TWO MORE OF BANDON WRECK VICTIMS DIE FROM INJURIES

Five Dead as Result of Logging Train Going Through Fairy Creek Trestle.

CLANCEY HUMPHREY AND GUY ROSE PASS AWAY

Fred Adkins Dying and But Little Hope for Anderson; Coroner Investigates.

Revised List of Victims
The dead:
Chas. McDowell, engineer.
Chas. Smith, fireman.
Morgan, logger.
Guy Rose, timekeeper.
Clancy Humphrey, logger.
The injured:
Fred Adkins, logger, will die.
Rol Anderson, brakeman, probably fatally injured.

(Special to the Times)
BANDON, Ore., Nov. 26.—Two more deaths have been added to the list of fatalities in the Seeley — Anderson Logging road wreck at the Fairy Creek trestle yesterday, Guy Rose and Clancy Humphrey passing away. This makes five deaths. Rol Anderson and Fred Adkins, the two other victims, are still alive but are hovering between life and death.

Guy Rose of Myrtle Point, the bookkeeper, died about 8 o'clock this morning. Clancy Humphrey, the logger from California, and friend Adkins, died about 3 o'clock.

This makes six bodies in the improvised Bandon morgue, five victims of the wreck and Proprietor Larson of the Port Orford Shingle Mill.

Rescuer Overcome
Rescuers from the logging camp worked until 3 o'clock this morning before they were able to recover the body of Engineer Jas. McDowell, which was pinned underneath the wreckage.

Bert Williams, who was one of the leaders in the rescue work, overdid himself and had to be brought to Bandon for medical attention.

No Powder Explosion.
The report brought here yesterday that the big shipment of powder on the train exploded proved to be erroneous.

Officials of the Seeley & Anderson Company also deny today that the locomotive exploded. It was a big Shay engine. However, the engine was demolished by the fall, allowing the steam to escape, scalding all the victims who were near it.

Coroner Investigates.
Fred Wilson, the Coos County Coroner arrived here today from Marshfield and started on an investigation of the wreck.

It is expected that he will have a detailed investigation in one of the deaths, calling all possible witnesses. Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Liljequist of Coquille is also expected to participate in the investigation owing to the size of it.

So far, no explanation for the disaster has been offered.

Little Hope for Injured.
It was stated this afternoon that Fred Adkins, one of the injured men, cannot possibly recover and that it is only a question of hours with him. For Anderson, there appears to be some hope. Dr. E. Minguet of Marshfield was sent for at noon for a consultation on Anderson's case.

TELLS HOW TO GET RESULTS

Tulare, Cal., Cited as Example of How City Secures Waterworks.

While Marshfield is at present having quite a problem to face in the way of an improved water system, and how to get it, it might not be a bad idea to look about us and see how some of our neighbors are solving the same problem.

From Tulare, California, comes the story of the struggle that city has had to secure pure water in sufficient quantities at reasonable rates. The city had given a franchise to a private corporation who furnished water at exorbitant rates and the water was of a very poor quality, which caused the citizens to kick, and upon being asked "What are you going to do about it?" replied that they would buy the water system from the company owning it at a fair valuation. An appraisal was made and on its basis the city offered the figure named $50,000, to the water company, to be met with a counter proposition by the company that they considered the plant and the franchise was worth double that amount, and that was the lowest figure they would take, and would not sell for less than $100,000.

In size, Tulare compares favorably with Marshfield, and this is what they did about it. The city council, composed of honest men, who conscientiously represented the people, passed an ordinance putting a bond issue up to the people for $100,000 to construct a municipal owned water system. The proposition was voted on and carried by an overwhelming majority. And then the water company began to see a great light.

They came to the city officials and admitted that perhaps their valuation of their plant had been a little too high, and inasmuch as the city was going to put in a water works system, they were willing for the sake of harmony, etc., to sell the plant at the valuation given.

Then the citizens came back, by its officials, and said that the valuation put upon the plant by the appraisers was altogether too high, and since they had voted the bond issue and had commenced to look around for material and other details regarding construction of a plant, they now had inside information which they did not possess at the time they made the offer of $50,000, and were compelled to offer just half that figure, as they were sure that it covered all the water company had to sell.

And there the matter stands at present, though the city of Tulare is busy getting bids on material and construction work for its own water system, which will supply pure water to the people at reasonable rates.

It's an easy matter to get what you want, and what belongs to you if you only go after it, as the people of Tulare now know.

The following special dispatch to the San Francisco Examiner tells the latest move in the game of the company to now sell the plant:

TULARE, Nov. 21.—C. W. Quilty of San Jose, who is one of the stockholders of the Tulare City Water Co., arrived today from the north for the purpose of selling the present privately owned water plant to the city. Bonds in the sum of $100,000 for a new plant were recently voted by the city.

Shortly after the vote was taken officials of the private plant offered to sell for $50,000. Reply was made by the city officials that they considered anything over $25,000 as out of reason. A counter proposal was then made that the question be submitted to arbitration, but this was also voted down by the city council.

Quilty has issued a call for a mass meeting at which, he says, the company will put their case in the hands of the people.

LET US TALK IT OVER

"Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude."

"I hate ingratitude more in a man
Than lying, vainness, babbling, drunkenness
Or any taint of vice, whose strong corruption
Inhabits our frail blood."
—Shakespeare.

MY FRIEND, Joe Bennett, grew eloquent in denouncing the alleged gratitude of L. J. Simpson. Whatever anyone else should say in deserved criticism of the Coos Bay Water Company service, his friend Louis J. Simpson should remain silent, so Joe thinks, because of favors which he has granted the Simpson mills, to whom he has been selling water, so he says, for 10 cents per thousand gallons, for which he wants 50 cents in the new franchise.

I am glad Joe has touched on that matter of ingratitude, for if ever there was a case of it, I think my friend Joe has shown it to the people of Marshfield.

The people of this community granted Mr. Bennett's water company a franchise a number of years ago, and some councilman with a sense of justice and fairness inserted a clause by which the city might take it over after a number of years. Just as soon as Joe could get his own men on the council he had that clause taken out in exchange for an old pump. It would make a good scene in a comic opera, to see Joe digging up that old pump to trade to the city for a water franchise without any regulations by which the city might get back what it had given away.

Later when Joe desired to sell it instead of offering it to the city, he peddled it to P. A. Devers and Strahorn of Spokane, then to Mr. Jennings of the Oregon Power Co., who turned it down. Finally Claude Nasburg dug up Nolan in Omaha, who agreed to pay Mr. Bennett $150,000 for it if he could have a 50-year franchise and increased rates. What Mr. Nolan was buying, however, was the franchise and not the water plant, and when the franchise was refused the deal was called off. In the meantime when it was suggested that the city might buy it, the price was promptly boosted to $160,000.

How about gratitude?
To satisfy any skeptical ones how sacredly Mr. Bennett regards and appreciates the former gifts and favors received by him at the hands of the people of this city and how amply he deserves further donations of franchises, let it be remembered that only a few months ago he and other local citizens were granted a railroad franchise through some of the city's streets, in the belief that the city's welfare would be better protected than they would were the franchise given to some soulless foreign corporation like the S. P. Co. Upon this franchise being granted, Mr. Bennett proclaimed on various occasions that he so loved the people that he would give his very life's blood before he would permit this generous gift from the city to fall into such contaminated hands as the S. P. Co., and yet it is common knowledge that it was Mr. Bennett himself who made known to that awful octopus that $100,000 over and above the moneys actually expended on the terminal railroad would assuage the severe jar to his conscience for the transfer into such unclean hands another of the city's donated franchises.

And again Mr. Bennett can well say to the people of this city: "Let them sweat."

BIG FLURRY IN NEW YORK MARKET

Call Money Jumps to Twelve Per Cent Today as Result of Reserve Being Depleted.

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Another sudden advance in call money or day-to-day loans to 12 percent, equalling yesterday's high rate and not attained since the early part of 1910, was responsible for a further unsettling of the stock market today. Several influences were responsible for the fact that the clearing house banks' balance has already been reduced or lost $7,000,000 to the sub-treasury since Friday, which threatens a deficiency in the excess reserve at the end of the week. It is reported in the financial district that the Treasury Department at Washington would again be appealed to for assistance. In addition to the losses of the banks to the sub-treasury there have been heavy shipments of cash to the Pacific Coast and other centers to facilitate the movement of crops.

GUNMEN TO BE ELECTROCUTED

Slayers of Gambler Rosenthal Sentenced to Die in Electric Chair.

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—"Gyp, the Blood," "Whitey Lewis," "Lefty Louis" and "Dago Frank," the gunmen, convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, were sentenced by Justice Goff to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing during the week beginning January 6.

Each of the prisoners was sentenced separately and in each case their attorney moved that the verdict be set aside and judgment arrested. Each motion Justice Goff successively denied.

One of the grounds for the motion was that the verdict was the result of "passion," "prejudice" and other influences. None of the condemned men gave any visible sign of his feelings.

Accompanied by the sheriff and 12 deputies, the four were forced through the big, silent crowd and taken to the Grand Central station and put on a train for Sing Sing, where with Charles Becker, former police lieutenant, the condemned instigator of the crime they will await execution.

THREE FREED BY JURY TODAY

Union Men Accused of Murder in Lawrence Strike Riot Not Guilty.

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)
SALEM, Mass., Nov. 26.—"Not guilty," was the verdict of the jury in the case of Joseph J. Eitor, Arthur Giovannitti, and Joseph Caruso, charged with the murder of Anna Lopizzo, who was killed in the Lawrence textile strike riot of last winter.

When the three men heard the words freeing them on the charge, they embraced and kissed each other. Giovannitti sprang to his feet and said: "Gentlemen of the jury, in the name of justice, truth and civilization, I thank you." Eitor made a neat little speech of thanks to the court and jury, while the court interpreter thanked the jury for Caruso.

The news of the acquittal of Eitor, Giovannitti and Caruso delighted thousands of foreign operatives in the big Lawrence textile mills. The leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World, stated that there would be a celebration in honor of the three and probably an indoor mass meeting or street parade on Thanksgiving Day.

EUROPE SOMEWHAT RELIEVED TODAY.

Germany, England and France Are Advising Nations to Be Good.

(By Associated Press to Coos Bay Times.)
LONDON, Nov. 26.—No change for the worse in the international political situation brought about by the war in the Balkans is visible today except insofar as the continued tension decreases the ability of diplomacy to resist a rupture.

Great Britain, France and Germany are all giving counsel of moderation both at Vienna and St. Petersburg.

There is also reason to believe that Great Britain has given Serbia as well as Russia and France to understand that she has no interest in Serbia's demand for a port on the Adriatic Sea. She also has told them that she has no intention of supporting Serbia's claim by force of arms nor of aiding another power to do so.

Progress of the negotiations between delegates of Turkey and the Balkan allies at Tebatatka is still a sealed book. In diplomatic circles in London it is stated that Turkey has presented the following as an acceptable basis for an agreement:

No war indemnity. Retention by Turkey of the Maritza River, the fortress of Adrianople to be included. Maintenance of sovereignty of the Sultan of Turkey in Albania.
