Making the Most of It?

If less than one-half the good things come to pass that are reliably predicted for Coos Bay by persons who are even now invest ng large sums here, then we have here an opportunity for investing in a future that is second to no other proposition in the west today. And it is toward the west that the investors of the east have been turning their attention for some years, the east have been turning their attention for some years.
It is the great opportunities for growth and development in the west that appeal to the trained imagination of the easterner. There are far more wonderful opportunities for making fortunes in western city property today than there were when the land was free to the first settler on it-if we can see these opportunities and avail ourselves of them. Are you taking as good advantage of your opportunities as the ambitious young man back east would do if they had your chance?
