First Addition To Marshfield

Reynolds Development Co.

Coke Bldg. Owners Tel. 160-J.

Take your Sunday walk out South Fifth Street; follow the Boulevard bordering Coal Bank Inlet and as you stroll along the sheltered way towards Eastport notice the beautiful property that has been platted into building sites and is now being sold at low prices and on terms to suit your income. Your walk will be a pleasant one; just a few minutes from the city—no hills to climb nor bridges to cross and the most attractive driveway in Marshfield.

NOTED W.C.T.U. SPEAKER HERE

MRS. JACKSON SILBOUGH, WHO AIDED IN RECALL OF MAYOR GILL AT SEATTLE, WILL TOUR COOS COUNTY.

Mrs. Jackson Silbough, one of the leading W. C. T. U. workers in the Pacific Northwest, arrived in North Bend today on a tour of Southwestern Oregon. Concerning her, Mrs. Robt. McCann, of North Bend, received the following letter:

"Mrs. Jackson Silbough is one of the best speakers sent out by the National W. C. T. U. She is the wife of a prominent Seattle lawyer and her close association with her husband has given her a legal knowledge of the temperance question that is not equalled by any one of the speakers to be secured in Oregon. She was one of a dozen persons who secured by her personal investigation the knowledge of the conditions in Seattle which finally resulted in the recall of Mayor Gill. The interest in Mrs. Silbough's meetings should not be confined to members of our organization, but everyone who wants to see the Oregon saloon outlawed should use every effort to secure her a large hearing. Every person who believes in the legal prohibition of the traffic should not only work to secure a hearing for this eloquent woman, but should attend every one of her meetings. We will never know the power exerted by sympathizers with the speaker in making the address a powerful one."

Mrs. Silbough will hold meetings as follows:

North Bend, Sunday afternoon at United Brethren church.
Marshfield, Sunday evening at Baptist church.
Cooston, Monday evening at school house.
Sumner, Tuesday evening.
Eastside, Wednesday evening.
North Bend, Thursday evening at Eckhoff Hall.
Coquille, Friday evening.
Bandon, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Silbough organized the women for the election and was one of the election officers, giving her a special insight into the great struggle for civic righteousness. We deem the state W. C. T. U. fortunate to have secured Mrs. Silbough for a tour of the state at this time. Her ability to render assistance in our battle against the saloon will depend on the number of people she may reach in her audiences. This will almost wholly depend on the personal work of friends of our cause where she speaks.

JOHNNY'S GARDEN
I'm going to have a garden, yes; but you need not suppose that in it will be planted a tulip or a rose.
For I am going to purchase the plants that I like best. And here's a list of some of them—
I've not thought up the rest. I'm very fond of oyster stew, and oysters broiled or fried. And so I'll have an oyster-plant, to keep me well supplied. And as I just love omelets,—and sometimes hens won't lay,— A thrifty egg-plant I'll set out, and pick the eggs each day.
Then I am very fond of pie,—and they're kept out of reach,— So I'll have the large pie-plants, apple and mince and peach.
And I shall have a rubber-plant, and when there's rain or frost I'll just run out and pick a pair—for mice are always lost.
Another plant I want to buy,—I've never seen it yet,— But seems to me it would be wise some candytuft to get.
And so, you see, I've thought up all the things that I like best; And, as I said, I haven't yet decided on the rest.

"LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE AND HOW OUR GIRLS' CLUB HELPED HER."

(By Eddeva Wheeler of Fifth grade)
The girls of the club were having a jolly time in the club room. Soon the ten o'clock bell rang and they scampered home. The night was dark, cold and dreary. The snow was over two feet deep. Many policemen were on the corners outside as well as inside the city.
As four of the girls lived outside the city they started ahead of the rest. They were moving forward rapidly. Marget, being the eldest of the four, acted as chaperon. She knew no fear, for her father, Mr. Oming, was one of the policemen on Eighty-fifth street. She knew they were nearing that street for they saw the gleam of his lantern. As they approached him, he seemed to be leaning over something. Hastening to her father, Marget saw a small girl lying on a pile of wet hay. She began at once to question her father about the child.
"We will take her home and put her in a warm bed," he said. "I found her here sound asleep a few minutes ago."
The child was ragged and had on a pair of old shoes that were too large, also. It was black but very large, also. It was black but very wet and dirty. They did not disturb her sleep but took her to their home.
The next morning the child awakened to find herself in a strange house. She was very much frightened at first, but Mrs. Oming being a very kind lady comforted her by telling her she would always be happy in her new home, for they meant to keep her. Mrs. Oming asked the child her name and where she came from. She said her name was Annie Leaf. Her mother had died of the fever and her father would no longer care for her. "I have been selling papers for the last two years and last night I was asleep on a pile of hay, when he found me."
Marget notified the club at once for the work of the girl's club was to see that the poor were well provided for. Soon the sum of twenty dollars was raised for the purpose of getting clothes for Annie. Annie grew to be a strong red-cheeked girl. Mr. and Mrs. Oming took pride in having Annie as a "daughter." Marget and Annie spent many happy hours together. Some time after, Annie joined Marget in being one of the members of the Girls' Club.
