CAMPAIGN OF TERROR PLANNED

McNamara Brothers Intended to Continue Blowing Up Buildings.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 15.—

McNamara brothers determined after the Los Angeles Times explosion to carry on a "campaign of terror," according to the testimony of Nat France and Earl N. Adams, owner and manager of the quarry at Bloomsville, Ohio, who testified that 1800 pounds of dynamite was stolen from them.

Part they recovered from a shed at the home of Ortle McManigal's father at Tiffin, Ohio.

McManigal testified he and James B. McNamara, on instructions from John J. McNamara hauled away the dynamite from the quarry in a wagon at night.

Ortle McManigal testimony was interrupted today to enable the government to question other witnesses.

More than 100 witnesses, including 30 from the Pacific Coast are in waiting.

McManigal so far named 17 of 45 men now on trial in connection with the dynamite conspiracy.

The sureties accepted by the court were the pugilist's mother, Tiny Johnson, and Matthew S. Baldwin, a real estate dealer.

Johnson was taken to the court jail last Friday and since has made many efforts to regain his freedom.

As Johnson was leaving the court house he was re-arrested on a charge of assault for having attacked a newspaper photographer Friday.

He was put under a cash bond of $400 later. The photographer filed suit for $10,000 against Johnson.

JOHN MISAACS DEAD.

John Misaacs, who attained considerable fame on Coos Bay as a bagpiper player and was always a leading entertainer at the meetings of the Caledonian society, died at Mercy hospital in North Bend last night after a long illness.

He had been ailing for about a month and had been bedfast for about three months.

Mr. Misaacs was a native of Port Hood, Cape Breton Island, Canada. He had been on the coast about 32 years and had been a resident of Coos Bay for seven or eight years.

A brother at Port Hood and several nieces in British Columbia survive him.

A CITY WATER SYSTEM

THE statistics and water rates given in yesterday's Times were compiled from reports from water companies in all sections of the United States and included San Francisco, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Spokane and Los Angeles, as well as Eastern cities.

Today's installment gives rates in some Middle West cities. In every instance these figures are authentic and official, being taken from reports made by officers of the water company in every case.

(Continued from Yesterday.) Commenting on the foregoing tables, the first thought occurring to me is—How can we account for such a wide difference in the charges for the same service? It is easy to understand why the cost of service for a filtration system should be higher than where water is supplied from wells or springs, as the original outlay for a filtration system is usually more expensive and the upkeep is also much higher, but the variation is as great between cities where well water is supplied, as where water is supplied from filtration.

The method of distributing enters into this to a great extent. In many cities the water is pumped from a much lower level than in others. The altitude of the city and level of the water from which supply is taken enter into the cost of distribution or delivery. The cities which are fortunate enough to receive their water supply by gravity into their supply well from which it can be pumped, can furnish water to the consumer cheaper than the towns or cities which are compelled by existing conditions to lift the water from a considerable depth into the supply well from which it is pumped into the mains direct or into a reservoir. This is an elected and will make an additional expense in cities where water must be pumped twice, run from 10 to 30 per cent, according to reports received on this item of expense.

The following which are the 36 very wide range of rates. This schedule was furnished me by Burns & McDonnell, engineers, located at Kansas City:

Rate Per 1000 Gallons.

Table with columns: City, Highest Rate, Lowest Rate. Lists cities like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Boston, Baltimore, Cleveland, Buffalo, San Francisco, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Detroit, Milwaukee, Washington, Newark, Jersey City, Louisville, Minneapolis, Providence, Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Paul, Rochester, Denver, Allegheny, Toledo, Columbus, Worcester, Syracuse, New Haven, Paterson, Fall River, St. Joseph, Omaha, Los Angeles.

Private ownership. The most striking feature in this report is also the wide range of rates with the city of Washington municipal plant setting the low figure with their 3 cent flat rate for all consumers, large and small and San Francisco with the private plant's maximum rate of 33 1-3 cents and minimum rate of 16 cents. Omaha, another private plant, until recently, with 35 cents maximum rate and 10 cents for minimum; St. Joseph, Mo., 30 cent maximum and 6 cent minimum.

You will notice from this schedule that the three private plants have the distinction of having the three highest rates of the 36 largest cities in the United States.

Taking the average of the remaining 33 cities, a fraction less than 15 cents per 1000 gallons is the average of the maximum rates charged. This schedule of rates furnishes additional proof that municipal ownership of public utilities invariably furnish as good if not better service than private ownership and invariably at less cost.

One of the peculiarities of the correspondence received is that there was not a single reply to the hundreds of letters written on this subject that did not advocate municipal ownership of water works and electric light and power plants, giving as their reason the fact that it would tend to better service at less cost to the people.

Getting away from the general report, outside of the state, and taking up rates in Iowa, I find of the 330 cities reported there are 310 municipal and 20 private. Of 20 private reported, one at least has been since taken over by the city. While there is a wide difference in rates in the cities of Iowa, the same statement is true in Iowa as in other states that the cost of service is considerably less where municipal plants are operated than where the private plants furnish the service. More Accusations Are Made in Dynamite Conspiracy Case Today.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 15.—

Direct charges that Frank M. Ryan, president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, had full knowledge of the explosions and that he even advised the dynamiters to disguise themselves, was made by Ortle E. McManigal said he and Herbert S. Hockin bought 120 quarts of nitro-glycerine at Albany, Ind., and removed it to Indianapolis. At one time when eighty quarts of the explosive was stored in a vault in the Ironworkers' office, the witness said McNamara remarked: "If this should explode there would not be enough people left in Indianapolis to tell what happened."

General Manager W. S. Chandler is negotiating for the purchase of right of way across C. E. Nicholson's property on North Front street for the Terminal Railway.

Mr. Nicholson wants $1 per square foot. Mr. Chandler is also negotiating for right of way through the Smith retail yards to connect up with North Broadway.

Until one or both of these deals are completed, the Terminal work will remain at a standstill.

Mr. Chandler plans to build two lines across Mill Slough, the street car line over the South Broadway bridge and the steam line to cross on a lower bridge east of Broadway.

Unless the War Department orders Mill Slough closed, the company will have the troublesome problem of a drawbridge for Mill Slough to solve.
