SINGLE TAX IS ARGUED

E. S. J. McALLISTER OF PORTLAND SPEAKS BEFORE NORTH BEND CROWD.

Edward S. McAllister of Portland, the speaker on single tax, addressed a good sized audience in North Bend last night. He spoke on the street corner in front of the Bank of Oregon. Mr. McAllister was introduced by Archie Phillips.

Mr. McAllister discussed first the philosophy of the single tax, both as a social and fiscal measure. He defined what was meant by the single tax and showed what it would accomplish, and claimed for it that it would adequately meet our public financial obligations and secure equal rights to all the people in the matter of access to nature's opportunities.

Mr. McAllister said: "I regard as fundamental the following two propositions: That whatever society does for itself in the way of providing public institutions, utilities and conveniences, should be open and accessible to all members of society in the same terms.

"Second, whatever nature has provided should be open and accessible to all members of society on the same terms. These propositions followed would secure to every producer the full product of his toil and would make it impossible for anyone to get wealth without producing it or giving an equivalent for it, unless by voluntary gift as distinguished from the present system of legal gift.

"The graduated single tax measure before the people of Oregon will secure to the people a large measure of this ideal. The reason for the graduated feature of this measure is that society ought to take a larger portion from those who hold out of use a large portion of nature's resources. And thus entirely remove the burdens from labor and the products of labor, and the products of labor constitute all wealth. For land value is not wealth in the economic sense but is a value not created by the individual, but is a people value, attaching to and by virtue of location with reference to population, the larger the population the larger the value. In other words the larger demand that man has for the use of a given natural resource the larger will be its value.

"We are confident that the adoption of this measure will do more to bring people and money to Oregon than all the advertising and boosting that has ever been done in and for the state."

During Mr. McAllister's speech the attention of the crowd was carried through and the speaker was not interrupted but held his audience interested.

Tonight, Mr. McAllister will speak at the "Busy Corner" corner at 7:30 o'clock. During the rest of the week he will visit Coquille valley cities.

November 16—Myrtle Point at Marshfield.

The dates for the games at Marshfield may be changed to Friday instead of Saturday as given above, if arrangements can be made.

got to be croaked before he gets to Whitman," I said, "Charley, that's a pretty dangerous thing to do, to murder a man." "That's all right," said Becker, "he's got to be stopped."

"Bridgie" told of a subsequent meeting with Becker at which the latter insisted that Rosenthal had to be "croaked."

"I said, 'Charley, he's going to be taken care of. You are liable to see it in the papers any day.'"

The witness told of meeting Rose and of the inception of the murder plot. Rose had agreed to get four gunmen together in his poker rooms the night of June 15.

That night Webber saw Becker and Jack Sullivan together at a prize fight and left them and went to his poker rooms. "Lefty Louie," Jack Rose, Harry Vallon, "Gyp the Blood," Sam Schepps, "Dago Frank," appeared on the scene.

Bridgie said, Bridgie located Rosenthal at the Metropole. "Then we all went out but Rose. I stayed five minutes then left."

Webber said he was not seen until after Rosenthal had been shot.

He met Becker after the murder with Jack Rose and Jack Sullivan and Becker congratulated Rose on the "good job."

"This is terrible, Charley," said Rose. They then got the number of the machine.

"Never mind," said Becker, "I'll take care of you and your gang."

PONY EXPRESS RIDER DIES

Isaac V. Mossman, Pioneer of Oregon Passes Away at Roseburg.

Isaac V. Mossman, one of the pioneers of Oregon, is dead at Roseburg at the age of 89 years. He was one of the last survivors among the old riders of the pony express. He was at one time an associate of Joaquin Miller, the poet, and was a veteran of the Indian wars. The burial will be at Olympia, Wash., where the deceased held membership in the Odd Fellows lodge.

Mr. Mossman was born at Centerville, Ind., on August 8, 1830. When about 23 years of age he left home to cross the plains with an ox team, the trip taking from May 3 to October 20, the date of his arrival in Oregon City.

When Governor Curry was calling for volunteers to go to the Indian country, Mr. Mossman answered the call, going to the front with a company of 103 men. In April, 1861, he ran a pony express to the Oro Fino mines, taking in Joaquin Miller as partner for the latter part of his venture. Later he was for four years hotel manager at Salem, and then he moved to the Puget Sound country, where he served as Coroner of Thurston county for ten years. Other offices held by him at the same time were those of city marshal for six years, deputy sheriff, constable, librarian of the territory, and in 1873 sergeant-at-arms in the legislature.

Mr. Mossman was a member of the Oregon Pioneer association and of the Indian War Veterans. In 1860 he married Miss Nellie Jackson, at Albany, Oregon. He is survived by Mrs. W. J. Redmond, Oak Point, Wash.; Mrs. C. O. Hill and Fred C. Mossman, of Portland; Mrs. W. Yeagan of Olympia, Wash.; Mrs. W. Devouil, F. M. and Mrs. C. Mitchell of San Francisco.

CRANBERRY CROP IS SHORT.

New Jersey and Rhode Island Sauce Article to Cost More.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Oct. 16.—Jersey cranberries are not so abundant this year as last, but they are of a quality that has never been surpassed. The short crop and the high quality may be counted on to put the price this year up a few notches, particularly in view of the reported shortage in other districts, notably in Rhode Island.

The picking of the berries is now at its height. Growers are doing their utmost to hurry the harvest on account of the danger of frosts.

Good berries are selling at from 12 to 15 cents a quart. It is certain to go higher, though, before the market season is over.

COOS COUNTY'S FERTILE SOIL

Remarkable Results Produced From Three Acres by Peter Axe.

If the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce or any incredulous Easterner desire proof positive of the fertility, productiveness and possibilities of Coos county soil, they should get into prompt communication with Peter Axe who occupies a ranch five miles from Bridge.

Peter Axe was in Marshfield yesterday consulting with F. S. Dow, concerning the marketing of this year's products.

Mr. Axe is cultivating only about three acres, but in addition to supplying fresh fruit and vegetables to the Marshfield and Myrtle Point markets, he maintains a cannery and this year's pack amounts to between 6000 and 7000 cans of fruit and vegetables, including 700 cans of peaches. All this from a three-acre tract.

For several years Mr. Axe has cultivated a half acre patch of tomatoes, the average yield of which is ten tons of that vegetable.

Mr. Axe has a large ranch, but it is all timbered, except the small three-acre clearing, which he cultivates in such an intensive manner as to produce phenomenal results.

A NEW SONG BY LOCAL WRITERS

Panama Canal Is Topic of a Lyric That Will Be Sung Friday.

A subject that is on everybody's tongue is the Panama Canal. It is the most up to date subject that Messrs. Keller and Lewis could find to put into a song. They have succeeded in writing a good one, as attested by all who, so far, have heard it.

Mr. Keller and Mr. Quatermass have illustrated the song. Roy Lawhorn designed the title page, and as a special attraction, the song will be sung for the first time, Friday evening, next, at the Orpheum by Mrs. Lewis—her last appearance before a Marshfield audience.

The title of the new song is "Through the Panama Canal to Frisco."

TELLS WHAT BECKER SAID.

"Bridgie" Webber Testifies on Stand in Murder Case.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Lieutenant C. Becker, according to "Bridgie" Webber, who testified in the Becker case, said: "I just saw him (Rosenthal) lying there in the police station and I'd like to have taken my knife and cut out his tongue as a warning to future squealers." Webber corroborated Rose's story of Becker paying him $1000 to get the murder crew out of town, and was turned over to the defense. He said he had been in a half dozen raids and that his place was an opium joint also, but he did not use opium or morphine himself.

Sheehan, a former newspaper man, was asked to identify his signature and that of Becker on certain communications. On the objection to defense that the witness had only given his "opinion" as to authenticity of Becker's signature the court ruled against introduction to the documents.

"Bridgie" Webber was called. He said his real name was Louis Gambly and that he had known Rosenthal for 15 years. Jack Rose the same time and Becker two years.

"Did you have conversation with Becker about Rosenthal?"

"Yes, with Harry Vallon and Jack Rose, the latter part of June Becker said the _____ is trying to do me in every way. He is trying to see Waldo now. He's going to get Whitman. That—"

Little Talks on the High Cost of Living

False economy is an important factor in the present high cost of living. Many people thinking to economize buy things simply because they are cheap, things for which sometimes they have no immediate need, just because they are bargains. Or perhaps they purchase an inferior article recommended to be "just as good." In either case it is false economy. Some people exercise the same false judgment in making an investment. They purchase a lot in some outlying district simply because it is cheap, where the same amount invested in PERHAM PARK, close in to the business center, would net them four times as big returns.
