GOOD EVENING

Let us do common things well. The size of a diamond has nothing to do with its quality.

COOS COUNTY PRODUCTS

WITH all the rumors of boom and increased land values due to railroad activities, the soil of Coos county continues in its regular line of work—producing. We have a country, second to none that will grow anything that can grow out of doors in other tropical climates.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY

Eschew the things you like the best—the steaks and oyster fries, and swallow down with eager zeal, the things that you despise. Fill up with greens and milk and bran and toasted graham bread and you will be a healthy man providing you're not dead.

PERHAM WILL BUILD BRIDGE

Arrangements Made to Go On With Work Planned at Medford.

E. G. Perham of this city will build the bridge at Medford about which there has been some litigation lately. In explaining the situation a Medford paper says: "Medford is going to have a new bridge over Bear Creek. This decision was reached Saturday after a conference between a committee from the city council and E. G. Perham to whom the original contract for constructing the new bridge was let by the county court. Mr. Perham will begin tearing down the present structure and removing it to Jackson street Monday."

MARIS TELLS OF OUR NEEDS

N. C. Maris of the Oregon Agricultural college, who was here recently on business, gives a good word for Coos and Curry counties in an interview in the Oregonian. Besides touching upon the resources in detail, he says:

"With the lowest death rate on record—five to 1000—the people of Coos county are probably the healthiest, happiest and most contented on earth. They are somewhat isolated from the rest of the state, but they are used to that, and are almost an empire within themselves, practically independent from the rest of the world. They have several needs down there but these are not worrying them very much. The climate along the coast has a tendency to make people content with their lot. Some of their needs are several thousand people with money, muscle and energy; a few hundred miles of railroad, an electric line and 1,000,000 goats to clear up the land, and make range for thousands of head of cattle and sheep. The possibilities along this line are great."

Resources are Varied The great resources of Coos and Curry counties are timber, coal, dairying, fish and livestock. Dairying is, and should be, the leading industry in the agricultural districts of those two counties. This is limited largely to the narrow rich valleys tributary to the numerous streams. "There is little change in the temperature during the whole year. Conditions are ideal for dairying. Grass grows luxuriantly, both on the bottoms and over the hills, where it is not too densely covered with brush, and good beef can be killed off the range there any month in the year. "Thousands of acres of land in those two counties that have been cleared or partially so, have grown up to brush so densely that no grass can grow. I have never seen a more fertile field for promoting the Angora goat industry than those two counties. This business of itself would be a source of great income, to say nothing of the immense amount of good range that might thus be created for other stock."

The most extensive park in the world is Deer Park in Denmark, containing 4200 acres. The most desirable park in this vicinity is Perham Park, Marshfield's only restricted residence district, containing 30 acres, or 550 beautiful residence lots. See Reid, Coke Bldg.

ENFORCE GAME LAW IN CURRY

Game Wardens Busy There—Marshfield Parties Return From Fine Trips.

That the game wardens in Curry county are keeping close tab on the hunters there to prevent the slaughter of deer and game is the news brought by George Rotner, Frank Denning and R. Sacchi, who arrived home on the Osprey from a three-weeks' hunting trip. Besides that, Warner Ogren and wife and Mr. Larson returned on the Osprey. Mrs. Ogren killed the first deer she ever saw in the wilds, a fine three-point buck.

Messrs. Rotner, Denning and Sacchi were camped at Wild Horse Prairie, about twenty miles up Rogue river from Gold Beach and on a plateau at an elevation of about 4000 feet. Mr. Ogren and party were camped at Dry Lake. Both parties got all the deer they wanted and report a very fine outing. Wild Horse Prairie is the place where Messrs. Rotner, Wells, Denning and others camped last season. To reach it after leaving Rogue river, requires a hard climb, an ascent of about 4000 feet being made over a rough trail less than eight miles. They reached there the last day of July and the first night in camp brought in two deputy game wardens who pretended to be cattle buyers. However, they didn't find any venison and remained as guests of the camp. During the night, the worst rain and thunderstorm that Curry county has known in many years came up. The party didn't have their tent set but they got busy when the first peal of thunder awakened them and succeeded in getting the canvas stretched to shelter them from the downpour that followed. The electrical display was unusual, but the loud peals of thunder that quickly followed the flash, indicating it was striking dangerously close, and the occasional thud of a falling tree, made it a bit shaky for the party. However, their camp remained safe.

A few days after they were in camp, Mr. Baker, deputy district game warden, came along with Forrester Helm and a party and visited camp. Mr. Baker informed them he had seventeen deputies keeping tab on the hunters in that section.

Just before the season opened, they arrested a party of Crescent City men for killing deer. The found quite a lot of dried venison. One of the party is now in jail at Gold Beach, but the other two escaped.

There are many hunters in Curry county, but the residents there this season displayed a decided aversion to guiding strangers to the best hunting grounds. In fact, few of them would take parties back to the good hunting, indicating a desire to keep the game for themselves.
