A LULLABY

Lady Moon, O Lady Moon,
Here's a little sleepy girlie that must go to slumber soon!
Won't you glide across the window on your shining silver wings,
Won't you spare twilight and noon
Just one tiny tender minute to this cot with baby in it?
Thought I know you are so busy with a hundred million things
Lady Moon, O Lady Moon.

Let her see the polished buckles on your gleaming silver shoes
Let her touch your diamond rings and the star dust on your wings;
And should you bend above her—ah! but that would be a boom!
And kiss her little rosy lips, how kind, O Lady Moon!

Lady Moon, O Lady Moon,
Tell her just one fairy story that you've gathered as you go
From the pine woods or the snow,
From the gayly lighted cities or the stars above them strew;
There's a sleepy little girlie that would like so much to know
Just one little fairy story, Lady Moon!

Lady Moon, O Lady Moon,
It is late, and you're so busy with so many trysts to keep,
And our little wide-eyed babba—it is time she went to sleep!
With those cheeks that mock December
With their roses picked in June;
Though she's sleepy she'll remember,
She'll remember, Lady Moon!

en the religious folks might show more respect for the creations of the God they worship.

"When the body or parts of it are exposed, the general effect of beauty is increased for two reasons. One is, that what is visible must be taken care of, and the other is the gain in consciousness of the body. That is, it gains the power or expression which continual exposure has already given the face. How entirely beautiful is the modern evening gown with its exposure of shoulders and back and the train which makes a harmonious relation between past and present movements!

"And there is another type of modern dress which has its own beauty," concluded Mr. Henri. "It is the dress which the individual has adapted to some special occupation, such as the four-year-old shooting suit, the owner having long since thrown away its unnecessary buttons and chains. Such a dress may not be 'smart' but it's right—and therefore—beautiful."

Mrs. F. E. Hague was hostess Monday afternoon at Bridge at her beautiful home in Kittyville. The spacious house had been artistically decorated with greens and red carnations which fairly banked the walls and corners. Greens hung from doorways and chandeliers, knotted with bunches of vivid red carnations and the whole was lighted with innumerable red-shaded candles. The favors were of Easter design. The dainty refreshments echoed the red and green color scheme. In serving, Mrs. Hague was assisted by Mrs. F. E. Leefe, Mrs. E. K. Jones, Mrs. W. T. Merchant, Miss Maude Reed and Mrs. E. C. Paddock. Mrs. J. W. Flanagan was winner of the first prize, Mrs. Claude Nasburg of the second, and Mrs. W. S. Nicholson of the consolation prize. Among those invited were Mesdames E. W. Kammerer, D. Y. Stafford, F. M. Parsons, W. S. Turpen, J. W. Flanagan, W. H. Kennedy, J. M. Upton, W. F. Miller, C. R. Peck, C. K. Perry, H. S. Tower, J. T. Harrigan, Wm. Horsfall, Jr., Ward M. Blake, E. E. Mingus, J. H. Flanagan, F. E. Leefe, A. H. Powers, Dorsey Kretzer, J. S. Coke, A. T. Haines, F. K. Gettins, W. A. Toye, E. C. Paddock, J. Albert Matson, A. E. Neff, M. C. Horton, E. E. Straw, Fred Bachman, R. K. Booth, C. M. Byler, A. L. Houseworth, W. T. Merchant, L. J. Simpson, E. G. Perham, E. F. Morrissey, W. E. Dungan, J. H. Miller, Claude Nasburg, Warren Painter, C. F. McCullom, C. W. Tower, D. C. Greene, S. C. Small, Wm. Scott, Jr., A. Ralph O'Brien, C. F. McKnight, W. S. Nicholson, W. F. McEldowney, F. A. Cohan, F. G. Horton, E. K. Jones, Eugene O'Connell, E. G. Flanagan, H. J. McKeown, Guy Warner, M. C. Maloney, J. W. Bennett, Morton Tower of Empire, J. T. McCormac, C. E. Nicholson, G. W. Kaufman, Otto Schetter, I. S. Kaufman, Harry Nasburg, W. U. Douglas, Elie Farringer, Earl Downing, W. S. Chandler, H. Lockhart, H. Reed and Arthur McKeown; Misses O'Brien, Agnes Hutchison, Evelyn Anderson, Alice Butler, Maude Reed and Marie Maloney.

the moment which do not help to display her individual graces, and which may even impede these, she is not dressed beautifully.

"And a woman should study herself as a painter studies the scene or figure which he is about to transfer to canvas. She should note the color of her hair and eyes, the texture of her skin, the lines of her figure. And then she should choose those fabrics, shades and forms of dress, which—I cannot repeat the phrase too often—reveal and emphasize all her graces.

"The average woman dresses the better for the assistance of professional artists in dress and she should make it her business to consult them whenever possible. I have much praise for the great modern designers of costumes for women. They have learned the secret of studying the individual and their productions are not duplicated because they know that the dress which is beautiful on one woman will not be beautiful on another.

"I believe that in the future there will be many more of these great establishments, where a woman can go and buy the dresses which naturally belong to her, which harmonize with her personality. Then, of course, we shall have a great many more kinds of dress than we have now. Instead of likeness, the quality of difference will be observable in the gowns. But even now uniformity of style is less apparent than formerly.

"Do you want to comment on the hobble skirt?" I asked. "It seems to be a bete noir of the other artists."

"I hesitate to speak of it," returned Mr. Henri, "because my opinion of it is subject to so many qualifications. I don't like it when it impedes the movement of a person trying to walk or go up stairs as sometimes happens. I do like it when it reveals the form."

"Generally speaking, a dress is not beautiful if it in any way hinders the free movements of the human body. Gesture must not be checked, for it is the physical presentation of mental beauty. Above all things, a woman ought to be able to assume one easy, graceful pose after another, and this is impossible if her balance is destroyed by her garments."

"But surely the modern woman is impeded by her tight shoes and corsets," said.

"That depend on whether they are tight," replied the artist.

"Corsets may be used or they may be abused. I certainly should not agree with the persons who want all women to take off their corsets at once. Then we would have the result without the preparation for it. A woman's body must first be so exercised and strengthened that she can dispense with the aid of whalebone and other supports. She must not try to do without them before she has acquired strength of her own."

"As for shoes, I fancy that some future designer will make a great change in them. He will design some model which will at once give the foot more room and more support. The foot will be allowed a chance to breathe. I have no definite design in mind.

"There is a gradual, if more or less unconscious, tendency in modern dress toward less concealment of the form," continued Mr. Henri. "This movement ought to be encouraged. We have got to get over the idea that the entire body is something to be ashamed of. It seems to me that ev-

"She went crazy over Bridge."

"Sad, very sad."

"Oh, no great harm done. Her family placed her in a fashionable sanitarium and now she's playing a better game than ever."

Mrs. E. F. Morrissey was hostess Wednesday afternoon at one of the prettiest luncheons of the after-Lenten season. Her decorations were miscellaneous, chiefly green and white and of Easter design. The seven tables at which she entertained were very pretty with centerpieces of rabbits' nests and eggs and smilax and daisies. Mrs. A. T. Haines was assistant-hostess. Place cards were shaped and colored like Easter lilies. At the Five-Hundred that followed the luncheon, the bunny-shaped score-cards of Mrs. W. F. McEldowney and Mrs. L. W. Traver showed the highest counts, and their owners were accordingly awarded the dainty prizes of cut glass and silver. Among those invited were Mrs. J. S. Coke, Mrs. W. S. Nicholson, Mrs. Esther B. Converse, Mrs. F. E. Hague, Mrs. J. W. Bennett, Mrs. A. Ralph O'Brien, Mrs. D. Y. Stafford, Mrs. C. K. Perry, Mrs. F. E. Leefe, Mrs. S. C. Small, Mrs. L. W. Traver, Mrs. W. A. Reid, Mrs. A. B. Gidley, Mrs. P. A. Sandberg, Mrs. W. E. Warwick, Mrs. F. M. Parsons, Mrs. A. T. Haines, Mrs. W. F. Miller, Mrs. Chas. Q. Van Duyn, Mrs. J. T. Harrigan, Mrs. F. G. Horton, Mrs. A. L. Houseworth, Mrs. C. F. McKnight, Mrs. Dorsey Kretzer, Mrs. Eugene Crosthwait, Mrs. F. K. Gettins, Mrs. A. E. Neff, Mrs. A. H. Powers, Mrs. G. F. Murch, Mrs. Earl Downing, Mrs. D. C. Greene, Mrs. A. KNOW FROM EXPERIENCE

Hobbs—This being leap year, I suppose it is proper to say "she led him to the altar."

Dobbs—It's always proper. It is the bride who does the steering; the man generally has the blind staggers.

The Marshfield Improvement Club started off with a rush at its first meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening. Altho' the attendance was not as large as could have been wished and as Marshfield should offer, those who did attend made up in enthusiasm and progressive spirit the lack in numbers. Mr. Tiedgen and the High School Faculty inaugurated active movement by giving all hands a holiday yesterday and setting the boys to work "wid de shubbel an' de hoe" to make a start toward making the High School grounds the thing of beauty that they could be made with just such time and effort. Among private families the little whereat boys are first in the field, having spaded their garden and prepared it for flower seeds. If everyone would make as good a start as these little lads the town would be almost unrecognizable in a few months.

A second meeting is to be held Tuesday evening at the Chamber of Commerce to continue the work started. Between fifteen and twenty members are so far enrolled with the secretary.

The Marshfield W. C. T. U., having been so successful in their boys' Demorest medal contest, are arranging a program for the girls of the High School to give April 19. The girls taking part are Alta Soule, Evelyn Langworthy, May Myren, Besale Flanagan, Agnes Sandquist, Harriet Hansen, of the Marshfield High school, and Miss Lund, daughter of W. W. Lund of Ferndale.

The Altar Guild of St. Mary's Episcopal church met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Fred Hollister in North Bend for a few pleasant hours of sewing. Election of officers had been scheduled for that day but owing to the small attendance the business was postponed until the next meeting, April 24, when Mrs. L. J. Simpson will be hostess. Present Thursday were Mrs. I. B. Bartle, Mrs. C.

M. Byler, Mrs. Jas. Allen, Mrs. Geo. Hollister, Mrs. J. E. Babcock, Miss Gertrude Mandigo and Mrs. Fred Hollister.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Bailey Wednesday entertained a number of their North Bend neighbors at a very pleasant and informal evening of Bridge, including among their guests Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Coleman, Dr. and Mrs. I. B. Bartle and Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Horn.

Mrs. L. F. Falkenstein is spending a few days' vacation at Ten Mile.

Miss Jessie Armstrong, aged seven, gave a children's Easter-egg party and hunt Saturday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Armstrong, of North Bend. The various children of the neighborhood were invited and spent a merry afternoon in the quest for hidden eggs and were served a delightful little lunch by the small hostess' mother. Among the little guests were Miss Margaret Best, Miss Ruth Watters, Miss Catherine Swearingen, Miss Signa Christenson and brother and sister, Misses Mabel and Gladys Clockett, Miss Sigrid Anderson, Miss Vera Armstrong, Masters Hobart and Harold McDaniel, Gunnard Anderson, Burton and Vivian Clockett and Harry Kern.

Miss Edna Lewis of Portland arrived on the Breakwater yesterday morning to visit for some time at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. Mingus.

Miss Violet Henderson left this week for Oakland, Calif., where she will spend part of a two months' vacation. She will visit at other California points during her absence and may make a trip east.

The Sister of Bethany held no meeting this week but will be entertained Tuesday, April 16, by Mrs. Harry Bradford.

The Coos Bay Motor Boat Club will hold its last meeting Monday evening at the club rooms in North Bend when the gentlemen of the club will be in sole charge of the entertainment and refreshments, giving the ladies a well-earned rest. On this night the final counts will be made and the year's prizes awarded.

R. J. Coke came in by way of Bandon last week from California where he reports the weather fine. Mrs. Coke is in Los Angeles and intends to prolong her visit for three or four months more before returning to the Bay.

Mrs. W. S. Turpen was hostess to a number of North Bend and Marshfield ladies Wednesday evening at Bridge. Among those making up the two tables were Mrs. Geo. Geisendorfer, Mrs. T. W. Rennie, Mrs. C. M. Byler, and Mrs. L. J. Simpson of North Bend, and Mrs. J. W. Bennett, Mrs. W. T. Merchant and Mrs. Claude Nasburg of Marshfield.

"He asked me if I loved him." This to Helen said Marie. "At first I would not answer, but He squeezed it out of me!"

L. J. Simpson returned on the Breakwater Friday morning, by way of Portland, from his southern trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Carey of Portland, formerly of North Bend, are this week for Los Angeles, where they plan to make their future home.

Mrs. Elmer Russell of North Bend, who left about a month ago for Los Angeles, California, is much improved and very enthusiastic in her praise of the southern climate as letters to friends indicate. She will not return to the Bay until late summer or early fall.

Melvin Jacobson is spending his Easter vacation with his parents in North Bend. He is attending college in Oakland.

Mrs. W. F. Miller is planning to leave May 4 for the east for a visit with relatives. She will probably go direct to New York, possibly stopping in Chicago, and will visit friends in various cities on the return trip.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church is to meet Wednesday, April 17, with Mrs. M. C. Horton.

The C. I. E. club spent a merry evening at the home of Miss Beulah Ayre in South Marshfield, Tuesday evening. Misses Bessie Fyfe, Edith Hildenbrand, Beatrice Smith, Mrs. Hansen and Eliza Ayre were present. The club is to give a progressive lunch Monday evening beginning at the home of Miss Bessie Fyfe.

Mrs. T. C. Russell and Miss The Sneddon of Beaver Hill spent Wednesday night as the guests of Mrs. W. T. Miller, attending Mrs. Morley's luncheon in the afternoon.

Mrs. F. M. Parsons entertained formally at Bridge Wednesday evening Mrs. T. C. Russell and Miss The Sneddon of Beaver Hill, Mrs. W. F. Miller, Mrs. Eugene Crosthwait, Mrs. Dorsey Kretzer and Mrs. A. L. Houseworth.

The Ladies' Aid of the North Bend Methodist Episcopal church met at Mrs. J. S. Newkirk of North Bend Heights Thursday afternoon. Sewing and conversation were the afternoon's diversions. Present were Mrs. Albert Hisey, Mrs. S. S. Ritchie, Mrs. S. W. Tope, Mrs. Chas. Van Zile, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Elmer Wood, Mrs. G. Wilson, Mrs. R. B. Freer, Mrs. F. W.

TO go about your work or your play or your social engagements well dressed, but economically.

That is the ambition of every man on Coos Bay. He may not express the desire, or way not even think it out loud, but he has it. I have lived in Marshfield for a good many years, and I know the ins and outs of everyday life here. Because I understand the difficulties of dressing right at comparatively small expense, I have laid before you all the skill and high workmanship of the Stein-Bloch tailors.

These clothes are at your disposal, to be tried before our mirrors at any time. The earlier, however, the better.
