BUILDING A CITY ON COOS BAY

HE TIMES is pleased to note the activity of the manufacturera' committee of the Chamber of Commerce, but there are many other features that should not be ignored in laying the foundation guished sanitary engineer, in writing recently on "The Development of Municipal Utilities in the South,"

"We hear a great deal about at-tracting industrial and manufacturing concerns to a community by all sorts of inducements, free water and free power for a time; free sites, low or no taxation, and for a while, even cash bonuses. But there is a higher, better and more certain standard determining the desirability of location. The careful, conservative man or manufacturer will look further than the short time effect or the above named conditions. He will ask not only, 'What are your natural facilities,' and 'What pre the inducements you will offer for a period of time, as above, but more important still, 'What are your provisions for public utilities?' 'What of the methods and efficiency and honesty of your government forces as they affect the life of your com-munity, and are they actuated by honest, right living, efficient effort? Are you planning for the health of the community by a clear and pure water supply and sanitary disposal of sewage, household refuse and wastes? Are you planning for proper transit and traffic facilities that the people can get about to and from work and to the snopping disyou planning for good, well-administered schools, playgrounds, small open-air spaces and larger parks, with plenty of constitutions. with plenty of opportunities for the children to grow up in a normal, open-air healthful existence?" "We are fast coming to the time.

if it is not already here, when the manufacturer for his own alvertage and his own pocketbook, because his help will thus stay with him as we'll as because of his broad humanicarian viewpoint, will ask these last questions largely, rather than how much power, water or land can I get free or how many years' freedom from faxation."

The first and last need of the city, the one that outweighs all o'ny p. 's civic spirit and the expression of that apirit in great and enduring public works, erected for the common welfare. Chief among these, according to modern standards and modern necessities, is a system of parka playgrounds and open spac-u, ade-quate in extent, artistic in design, scientific in construction and libera!

NEW COMPANY'S TROUBLES

Employes or Guthrey Threaten Suit. The Coquille Sentinel says:

A. Swedberg, local representative and mining engineer for the Pulaski Coal & Navigation Company, who has been in Coquille since January 27, has resigned his position with the company, his resignation to take effect April 1. The reason for his resignation, he says, is that the company has neglected to pay his wages and expenses, and the wages of the other local men who have been in the company's employ. Mr. Swedberg says he has taken the necessary steps toward legal proceedings for the recovery of the money due him, and that unless he is paid by April 1, a miner's lien will be filed against the company's mining property in this county.

The Pulaski Coal & Navigation Company some time ago purchased what was then known as the Pike coal property on the Coquille river below this city. H. B. Guthrey, president of the company, conducted the negotiations and secured the properties. His plans as then explained to the Sentinel were somewhat extensive and it is surprising that no provision has been made for paying the men who have been in the company's employ.

An Explanation

You may think it absurd for an electric company to advise patrons how to economize in the consumption of electric current.

We do it because a satisfied customer is the only good customer.

We do it because we know that tungsten lighting with modern shades and fixtures will give you at the light you want without increasing the bille

The tungsten lamp costs more than the old style carbon incandescent, but it renders nearly three times as much light with the same consumption of electric current.
