exceed $3000.00 worth of its treasury stock at $10.00 per share, par value for which certificates will be at once issued upon receipt of money, for any amount equal to one share or more.

Every person who has an interest or investment in Coos County will be benefited by the success of the Bear Creek Oil Well, and the enterprise is such that it deserves and in fact requires the co-operation of every business person in this county.

The well is put down 2340 feet and has all the indications of a good producer and has met with favorable comment and a belief of success from every man of all experience who has seen the well whether he be a driller or producer.

There has been a persistent and enthusiastic effort on the part of at least 75 per cent of the stockholders to put the prospect to the limit of our equipment, and with the past we have, under the present conditions, we are able to go down 200 to 500 feet deeper, and have ordered casing and all necessary equipment to do so; but in order to accomplish this, it is necessary that we have material assistance from the people who are interested. We therefore take this means of giving every resident of Coos County an opportunity to buy stock.

In order to get results it is necessary for the people who are to be benefited or interested to take an active part in going after results. We are informed that there are many people in this county who are interested and anxious that this enterprise should be a success, and who are able to help make it so, but who have not so far lent their assistance, and that if an opportunity was given they would do so. We therefore take this means of putting that opportunity in your way; with the assistance of those who are to be benefited and who are interested in this prospect, we can accomplish what appears at this time to be an assured success if only followed up.

Why not take an active interest in this matter and lend assistance even though it be much or little? If we cannot depend upon the people who will be benefited by the enterprise, which we have put, with all the efforts at our disposal, from an expert to practically an assured success, we cannot expect any support from other sources.

If this article does not interest you you can at least boost for what you know will benefit you, if successful, and if you cannot boost, you are not required to knock.
