TELEPHONE RATES TOO HIGH.

(From North Bend Harbor.)
We respectfully call attention of the newly elected directors of the Home Telephone Co. to the fact that toll rate for use of their phones is too high for the average business man. It is excessive and out of reason so much so that the company loses the encouragement it should receive by offering lower rates. For instance a charge of 25c per minute with 15c for additional minutes is made for use of phones to all towns of the county. It is practically impossible to transact any business under the 25c limit and a message of only medium length costs a dollar. It cost this office 60 cents to get ten words through recently. In the middle states more business is transacted by phone than by mail simply because the phone companies offer inducements to use their lines. The rates of the Home Telephone lines are prohibitive. They are too high to offer any inducements to the public. The stockholders are losing money every day on account of the excessive rates the company charges. It is up to the new board of directors to go over the matter and get the rates down where the average business man can use the lines every day without having to borrow money to pay his telephone bills.
The newly elected directors are W. F. Jewett, E. A. Anderson, W. U. Douglas, Dr. E. Mings, Jas. McGee, W. P. Murphy and Geo. D. Mandigo.

WILL VISIT BRYAN.

(By Associated Press to The Coos Bay Times.)
LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 16.—Announcement was made today that Wilson would be a guest of Bryan over Sunday, October 6, following his address here on the preceding day. This is the first opportunity for a conference since the Baltimore convention.

MOTHER.

What is home without a mother? Who so well a home can grace? Ah, that sacred name! No other can usurp its honored place! Mothers makes the home enchanting, makes it happy—when she's there, when she isn't gallivanting, doing campaign work somewhere. To uplift the land she wishes, politics she'd purify; and there's none to wash the dishes, none at home to make a pie, Willie has a broken smeller—he was fooling with the cow; Lizzie fell into the cellar and she's screaming down there now; little Myrtle calmly scratches all the furniture with wire; baby's playing with the matches, and he'll set the house afire. Little sister, little brother, raise the dickens with their curves. What is home without a mother? It's a place to jar your nerves. Mother's at some cheap convention, wearing father's shirt and tie, arguing her firm intention to secure a vote or die. She must have a hand in making laws that suit the female mind, and at home the kids are breaking all the dishes they can find. She will be no longer brooding tyranny that's known no change, and at home poor dad is cooking prunelots on a smoking range. What is home without a mother? Watch the suffrage ladies hike! When they've won their fight, my brother, you will know just what it's like.
