HERE IS A GOOD BUSINESS PROPOSITION

For someone, it is only once in a lifetime that an opportunity such as this comes to anyone. I am personally acquainted with the writer of the following letter. I know that what he says about his physical condition is true. He has appealed to me as an old friend to find someone who can swing this proposition and I think the quickest way is to publish the exact facts. The highest references will be required. No time for triflers or curiosity seekers. This is a strictly legitimate business proposition for a good business man.

HERE IS THE LETTER:

Mr. E. D. McCrary, Sr.,
Marshfield, Ore.
Dear Sir:

I am in receipt of your letter of July 9th and in reply will state that if I could find some good, responsible banker, I would be pleased to turn over my banking business to him without any charge whatever, as we would expect them to be responsible for our deposits and we would give them our Bills Receivable, Furniture and even deal. So about all the money a person would require would be the amount they would put into the capital of the bank, which should be from $15,000 to $25,000 and they could go right into a profitable paying business.

We have invested in our mercantile business about $120,000 and if you can find a prospective purchaser for same and he is satisfactory, I would sell him any amount of stock, that he wished, and if he was capable and the right kind of man he could have a job with a fair salary from the company.

In regard to the copper mine if I could get some good party to come in with me to help open same up I would sell them an interest would turn the stock over at once to them and then I would put the basis as I am myself and with an investment of from five to ten thousand dollars, I think the chances are, that we would open up one of the biggest mines on the coast of Alaska so that we both could make a fortune for ourselves from the amount of ore in sight.

I hope you will use your very best efforts with the party from Joplin, Mo., of whom you spoke and try to prevail upon them to come up to Alaska at once. I am very anxious to reduce my many business interests as I have been in this northern country for nearly fifteen years and it has very nearly broken me down physically and it is perfectly necessary that I have change of climate or I fear that I will have another break-down.

With kindest regards to yourself and family, I am
Yours truly,
S. A. HEMPLE.

You Remember
In my opening announcement that there were a certain set of principles set forth for observance in the conduct of this business. That was nearly three months ago and yet in the current issue of the Philistine, Elbert Hubbard has an extended write-up of the Owl Drug stores of the Pacific coast and by a strange coincidence he enunciates the same principles which he says are the solid foundation and contributing causes for their splendid commercial success.

Here They Are:
Uniform courtesy to everyone at all times.
My guarantee back of every article sold.
Any price made on any article in any other store, whether special price on a sale or not, will be met here without question or quibble.
Absolute truth, never misinforming, never misdirecting.
Giving the people what they want.
Sending everybody away happy and in a mood where they will come back smiling.
If you like that kind of a store and those kind of principles get acquainted with the Owl Pharmacy.
We are here to serve you whether or you want a postage stamp, a telephone call or a prescription. And speaking of prescriptions, Elbert Hubbard says: "No Owl Prescription clerk ever guesses what a prescription calls for; if he does not know he does not put up the prescription." And so it is here. There is not a prescription written in town which the Owl Pharmacy cannot fill—and fill just as it is written.
Every facility of this store is at your service.
