COOS CLIMATE IS DESIRABLE. Figures Show Locality Lacks Excessive Heat—Portland Suffers.

Portland has been suffering from excessive heat while Coos Bay has been enjoying the most delightful summer weather and the people have scarcely appreciated the ideal climate, so accustomed are they to the lack of excessive extremes.

The Portland newspapers print the range of temperature for July 16 and when this is taken into consideration along with local observations of the same day the advantages of Coos Bay climate are clearly seen.

The following was the Portland temperature for July 16:

Table with 2 columns: Time and Temperature. 5 o'clock 66 degrees, 6 o'clock 65 degrees, 7 o'clock 68 degrees, 8 o'clock 71 degrees, 9 o'clock 74 degrees, 10 o'clock 79 degrees, 11 o'clock 84 degrees, 12 o'clock 88 degrees, 1 o'clock 88 degrees, 2 o'clock 93 degrees.

On that very same day the temperature in Marshfield, taken by Bon Ostlund, the weather observer, was 49 degrees at 4:43 a. m. At 5 a. m. in Portland the temperature was 66 degrees. The minimum temperature in Marshfield that day was 48 degrees while in Portland the lowest was 65 degrees at 6 o'clock in the morning.

The highest temperature in Marshfield only July 16 was 77 degrees while in Portland the temperature went up to 93 degrees, a difference of 16 degrees.

This was not a particularly cool day in Marshfield. It was about normal. The following figures for that part of the week indicate the local temperature:

Table with 3 columns: Time, Max, Min. 4:43 a. m. 4:43 p. m. Max. Min. July 15 48 71 78 46, July 16 49 67 77 48, July 17 52 62 75 51, July 18 58 66 66 55.

The difference in the summer weather of Coos Bay and Portland is little thought of by the residents of this section probably for the reason that it seldom gets very hot in this locality.

Some. Mrs. W. E. Dungan and Mr. Owen returned to the place Friday after having spent most of the week in town. Miss Hunt, who was the guest of Mrs. Dungan for a few weeks, has returned to California.

Mrs. W. J. Butler and daughter, Miss Albee, are guests of Mrs. Arthur McKeown at the Mass.

DANCES

The Coos Bay Concert Band will give another of their series of dances at the Eagles' Hall a week from tonight. Some new music and a full band will make the affair an unusually enjoyable one.

TWO RECIPES.

For a Wedding—To one summer's night add two young people, a beach and a little propinquity. Mix in one look of wavy hair, an atom of delicate perfume and stir with a slight breeze. Sprinkle the whole with moonlight and let alone for the evening.

For Happy Wedded Life—To one woman add numerous kisses, each supplemented with "Yes, dear; I love you more than ever." Mix thoroughly with long pleased expressions at sight of new gowns and hats, and season with many remarks about "youthful appearance." Sprinkle liberally with checks and bonbons (courtship brand.) Do not stir up.

EXPECTS BIG THINGS HERE. Jay Lawyer of Reynolds Development Company Tells of General Conditions.

"There will be great development on Coos Bay and the Southern Pacific railroad will be built to this locality as quickly as it possibly can," said Jay Lawyer, of the Reynolds Development Company, who arrived in the city yesterday and who will be here for ten days looking after business matters. Mr. Lawyer's headquarters are at Spokane, but he spends much of his time in California and came here from San Francisco, making the overland trip from Roseburg to Myrtle Point. In speaking of conditions generally, Mr. Lawyer said:

"Business is rather quiet throughout the country but financial matters are now pretty well shaped up and after the election there will be much activity in the business world. The fact that it is presidential year holds things back as in always the case, but after the election I look for big developments. People have been liquidating and nearly everyone has money and now that affairs are settling down those who have money intend to use it.

"Yes, I hear a great deal about Coos Bay. In California the people know about the place and ask about it. In Washington and Idaho there is much interest in this locality and we will certainly draw many people from that part of the country. In Spokane particularly there is much interest in Coos Bay and I know personally of quite a number in that city who expect to come here to locate. Coos Bay will get many people from Idaho and Eastern Oregon as well and I firmly believe that many will come here from the east.

"The railroad will be built to Coos Bay as quickly as is possible. There is an question about it. It takes time to build railroads, but I am absolutely certain that the work on the Southern Pacific line is being pushed as fast as it can be. With the railroad work there will be great development in this locality. I become more enthusiastic about the place every time I come here. When activities become greater here I hope to be able to spend more time in Marshfield.

"We expect to do a good deal of improvement work in our addition this year. We will open some streets and do some grading and otherwise improve the property.

"From my observation of general conditions and the interest the Coos Bay is creating in other places I can say with assurance that there is to be some great development in this part of the country."

COOS BAY BOY WINS POSITION. Hugh Smith, Son of I. S. Smith, at Work With General Electric Co.

The General Electric Co., the largest manufacturers of electrical goods in the world, recruits its force of expert workers from the colleges of the country. It apportions to each a certain number that will give positions every year. The number taken from the Oregon Agricultural College is three. These are chosen by the faculty and are recommended because of their aptitude in electrical work and engineering. One of the three who were honored by selection this year was Hugh Smith, son of I. S. Smith, of this city. Hugh graduated with high honors in his class and was chosen as one of the three to be given positions in the General Electric Co. at the great factory in Schenectady, N. Y.

Mr. I. S. Smith is in receipt of a letter from Hugh in which he says he has entered on his new duties in the testing department in the large machine shop in the world. He writes that the company has more than 80 buildings, covering 100 acres. The office building is seven stories, 200 by 500 feet. They employ 18,000 people, including about 4000 girls, who work on taping the wire coils. As there are a number of Oregon boys employed there Mr. Smith is not entirely among strangers.

"From my observation of general conditions and the interest the Coos Bay is creating in other places I can say with assurance that there is to be some great development in this part of the country."
