AS TO LOVE

"Tis said that Love when all is done is but "two hearts that beat as one." But that's not true as I have found When Love to visit me comes round:

For as he enters in my door He makes one heart beat like a score. Or more!

If I were teaching Love at school, And to define it I were asked, I'd say

That 'tis an element by no means cool. That comes our way. Both night and day, Unsought, unasked, and as a rule Makes man a hero or a fool, And best of all it is so rich He don't care which!

How shall I know him when I meet Fair Love? The answer is complete Already to my hand: sunshine or storm

The symptoms are—heart over-warm, A shivering spine and truly artie feet!

How tell one's Love? Ah, it were well

If so you rest beneath its spell To let its gold Remain untold

For Love's a special kind of pelf That soon or late will tell itself. Yet, if it must be told, why, then, Intrust it not to tongue or pen.

The better plan, or, lover, faint but true, Is just to let your two eyes speak for you.

—John Hendrick Bangs.

SINCE time began women have always known the power of a kiss. It is the sweet touch of the lips which arouses the heart of a babe. The little child is sent to school with one which it returns.

A kiss is a solemn, tender, holy thing. But, if misplaced, it can well be labeled a danger, says Laura Jean Libby. Every tribe on the face of the earth has its own manner of kissing. But in each and every instance it is meant to express the full, rich treasure of the heart—love.

It can easily be seen how cruel it is for a man to ask this token of regard unless he loves the girl and wishes to make her his wife.

There have been treacherous kisses since the time of Judas. The girl who accepts a betrothed lover's kisses with any lingering thought in her heart that she is not quite satisfied with him falsely leads him to believe that his love is fully returned. The ancient Polynesians are said to have punished a treacherous kiss with death. The girl became the lifemate of the first man who gave her a kiss. Through the tribes of men, the kiss is recognized as signifying the wish for mating among the marriagables.

The Caucasian race has brought the kiss up to its highest standard of reverence and intellectual interpretation of perfect love. The lover who no longer cares to greet his betrothed thus may be considered as lukewarm, which is the starting in of dry rot of affection. Her kiss of greeting or of parting has failed to thrill his heart.

Husbands and wives should be perpetual lovers. It is the kisses of the one which keep the heart of the other steadfast and true. It is where the kisses fall to be responsive to the one or the other that clouds begin to scurry across the matrimonial sky. A wife has this to say upon the subject:

"When kisses fall between husbands and wives I say look out for squalls upon the matrimonial sea. First five years my husband was affectionate. My kisses have now failed to keep the love which bound us together. He grows angry if I try to be affectionate with him. What ought I do to awaken his love again?"

Do not give up but keep on trying to reclaim him with your wifely kisses. One loving, judicious kiss is worth a hundred forced upon the one beloved.

DOUBLE WEDDING

A double wedding of much interest was that which was solemnized by Rev. Rutledge on Wednesday evening, July 17, at eight o'clock at the home of Mrs. M. C. Chapman, when her daughters, Misses Della and Ada, were united in marriage to Mr. Harry J. Mohr of Portland, and Mr. Lee Burton Fuller, respectively, of Wenatchee, Wash. Only relatives and a few friends were present.

The home was artistically decorated with greens and roses. The color scheme in the living rooms being green and white, while in the dining room, green and pink predominated.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mrs. Robert Gebhardt of Portland, the brides entered the room where they were met by the grooms and took their places under an arch of Oregon grape and roses where the impressive ring ceremony was performed.

The brides wore beautiful gowns of white satin and lace, with veils caught up by orange blossoms and carried white roses. The grooms wore the conventional black.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served in the dining room where Mrs. B. H. Smith and Miss Selma Johnson presided.

The brides are two very popular Marshfield girls. They are both graduates of the Marshfield High School. Mrs. Fuller is also a graduate of the Oregon State Normal School at Monmouth and for the past five years has been a teacher in the Marshfield schools.

Mr. Mohr, formerly of Schuyler, Nebr., is well known on the Bay, having been agent for the local railroad but now connected with the Southern Pacific company as agent of the Steamship Breakwater at Portland, Oregon. Mr. and Mrs. Mohr will leave shortly for Portland where they will make their home.

Mr. Fuller is an Ohio boy but has been in the West for the past four years. He was connected with the Pioneer Hardware Company of this city for a short time and made many friends while here. He is now connected with Wells & Morris of Wenatchee, and at that place Mr. and Mrs. Fuller will make their future home after spending a few days in Portland and Seattle.

A QUERY

There was a man in our town Who was always wise, He bought his wife a party gown All full of hooks and eyes And when he had it all hooked up, With all his might and main, He wondered if he ever could Unhook that gown again.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. F. G. Horton entertained the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Marshfield Presbyterian church. The afternoon was spent pleasantly in conversation and needlework. It was decided at that time to adjourn until the first Wednesday in September. The society was presented with a sewing machine, the gift of Mrs. M. C. Horton, and was greatly appreciated as it fills a long felt need. The ladies gave Mrs. Horton a hearty vote of thanks.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

About thirty little maids enjoyed a delightful party, Monday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ledward in honor of their daughter, Miss Abigail, and her friends, Miss Esther Sullivan, whose birthdays were Sunday and Monday, respectively.

The Ledward residence was beautifully decorated, the walls and ceiling of the dining room being completely decorated with foliage and blossoms. The color scheme of red, white and gold was carried out on both tables and walls with large red, white and yellow dahlias and roses mingled with fern.

Little Dutch sunbonnet babies were used as place cards. Each little hostess received two delicious birthday cakes, one a large and handsomely decorated one, presented to Miss Esther by the Coos Bay Bakery, and the other three presented by friends, all decorated to conform with the color scheme.

The afternoon was spent in games and childish sports. A large lawn swing, which was given to Miss Abbie by her father was thoroughly tested as to strength and durability by the weight of thirty-eight children and contributed much to their afternoon's pleasure. Mr. Roberts took several pictures of the children.

An abundance of cake and ice cream was served and the children departed, vowing their little hostesses delightful entertainers and wishing them many more happy birthdays.

Both little girls received a number of handsome presents. Those who assisted Mrs. Ledward in entertaining were the Mesdames Sullivan, Peters, Roberts, Knorr, Raymond and Woodworth.

The guest list included Erma Knorr, Clara Ferguson, Helen Rees, Margaret Wiseman, Dorothy and Lavina Painter, Charles Knorr, Mary Metlin, Alma Pratt, Helen Perkins, Kathryn Nicholson, Roxie Hall, Buster and Helen Sullivan, Zella Swinford, Helen Fish, Ruth Golden, Jeanette Upton, Ruby Pitman, Jane McLain, Lucile McLain, Margaret Lund, Irene Woodworth, Francis, Edna, Blanche and Grace Mirrasoul, Vera Albrecht and Estehr Sullivan and Abigail Ledward.

Last Monday, Joey McKeown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McKeown, celebrated his fifth birthday, at their summer home at the Maze. A number of little folks and some of their parents, "dropped in" during the day and a delightfully informal time was enjoyed by the grownups as well as the little ones. A birthday cake with its five candles was the centerpiece of the dinner. Among the little folks present were Proctor Flanagan and Eleanor Flanagan, Eugene Jones, Mabel Ford, Louise Lockhart and Grace McKeown.

Miss Stella Smith of South Coos River will be hostess tonight at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith at a birthday party.

Miss May Peterson entertained a few friends at her apartments on North Broadway Wednesday evening. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Coleman, Misses Grace and Blanche Williams and Clara, Rose and May Myren.

Dr. and Mrs. J. T. McCormac have had a number of guests at Deer Lodge during the past week. Miss Violet Henderson and Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Perry were their guests over Sunday. Dr. J. J. Maloney and wife and daughter, Helen, of Rock Island, Ia., Mrs. M. C. Maloney and daughter, Louise, and Dan E. Maloney spent a few days there the middle of the week and Mrs. E. Mings is an over Sunday guest there.

Wm. Ford of Portland who has been spending a few weeks as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Connell at the Maze leaves Friday for his home in Portland but Mrs. Ford and little daughter, Miss Mabel, will remain for a longer visit. E. K. Jones was a guest at the O'Connell home, where Mrs. Jones and son, Eugene, are spending the summer, the latter part of the week prior to his departure for Seattle and San Francisco.

M. C. Horton and wife and family will soon establish camp at Goodwill's for a month's outing prior to their departure for their old home at Poplar Bluff, Mo., where they will reside. The town house which the Horton family is vacating will be occupied by Mrs. Boyd M. Richardson and children, Mrs. Richardson owning the property.

Fishing has been very poor on Coos River so far. Even the Nestor of the summer colony, Eugene O'Connell, has been unable to get them. He says that there are few fish in the river. He believes that the logging operations have interfered somewhat with fishing and also that the shade are eating the trout and scaring them away. However, he says that fishing has seldom been very good during the month of August. In consequence of the dearth of fish, the social festivities of the summer colony have been somewhat interfered with, there being no big salmon bakes and attendant pleasures.

Dr. and Mrs. Ira B. Bartle are expected to open their summer home, Mirac Cove, on South Coos River on their return next week from their auto trip to Portland, Seattle and Everett and intervening points.

Arthur McKeown and Eugene O'Connell are doing considerable clearing around the Bennett and O'Connell summer homes and making them even more attractive than usual. Mr. O'Connell and Wm. Ford have been blasting some of the old myrtle logs around the latter's home and this week had a rather narrow escape. After touching off the blast, they stepped behind a big stump. A large chunk of the blasted log struck another log and sheered around behind the tree where they were standing. Its force was spent before it reached them but it gave them the fright of their lives.

Little Mabel Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ford, is probably the youngest regular bather that Coos River has ever known. Daily father takes her in, garbed in little bathing suit, for a plunge when the balance of the colony the Maze are enjoying their bath. She lacks a few months of being one year old but she delights in plunge, laughing and gurgling in glee as she splashes the water. She is the center of attraction.

Mrs. Rebecca Luse-Stump, daughter, Catherine, J. A. Luse family and Mrs. Wrenn and child are enjoying an outing on the ranch. Mr. Wrenn arrived from California this week to join his family.

Members of the Marshfield School Alumni Association will enjoy a moonlight excursion to Dan's Cove this evening. Mrs. F. A. Tiedgen will chair the party. A number of the alumni are absent from the city and are unable to attend but among those who will probably be present are F. A. Tiedgen and wife, Bessie Coke, Marjorie Conan, Tribble, Alice Curtis, Nora and May Preuss; Messrs. Eric Coy Bennett, John Ferguson, Roy Clarke, Ernest Harrigan, Bartlett Flanagan.

Among those who spent at Charleston Beach were Mrs. C. H. Walter, Mr. and Mrs. E. Horton, Miss Doris Maling, Miss Callista Walter.

J. D. Meehan, Mr. and Mrs. Nasburg, Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Dr. Dix, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. and Dr. and Mrs. A. L. House were among the auto parties of Shore Acres last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward M. Blake, Brown and W. U. Douglas and wife were among the auto parties going to Big Creek last Sunday.

Judge and Mrs. J. F. Hall, Roxie Hall, Miss Bertha Dard, Ida Patterson and Ned Patterson drove to Big Creek last Sunday on an outing.

A. J. Drews and wife, E. C. and wife and children were among the auto parties of Shore Acres and back Friday.

At a business session of the worth League of the Methodist church this week, plans were made for a light picnic for the members and their friends. The date was indefinitely determined but will be announced later.
