GET THE SMALL FARMER

THAT a large percentage of the settlers from the east are seeking small farms in Oregon is a fact which is being frequently stated in the city papers and it is a matter which should be given the closest attention by Coos county. Probably no part of Oregon offers a better chance for the small farmer. Such an agriculturist may have his choice of several branches. There are rich bottom lands which are suitable for market gardening. There are potato lands which are highly productive and which will yield handsome incomes. Or the small farmer may secure fruit lands and set out orchards and get these fruit lands at about one tenth of what they cost in some of the other fruit districts and at the same time can develop as fine orchards as in the most high priced districts. Another industry offered the small farmer is the poultry business for which this climate is well adapted. Much of the land which is not so suitable for gardening or fruit is available for poultry raising and there is always a good market for eggs. The small farmer is not confined to any one line in Coos county and he can secure lands rated in value at many different prices. The small farmers make up one of the best classes of people for a community to secure. With this class of agriculturist the rural districts are more thickly settled and the trading in the surrounding cities becomes more extensive. Moreover the land is cultivated to its fullest productiveness, more money for products is brought into the county and the locality reaches a more advanced state. Coos county needs the small farmer to cultivate more of the ground and to clear off the logged off land and to help advance the community. Now that people are coming to Oregon to settle Coos county should reach out and get all of the small farmers possible and settle them here where they can make comfortable livings and add to the general wealth. Chances to secure this class of settlers should not be overlooked.

FOR ADVERTISING

I hired Jim Wiggleshaw to make a fine mud fence for me. Some people say that Jim's a fake, and with them I agree. He said he'd build as fine a fence as ever raised the dead, and I possessed so little sense, I let him go ahead. And now that fence is a disgrace, an eyesore to the town; it's crooked, sagging out of place, and almost falling down. It cannot stand the wind and flood, it crumbles in the gale; Jim made it of the cheapest mud that he could find on sale. And oft, with language full and free, that Jim crow fence I've cursed; but, much as it's annoying me, it's hurting Jim the worst. For every passer-by will pause and say: "This beats my time! Such work as old Jim Wiggleshaw's is nothing but a crime!" Old Jim's complaining more or less the long and sad year through; he's always loaded with distress—he can't get work to do. He finds it hard to get the scads, while others make many, he's left around so many ads promising him a fake. And every job you leave half done will bring you grief and tears; it is an ad, and it will run displayed for years and years.

CENTRAL OREGON IS DEVELOPING

Newspaper Man From Bend Tells of Conditions in His Locality.

Central Oregon is developing by leaps and bounds since the completion of railroads into that part of the state last fall, according to U. N. Hoffman, managing editor of the Bulletin at Bend, who is in the city on a short vacation trip.

"The Hill and Harriman lines were completed to Bend last October," said Mr. Hoffman to The Times today, "and the growth of the town since that time has been very rapid. From a village of little over 500 people in 1910, when the Federal census was taken, Bend has grown to be a town of 1760 population, as shown by an accurate census taken in June by the Commercial Club. Much substantial building is in progress, including a $20,000 bank building and several other pressed brick business blocks.

Road Across State "The outlook just now at Bend is that the Oregon Eastern Railway which is being built westward from Vale by the Harriman interests, through the Malheur canyon, will connect with the Deschutes line of the O.-W. R. & N. Co. at Bend. At least this is the emphatic statement of W. P. Davidson, who is president of the Oregon Land & Colonization Co. and who states that he has his authority for such statement from an official who is in position to know the route that the line will take. Louis W. Hill is interested in this company, which owns a vast acreage in Central and Eastern Oregon, and the east and west line will penetrate the company's vast holdings if it is built to Bend along the route surveyed.

"It is my belief that the road will be used jointly by the Hill and Harriman interests, just as the Oregon Trunk line built by the Hill people is used jointly from Metolius to Bend, under a 999-year agreement.

Line to go South Also "There have been persistent rumors all summer that the railroads would begin construction of an extension south of Bend through to Klamath Falls, but actual work has not yet been started. This line will almost certainly connect with the Naron-Klamath Falls cutoff of the Southern Pacific, now building."

Asked if he thought the east and west line of the Harriman or the Hill interests would eventually come to the coast, Mr. Hoffman said such looked to be the possibility and that probably when he came to Marshfield on another vacation trip it would not be necessary to make the roundabout way to Portland to get here.

Million Dollar Mill Mr. Hoffman this afternoon is taking a look at the big mill of the C. A. Smith Manufacturing company. As soon as the east and west railroad is completed to Bend, he said, the timber companies which own vast tracts of pine in Central Oregon will begin manufacturing at Bend, an announcement having been made by the Scanlon-Gibson company that it will start work on a million dollar mill there within the next fifteen months.

RAILROAD ACTIVITY

Oregon Eastern Out of Eugene is Doing Work Regarding the work on the Oregon Eastern railroad the Eugene Guard says:

"Railroad grading in the Riverside country is progressing with all speed at the present time, the Corey Bros. having just started a crew of laborers at mile post 80 at the edge of the Duncan McRae ranch above Riverside, says the Vale Enterprise.

All of the work for the roadbed grading has been sublet from Vale to Riverside and it is now given out that all contracts call for the completion of the Oregon Eastern roadbed to Riverside by January 1st.

Among the latest news concerning the railroad contractors is the report that the Corey Bros. have just taken another contract for grading from mile post 76 to mile post 80.

This is the farthest point of railroad operation at the present time in the interior country. The Corey Bros. have just added a fine bunch of horses and mules from Idaho to their camps near Riverside.
