WITH THE TOAST AND TEA

GOOD EVENING No Man is good for anything who has not learned the easy, prompt, cheerful submission of his will to rightful authority.

Some people think the modern girl is but a thing to primp and curl, and pert and saucy as a squirrel.

For not content with rats and puffs, They say she dresses like the toughs, And to their advice gives rebuffs,

They say she paints her face galore, And peekaboos her eyes adore, And hobbles shirts, behind, before, My goodness Agnes!

And when she talks she babbles slang With ragtime airs she's sure alaphang And chews her gum with air distingue, Good Heavens, Maude!

But still to you fair modern maid, We lovelorn swains have homage paid And swear you are the finest made, And that's no joke.

A physician in Eastern Oregon was bitten by a rattlesnake while thirty-five miles from home and nearly died before he could reach medical assistance.

That man who is going to Germany to ride in a balloon must want to go up in the air to beat the Dutch.

Some men sleep such sound sleeps that you can hear them all over the house.

We can excuse a man who snores one way, but the fellow with the double action ought to be banned from polite society.

A woman's pretenses can be more genuine to her than a man's realities to him.

An optimist is one who can fool himself about a thousand times easier than he can any one else.

A woman with a new gown will take the same chances on rain that a man with some money will on investment.

When a girl gets a proposal it is so sudden she has the whole family in the next room so as to let them know it right away.

A man is very cheerful about relations coming to fill the house when he is going away on a business trip at that time.

In France the hours are now numbered from 1 to 24. Just think of being home early at twenty-three o'clock.

We got a circular the other day trying to work us to let loose of $2 for a book entitled "Who's Who in Japan." We don't give a darn who's who in Japan and about the aristocratic society.

THE QUIET OBSERVER SAYS: It is the struggle to keep up appearance that keeps a great many Coos Bay people down.

Mary had a little calf. 'Twas clad in silk you know. And everywhere that Mary went the calf was sure to show.

THE BACHELOR GIRL SAYS: Walls cannot keep Love out before marriage, and walls cannot keep him in after marriage.

The modern youth is so busy making a "past" for himself that he has not time to bother about a "future."

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY NEWS

"The Rise of Coos Bay," the class play of the graduating class of the North Bend High School was given last night to a capacity house, the number present being estimated at 400.

San Francisco Fremont Hodson, '13 Berkeley, his servant Glen Grout, '13 Los Angeles, his wife Xenia Knorr, '12 Oakland, his sister Faith Hunt, '12 Sacramento, his cousin Frances Golden, '13

The Ghost of 1906 Ruby Watkins, '13 COOS BAY Clyde Smith, '12 North Bend, his servant Lyle Chapelle, '13 Marshfield, his servant Harold Hunt, '12 Cooson, his servant George Dewey, '13 Mammy Empire, wife of North Bend Dorothy Kibbler, '14

New York Chas. Van Zile, '12 Chicago Harry Conro, '12 J. J. Hill John Hansen, '12 J. P. Morgan H. G. Conro, '12

Others taking part in the program were Wm. Davis, Rose Puley, Austin Mettler, Paul Welling, Alexander Neilson and Harold Simpson.

The five-piece High School orchestra rendered three selections during the evening which were greatly enjoyed by the appreciative audience.

The play itself was decidedly clever, having a good plot, plenty of action, humor and a number of well sustained characters, among which could be mentioned as particularly fine Miss Ruby Watkins, Lyle Chapelle, Harry Conro, George Dewey, Glen Grout and John Hansen.

The author of the production was Clyde Smith, one of the graduates of this year's High School class. He played well the part of "Coos Bay" and is receiving congratulations upon his success.

A number from Marshfield attended the play.

WAY OF A GIRL.

"I find I no longer love him." "Then why not break the engagement?" "I have an idea that he would like to break it himself."

HAD ROUGH TRIP

Breakwater Encountered Mountainous Seas Last Trip

The Portland Telegram says: "Mountainous seas, great sprays which kept splashing over the top of her smokestack, kept the steamer Breakwater, Captain T. J. Macgenn, arriving at 9 o'clock Wednesday night, busily engaged in surmounting the obstacles on that part of the passage between Coos Bay and Yaquina Head. The captain said this morning it was the roughest sea he has seen in the many years he has been on the run.

A strong northwest wind was blowing, which kicked up the sea and produced a current of southerly set, running at an estimated rate of 1 1/2 miles an hour. Enough energy was expended, it is estimated, in overcoming the adverse conditions to have taken the steamer an additional distance of fully 25 miles. However, she managed to reach the river but a trifle behind her regular schedule.

Despite the raging of the storm, Captain Macgenn managed to write a poem on the way up the coast. "Gallant Teddy" is the name of the production and refers to the campaign Roosevelt has conducted to obtain the nomination for President of the United States. A copy of the poem will be mailed to the ex-president at Oyster Bay today.
