HONOR BIRTHDAY.

F. E. Allen Highly Complimented by Masonic Chapter.

The members of Arago Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, held their regular meeting last night. The degree was conferred upon three Masons and after the meeting a banquet was held. Yesterday was the birthday of the secretary, F. E. Allen. Some of the members found out this fact and at the banquet many toasts complimentary to Mr. Allen and his work in the order were given, making the occasion a very pleasant one for him.

finger tips to cause intoxication. But for a Marshfield man who wants results that is too slow a method.

THE POLITICIAN.

In July the politician gives you handshakes full of life, and in August he inquires about the health of your dear wife; in September and October for your vote he bids, he gets anxiously solicitous for the welfare of your kids.

STORY OF THE DAY.

"What will be the first thing that Teddy will say when he enters the White House next year?" asked Hugh McLain of a group of Bull Moosers. "Bully!" guessed Harry Hoy. "Delighted!" ventured Henry Hugins.

"Both wrong," said McLain. "He will say, 'How do you do, President Wilson!'"

The business woman will never be thoroughly satisfied with her lot until she is able to completely dispense with man's patronage.

Two hearts may be able to beat as one, but they can't convince the groceryman that double rations aren't necessary for two mouths.

As long as women are denied the ballot they can't be held responsible for any part of the present pollution and corruption of politics.

THOSE NEW TUB HATS.

You may love her at a distance, you may worship her afar; you may gaze upon her beauty as you would upon a star; and get near enough to tease her—but be satisfied with that—you can never hope to squeeze her in that great tub of a hat.

Washing the hair wouldn't be half so exciting to some girls if they could put it in the laundry once a week.

OPPOSITES

It makes a difference—every wife is very much aware— If a man's a lion in her life, Or only just a bear.

A blue-blooded girl named Steele Wed a yellow Chinese from Coquille But the yellow and blue Mixed as colors will do And their children were green as an eel.

Here's a chance for some of the Coos county candidates to avoid disappointment by getting an entire court house. Judge Bailey has made an order directing the sheriff to sell the old Curry county court house to the highest bidder. "Bob Stanley" might write a little ditty, entitled, "Why Don't You Get a Court House of Your Own."

"Come hither, little Mary Ann," the dotting mother said. "I have about three quarts of lute to put upon your head. I see the neighbor's daughters go to school fixed up so fine, and I won't have it said, my dear, that you are not in line; so let me kalsomine your face with pigments rich and rare, and put some red paint on your lips, and cook and curl your hair and push you in a narrow skirt that shows your every curve, so that you will get from rubber-neck the notice you deserve. And you must wear your snowy shoes that advertise your feet, and oke the crazy hat that scares the horses on the street, for I won't have the neighbors say that my little maid is not as good as any or as stylishly arrayed. Of course, you don't look like a child with all your paint and curls, but you're upholstered just as well as many other girls; of course, you cannot run and play, as children used to do, but we must show the neighbors' girls they have no edge on you; of course it is a shame; but since the neighbors turn out apes, I have to do the same!"

THE CRANBERRY KINGDOM.

THE cranberry kingdom of the earth is a small one compared with the domains of productivity assigned and estimated to other richly paying crops. Coos county is fortunate to be well within the scope of this small but vitally effective range. Even here there are but a few thousand acres and but few of those acres under cultivation and development; hence the man who is long sighted enough to get in now and secure his heritage in this modest kingdom is to be congratulated later on.

J. H. Pinkerton, one of the cranberry kings of Coos county, reports that this year's crop is excellent in quality but not uniform in production. The quantity will be large in some patches and small in others.

Any soil adapted to a use qualified to yield a net profit of $1,000 per acre and any use known to put that profit in the purse of the patient and intelligent investor and toiler, should not be long neglected and from the signs at hand, the "hunch" is being carefully and quietly taken by men who are committed to the conviction that the cranberry has no parallel on the soil market of Coos county. The holdings of record today are not large (they do not need to be) but they are becoming more and more numerous as the months go by and before the uninterested shall realize it, there will be no more cranberry land to get.

It is one of the fixed and logical elements of improvement and expansion on the coast lines of Oregon and Washington, and the day is not far distant when this territory will rival the famous bogs of Cape Cod. There is no time to lose in this "pick up" of virgin opportunities in this line. It is no vision here now, but intensely practical and proven beyond all possibility of doubt. This is the year in which to secure the cream of the lands of the venture. The fact that time and work and some money are essential to the correct development of the culture and the splendid profits inseparable from it, should be no deterrent to those who know a good thing and where to find it. It is merely a question of capital, high purpose and faithful work and no man may begrudge any and all the attributes to the infallible returns awaiting him in the cranberry bogs of Coos county.

GRAND JURY SICKNESS.

George Fitzhugh, of the Sixes is quite ill as a result of serving several strenuous days on the grand jury at the last session of court held at Gold Beach.—Port Orford Tribune.

That's nothing. We know several Coos countyites that were made sick by the last grand jury and didn't even serve at all.

THE HUSBANDMAN.

The poor downtrodden granger of whom we used to hear, has been a blooming stranger for many a golden year. The artists once portrayed him as one by sorrow seared; in scarecrow rags arrayed him, put birds' nests in his beard; he was a figure funny, and when he went to town it was to borrow money to hold his mortgage down. And now the western farmer is quite a Sunny Jim; he's no vlew-with-alamer, there are no flies on him. He comes to town a-tearing in gorgeous motor car; bred-ed linen he is wear'ng, he smokes a real cigar. His wife is amply laden with raiment fair to see; his daughter, blooming maiden, just clanks with jewelry. And all for which they banker the old man buys in town; before the village banker no more he knuckles down. Gone are the ancient pathways that once adorned his shops; when he's in town he always goes to the barber shops; weighed down with golden pieces, he meets the village swell; he wears the front of Croesus, and feeds at good hotels. No more the hayseed's tramping his weary way upon, or at the poor farm camping—another landmark gone!

WITH THE TOAST AND TEA

GOOD EVENING.

The growing good of the world is partly dependent on unobtrusive acts, and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been is half owing to the number who lived faithfully a hidden life and rest in universal tombs.—George Eliot.

If the energy wasted in Coos Bay talking railway runners could be harnessed it would drive all the railroad trains in this country and 19 in Canada.

"I am prouder of my enemies than of my friends," says Colonel Roosevelt. There are others, Teddy, who feel the same way about it.
